Babe Ruth Honors
2 Firefighters
'Athletes Of Year'

Two members of the Firefighters Local 792 baseball team of the Quincy Babe Ruth League, Ed Daley and Bill Buckley, have been selected to Babe Ruth Baseball's "Athletes of the Year" program for 1974.

Announcement was made by Richard W. Case, president of Babe Ruth International, and Raymond Dunn, manager of the Local 792 team.

Nominations for "Athletes of the Year" were made during the summer by Babe Ruth League managers and presidents from across the nation. They were invited to nominate candidates with the best records of local achievement on their teams or in their leagues.

Buckley batted .436 last summer for the Firefighters with 31 hits in 74 official times at bat and also received 22 bases on balls. In addition to being a strong hitter, he had an excellent glove at first base, showing good moves on double play situations and let few throws get by him.

Daley batted .325 with 28 for 86 and was walked 21 times. He was a good bunter and excellent base stealer. He was a valuable all-around player in that he could pitch, play the infield or the outfield and play all positions well.

The athletic achievements of the two will be presented in the 1974 edition of Babe Ruth Baseball's Athletes of the Year Annual to be published next month. This respected chronicle of the youth baseball season will be on display at the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Raiders Face Brockton For First Time

By TOM SULLIVAN

"That was a tremendous comeback and these boys proved again they never give up. I'm just sorry for them that they couldn't have pulled out a win."

That was North Quincy Football Coach Ralph Frazier's comment following last Saturday's 20-12 loss to Waltham in a game which was very similar to the recent Quincy-Waltham game in which Quincy pulled out a 21-20 upset win in the final 14 seconds.

Waltham, running its record to 7-1, completely dominated the first half when it rolled to a 20-0 lead but North made a complete about-face in the last two periods to outclass the visitors at Veterans Memorial Stadium and just missed pulling out an amazing victory.

This week North faces another tartar when it goes to Rocky Marciano Stadium in Brockton to face a high-powered Brockton team, defending Division One Super Bowl champion, in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game.

This will be the first official meeting between the schools, although they did meet back in the 40's in jamboree games.

The Boxers, unbeaten the past two years, have been upset twice by Natick [21-14] and Leominster [17-7] outside the league but are unbeaten in the league and have an overall 5-2 record. They walloped New Bedford, 32-0, in a non-leaguers; Newton North, 40-7; Weymouth North, 28-0; Brookline, 46-19; and Quincy, 34-0, in the league.

The Raiders were forced to face Waltham's giant team without their best ball carrier, Brian Doherty, and chances are he won't be able to face Brockton, making their chances of an upset that much tougher.

However, Jack Hatfield, who had a phenomenal day against Waltham, Matty Constantino, Rich Marino and quarterback Mike Meehan ran the ball more than usual and helped take up the slack left by Doherty's absence, and Frazier hopes they can repeat their performances at Brockton.

"We have a great bunch of kids and we lost to a super ball club which outweighed us tremendously," Frazier said. "I just can't say enough about our kids. We made some defensive adjustments at the half and our defense was just superb in the second half."

"Tom Callahan, Paul O'Donnell, Frank Strazula, Chris Morton and Ralph Crevier were particularly outstanding on defense and Hatfield, Dennis McGuire, Bruce Shea, Pat Connolly, Bill Pitts and John Gallagher also were tremendous."

The coaches hailed the two-way play of Hatfield, usually used mainly on defense. He ran well, for 42 yards, scored both touchdowns, returned a punt 76 yards for his first tally and returned another one 50 yards to just miss going all the way late in the game. He was his usually outstanding self on defense.

Also praised for their work on offense were Constantino, Marino [especially for his blocking], and Meehan, and linemen Jim Driscoll, Mike Nee and Richie Joyce.

The first half was all Waltham as Dave Poirier passed to Steve Godfrey for 16 yards and a touchdown. He then hit Bob Jacobs, who made a spectacular catch grabbing the ball from Morton in the end zone, for an 11-yard scoring pass. Godfrey scored from the seven after a pass interference call against North had given Waltham a first down at that point.

It was an entirely different game in the second half as North came out fired up. Hatfield took Poirier's long punt on his 24, faked a handoff and raced up the sidelines 76 yards for the Raiders' first touchdown early in the third period. Frazier's team was just immense. North held Waltham to very little yardage, staged a fine attack of its own and nearly pulled it out. Earlier a pass interception had halted North on the Waltham 20.

North got the ball on Waltham's 35 after Poirier rushed for 19 yards on a high pass from center on a punt situation [Waltham had been penalized 15 yards just before that]. On the second play of the last period Hatfield went around left end for eight yards to make it 20-12.

Hatfield took a punt on his 27, broke away with no one in front of him but was brought down from behind on the Waltham 27, a return of 50 yards. North's last chance went out the window when Meehan passed to Mark Reale for nine yards but he fumbled when tackled and Waltham recovered. It then ran out the clock.

Waltham gained a net of 165 yards on the ground to 109 for North. North picked up 53 yards through the air with five for 12, while Waltham had 43 yards with four for nine. Waltham had 11 first downs, North 10.

A-N Wins 9th Title

Atlantic-North won the ninth grade championship, Central is the eighth grade champ and Broadmeadows and Sterling share the seventh grade title in the Quincy Junior High football league.

In the final games last Friday, Broadmeadows defeated Central, 14-0, in ninth grade competition. Peter Cassidy scored the first touchdown and Ronnie Donovan added the extra points on a pass. Bob Flebotte scored the second touchdown on an 18-yard run.

The eighth graders played to a scoreless tie. Earlier in the week Atlantic-North clinched the ninth grade title with a 6-0 win over Sterling. Kurt O'Sullivan scored the touchdown. In the first half Sterling had a good scoring chance but a pass interception on the one-yard line ended the threat. Another pass interception stopped Sterling later in the game.

The A-N eighth grade won, 12-8. Pat Ennis scored for A-N on a pass and Danny McIntyre scored the second on a 25-yard run. Jimmy Wojciechowski ran 55 yards for Sterling's touchdown and Leon Frazer added the points.

Wounded Presidents To Host Brookline

This has been a rough year for Quincy Football Coach Hank Conroy, whose Presidents have only a 2-6 record and have had 219 points scored against them. And there is more trouble ahead for the injury-riddled Conroy brigade.

Saturday Hank leads his "walking wounded" against an improved Brookline team in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We are so badly off physically that I'm down to four stringers at some positions," Conroy said following last week's 34-0 loss to high-powered Brockton. "We have had top players out all season and lost two more in the Brockton game. Quarterback Jimmy Forrester was injured late in the first half and sat out the whole second half. He is a big question mark for the Brookline game.

"And Gerry Durant, who has been an outstanding lineman, was hurt and probably is out for the season. A big reason for our defensive weaknesses is the fact we are so hard up I just don't have the replacements for injured starters."

Brookline has been an in and out team this year but in its last two games it defeated Arlington, 20-6, and North Quincy, 7-0. Previously it had defeated Boston Tech, 8-0; lost to Weymouth North, 7-0; lost to Waltham, 33-8; edged Weymouth South, 20-18, in overtime; lost to Boston Latin, 19-7 and lost to Brockton, 46-19.

"We were better than the final score indicates at Brockton and we played very well defensively in the second half," Conroy said.

"Brockton is noted for its attack but it has an outstanding defense which enables the team to control the ball and not give the opposition much chance to move.

"They intercepted four of our first eight passes [Quincy had six intercepted the week before by Weymouth North], and we had numerous penalties for offside and illegal procedure which nullified many gains."

Frankie Guest, one of the Presidents' top defensive players, took over at quarter back when Forrester was hurt and will start there Saturday if Forrester is out. Even if Forrester can play, Guest will see a good deal of action.

Guest and Doug King were singled out for their two-way performances and also praised were Jake Columbus, Joe Megnia, Paul Coner, Mike Wysocki, Paul DeCristofaro and sophomore Pat Gibbons, shining in his first varsity game.

Conroy had good words for the running of Preston Carroll, who had many gains nullified by penalties, and Paul Vespaziani.

Brockton rolled up a 27-0 halftime lead but was held to one touchdown in the second half.

One of the four interceptions was returned for a touchdown by Ralph Ruggiero and two of John Tamosonas' three interceptions set by Boxer touchdowns.

North Ousted By Wakefield

The North Quincy soccer team finished its most successful season in many years in disappointing fashion when it lost to Wakefield, 2-0, last week in the opening round of the state tournament.

Lou Ioanilli's Raiders finished second in their first Suburban League season with a 14-2-2 record, losing only to champion Newton, 2-1, and Brookline, 1-0. North was the only team to defeat Newton, which finished with a 16-1-1 record.

North had finished its fine season with a 3-1 win over Rindge Tech, while Newton clinched the crown with a 3-2 win over Quincy the same day.

John Penella scored North's first goal with Walter Melton assisting. Rindge tied it up but the Raiders quickly regained the lead when John Mackey fed Peter Donovan for the second goal. The final score came when Tim Clifford threw the ball inbounds to Melton, who headed the ball to Mackey who scored.

Earlier last week North clinched its tournament berth with a 3-1 win over Quincy.

Tony Carballido, who has been a standout for North since moving here from Mexico, scored the first goal with an assist for Peter Donovan. The second was scored by Mackey, with Bill Donovan assisting, and the final was tallied as Bill Donovan passed to Carballido and he scored from 15 yards out. Mark Raimondi scored the lone Quincy goal with Joe McEachern assisting.

"This was a very satisfying season," said Ioanilli, North Quincy's third-year coach. "The boys worked very hard, not only during the season but in the spring and summer, and they really developed. The backbone of our defense has been Tim Clifford. He's sound defensively and the other coaches agree he's the best they've seen in throwing the ball in. He also had six goals and an assist, incredible for a fullback."

Melton was the top scorer with 15 of the Raiders' 45 goals. Gary Nankin and Ken O'Sullivan were outstanding in goal and combined for eight shutouts and allowed the fewest goals in the league, 12. Danny Finn, Bob Mewis and Jim McGinley were fine halfbacks, and the other fullbacks, Bill Donovan and Dave Nesti, also played well.

Carballido, Pete Donovan, Mackey and Penella were fine offensive players. Rounding out the squad were Jack Browne, Dave Adams, Steve Martinelli, John Lawson, Kevin O'Neill and Bill Wildes. -TOM SULLIVAN

Provost Sets National Interception Record

Quincy's John Provost set one national record last Saturday and has his sights on another as he continues his sensational defensive play for the Holy Cross football team.

When the former Quincy High standout intercepted a pass and ran it back 76 yards for a touchdown in a 30-20 win over U.Mass., Provost moved into the number one spot in all-time interception yardage with 468 yards, passing Tom Curtis, who had 440 yards from 1967-69 for Michigan.

Provost is tied for second place in the all-time NCAA listing with his 25th career interception and still has an outside chance of reaching the all-time record of 29 held by Al Brosky of Illinois. Provost's 25 ties him with Curtis. It was also Provost's eighth interception of the season.

Reaches Elementary School Youngsters

18-Year-Old Drinking Law 'A Nightmare'

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

A 12-year-old girl with an overdose of alcohol was rushed to the hospital to have her stomach pumped out.

She and a 14-year-old boy had gotten an older youth to buy two bottles of wine and a quart of beer for them at a package store.

Another 14-year-old boy picked up for drunkenness kicked the police officer in the chest as he attempted to make a call on a police cruiser radio.

A gang of drinking youths—boys and girls—pelted a police car with beer bottles and a rack as police responded to a complaint call. The rack smashed the car window and hit the officer in the face, spraying broken glass over him.

These alcohol-related incidents didn't happen in somebody else's town or city. They happened right here in Quincy.

And they, and other incidents like them, have helped create what Police Chief Francis X. Finn calls "an absolute nightmare" for the police force.

What has caused such use and abuse of liquor among youngsters? The lowering of the drinking age to 18 says Finn.

Since July 1, 1973, when the state's legal drinking age was lowered, Chief Finn says Quincy has witnessed:

- The doubling of juvenile alcohol-arrests.

- An increase in the assault of Quincy police officers by intoxicated youths.

- The consumption of liquor by children as young as 10.

- An increase in automobile accidents involving teenage drivers.

According to Sgt. Daniel Lyons, head of Quincy's Juvenile Division, 115 male juveniles and 30 female juveniles have been taken to the station

QUINCY YOUNGSTERS down to 12 and 10-year-old level are getting their hands on hard liquor, wine and beer since the 18-year-old drinking law took effect. Police call it a "nightmare" as juvenile arrests double and other offenses increase.

this year under protective custody as of Nov. 12. A youth is taken into protective custody only when judged totally incapacitated by the police officer.

During an average year before the passage of the 18-year-old drinking law, Lyons estimates juvenile alcohol-arrests at 50.

By Dec. 31, 1973 - six months after the passage of the new law - a total of 59 juveniles - 52 male and seven female - were held under protective custody.

Coupled with this increase in drunkenness among juveniles is a rise in assault-and-battery on officers. Chief Finn commented: "The assault-and-battery on police officers is unbelievable. It's not uncommon for 15 or 16-year-olds to whack an officer."

Finn noted that prior to the passage of the new drinking law, 21-year-olds could buy liquor for their under-age friends. It was also common for a minor to borrow an older friend's license or college ID to purchase liquor or to be served in a nightclub.

"Now," says Finn, "with the lowering of the drinking age, the 18-year-olds are buying liquor for the 11, 12 and 13-year-olds - sometimes even for the 10-year-olds."

Philosophically, Finn said he was opposed to the passage of the new drinking law.

"I knew what was going to happen," he said. "I know it's hard to say an 18-year-old can vote and not drink, but at that stage, they haven't fully matured. Peer pressure from other adolescents is still strongly there."

Automobile accident rates in Quincy have also jumped in the 16-19-year-old bracket. According to Police Department figures, 78 accidents involving personal injury occurred from July 1972 to June 1973, prior to the lowering of the drinking age.

Yet, in that same age bracket, 117 accidents involving personal injury occurred from July 1973 to June 1974, one year after the passage of the new 18-year-old drinking law.

During the year preceding the lowering of the drinking age, four fatal accidents occurred in Quincy. None of them, however, involved alcohol abuse, according to police records.

During the year following the lowering of the drinking age, five fatal accidents occurred in Quincy, but once again, none involved alcohol abuse.

Figures compiled by the statistical office of the Registry of Motor Vehicles however, show an increase in the number of statewide fatal accidents [Cont'd on Page 12]

Survey Shows

Over 82% Of Ward 1 Homes In Good Condition

The results of one phase of an exterior building survey conducted by the Department of Planning and Community Development show 82.8 per cent of 1,829 inspected homes in Ward 1 in good condition.

The survey is being made as a required part of the application for federal funds under the new Community Development Bill of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The others of all 18,000

Quincy homes will be checked before completion of the entire survey project.

Eighty per cent of all homes in Ward 1 have been surveyed. Homes in the entire ward should be completely checked by the end of the week.

Survey results also showed more homes in the Houghs Neck section of the ward seemingly in need of improvement than in any other section of the ward.

Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of the Department of Planning and Community Development, said 65.6 per cent of the homes surveyed in Houghs Neck were listed in good condition versus the overall 82.8 per cent in good condition throughout the entire ward.

He said, too, 27.7 per cent of the surveyed Houghs Neck homes received a rating of "fair", while 15 per cent of the surveyed homes in Ward 1 [271 homes] received a similar rating.

To be classified as "fair", the home must have had at least two major building features - such as foundation walls, roof, porches - or a combination of several other features - such as stairs, gutters, chimney, yards, doors -

Drinking Water Returns To Normal

The new $20 million Dorchester water tunnel was to open Wednesday, marking for Quincy the resumption of normal water service from the Quabbin Reservoir in western Massachusetts.

During the completion of the tunnel over the last month, Quincy residents experienced a change in the taste, smell and color of their water due to the temporary use of water from the Sudbury Water System and the Spot Pond Reservoir in Medford.

Official ceremonies marking the opening of the tunnel are expected to be held Friday at Shaft 7C in Mattapan.

Council Votes To Boycott Sugar

Ward Councillor Leo J. Kelly introduced a City Council resolve Monday night, calling for a city-wide boycott of sugar during Thanksgiving week.

Colleagues approved the measure.

Citing that the price of sugar "has tripled within a matter of days," Kelly also urged neighboring cities and towns to join Quincy in the sugar boycott.

Kelly noted, too, the Boston City Council has already voted unanimously to adopt a sugar boycott during Thanksgiving week.

Through the boycott, Kelly said government officials and citizens could "work together in a united effort to abate this injustice in our economy."

Thanksgiving, Christmas Blood Donor Weeks

Thanksgiving Week and Christmas Week are being designated at Quincy City Hospital as Voluntary Blood Donor Weeks to meet a vital need for blood. Blood donated for transfusions and replacements since January were averaging 55 pints a month.

Recently blood donations have dropped off.

The situation has become more serious during past weeks. While the hospital keeps on hand a continuous supply of blood for transfusions, the number of pints available has dropped with the lack of donors.

Thanksgiving and Christmas weeks mean vacations for schools and colleges. An appeal is made particularly to students to consider donations of blood during their weeks at home.

Donations may be made evenings at the Blood Bank at Quincy City Hospital Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. To avoid delay, appointments should be made in advance by calling 773-6100, Ext. 438.

Donors 17 years and older are welcome. Persons 17 years of age should have parental consent in writing. Those over 66 years require the approval of a doctor.

LaRaia Survey Shows Opposition To New NQHS

A total of 116 out of 219 respondents to a questionnaire sponsored by City Councillor Joseph LaRaia oppose the construction of a new North Quincy High School, he reports.

LaRaia printed the questionnaire in a local newspaper "to check on reports of public opposition to the new school." It also appears in today's Quincy Sun.

Respondents could register their support or opposition to the building of a new school, or they could favor the construction of an addition to the present North Quincy High to be financed by a bond issue not to exceed $5 million. A total of 71 people checked this last option.

LaRaia said some people

New School Hearing Tonight

The City Council will hold a public hearing tonight [Thursday] to consider the construction of a new North Quincy High School at the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

The hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy Vocational Technical School gymnasium.

$62,154 In New Wiring

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts reports 114 wiring permits for an estimated $62,154 in wiring were issued for the month of October.

A total of $628 was collected in fees. Fifty-six certificates of approval were awarded during the month. A total of 174 inspections were made and 13 defects were noted.

There were 18 re-inspections and one fire call in October.

The major wiring project was a new 28-unit condominium at 62 South St.

checked two options, registering their opposition to the building of a new high school and their support of an addition to the present school. He did not have available the number of people replying in such a way.

A total of 32 people expressed support for the construction of a new North Quincy High School. LaRaia noted most of these positive replies came from residents of Wollaston and North Quincy. Some 117 of the total 219 replies came from those two sections of the city, LaRaia noted.

He said he assumes some of the 116 people opposed to construction would favor the building of an addition instead.

LaRaia says he still remains "open-minded" on the matter but will "probably vote along with public opinion."

"People don't want money spent unless it's absolutely necessary," he said. "The times are bad to be spending money."

Adding that improvements are necessary at North Quincy High School, LaRaia said:

"At this time, I'd tend to favor an addition rather than a new school unless public opinion changes."

Party-goer missed half the fun

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

A few nights ago my best girl friend and I went to a party. I had a great time, but Amy hasn't spoken to me since. She says that I made a complete fool of myself. I admit that I did have a couple of drinks and can't remember a thing about the last half of the evening. I've checked with a couple of my friends and they say I was smashed but did nothing too obnoxious.

Amy and I are both seniors in high school. She is the one girl I really like and I don't want to blow it. What can I do?

Dan

Dear Dan:

You can learn from experience. If you had such a good time that you can't remember half of the party, stay sober next time and have twice the fun.

Upset

Dear Upset:

Tell this ogre to knock it off. If he refuses to act like a normal human being, you may have a heart attack — HIS and HERS!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I don't want a sermon on morality. I just want your opinion. I am 18 and have been going with Dave, who is 21, for two years. I do not want to get married but do intend to sleep with Dave. Do you think I should get birth control pills?

Jennifer

Dear Jennifer:

Yes — but from your doctor. Any drug can be dangerous unless prescribed by a physician. Don't be a birth-control-pill borrower.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I've been dating Shelley for two years. Just when I think we have a wedding date all set, something happens. Shelley is a genius at inventing excuses, and she is not a teenager. She is 29 years old.

One time the excuse was that she had just started a new job and wanted things running smoothly before planning a wedding. The next time she delayed making a decision until her mother got back from a vacation. When her mother returned she delayed until the last payment on her car was made. Well, the car is paid for. What shall I do about the next excuse? When is this girl going to make up her mind?

Cecil

Dear Cecil:

Probably never. Marriage is not for everybody.

Keys and colors calm fears

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

When there are so many things to fear these days, I'd think my husband would be able to come up with something a little more terrifying than being locked out, but apparently that is his primary dread.

And not just being locked out of his house — but his car, his locker at the club or any other hinged panel that might refuse to grant him entrance without benefit of key. This fear has begun to make inroads on our marital tranquility.

"Look," he said to me just yesterday as we were having a drink before dinner. "I've had a complete set of duplicate keys made for everything we own."

Then he dumped about 45 keys in my lap. Smiling rakishly, he pointed out that they were all different colors for purposes of identification.

I looked down at the rainbow assortment of keys and the one that had been accidentally dropped into my martini glass and said — with apologies to Charles MacArthur — "I wish they were emeralds."

But he was oblivious to my remark. The sight of all those keys had set him crazy and he ran from door, to cabinet, to car, to tackle box trying them out and announcing loudly, "Red is for cars. Green is for doors. Gold is for... oh, yeah, gold is for your car, red is for mine. Got that?"

I looked at him dimly and rattled the blue key in my martini glass.

"What's this one for?" I asked. He hurried over and gave it a long look.

"I think that one is for your luggage," he said, "but don't quote me."

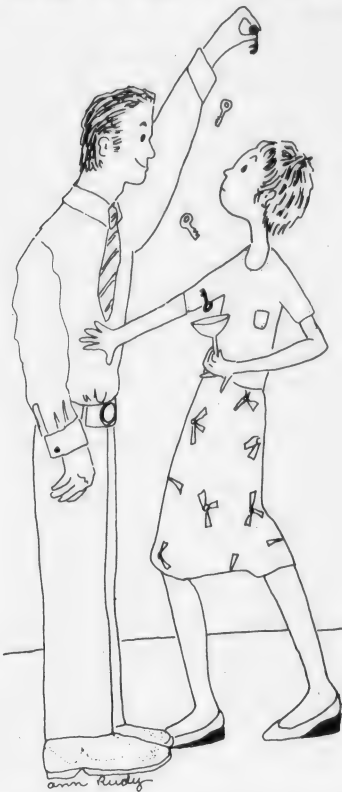

I wouldn't dream of it. In fact, I may just forget about the whole thing. I tried painting by numbers once and it was a bad experience. Gaining entrance by colors sounds just as confusing. It simply isn't natural to have duplicate keys.

I have a keyring with about six keys on it that will get me into anywhere I really need to go. Beyond that, I have a spare front door key under a flower pot where I moved it from under the doormat after reading about burglars always looking under door mats for front door keys.

I really think my husband needs a good long rest. And as soon as he comes in from the garage, where he is hiding keys, I'm going to see that he lies down with a nice cold glass of Delaware punch — red, to match his car key.

Electrical Fires

Thousands of persons die each year in home fires. Among the causes of these fires, faulty or overloaded electrical wiring take more than their share. This is one fire source that can be avoided.

Among the warning signs of an overloaded system are lights dimming when an appliance goes on, a shrinking television picture, slow-heating appliances, and fuses blowing frequently. Remember that when a fuse does blow, it should be replaced with the same size fuse. Never use a substitute such as a penny.

A sufficient number of circuits and outlets should be available throughout the home to avoid using several electrical appliances on a single circuit. In addition, never use extension cords with appliances drawing large amounts of current such as refrigerators or irons. Prevent damage to cords by not running them under carpets, through doorways, over nails or hooks.

TV MAILBAG

Anthony George credits listed

By RICK ROBERTS
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. What was the first television series Anthony George played in? — R.K., San Jose, Calif.

A. George, who now appears as Dr. Tony Vincent in the daytime serial, "Search for Tomorrow," first appeared regularly as an FBI agent in "The Untouchables."

His role in that show came after several appearances on various network shows. He also was in a co-starring role in the "Checkmate" series until that show went off the air in 1962.

He has a long list of stage and screen credits.

Among the stage plays he has been in are "Funny Girl," "Cactus Flower," "Mister Roberts," and "Come Blow Your Horn." Recently, he portrayed Hildy Johnson in the revival of "The Front Page."

Q. Who is the narrator on "In The News"? My children love listening to him. — J.K., Baltimore, Md.

A. The voice on the informational broadcasts for children belongs to Christopher Glenn.

Glenn has been working on the show since the reports began in September, 1971.

He has also served as the anchorman for a series of reports for youngsters in the special series, "What's It All About." The series he reported on include "What's Impeachment All About,"

"What's the Energy Crisis All About," and "What Are Taxes All About."

Glenn has a long career in radio work and before turning to television had served as managing editor of the Metro-media News Network in Washington, D.C.

Q. When did John Berardino decide to stop his baseball career and go into acting? — R.P., Torrance, Calif.

A. Berardino never really did stop acting since the time his career began at the age of seven in the old "Our Gang" comedy movies.

He began his professional sports career in 1939 with the St. Louis Browns. After serving in the Navy during World War II, he returned to the ball club until he was sold to the Cleveland Indians in 1948. His decision to quit baseball was pretty much made for him in 1953 when he suffered a leg injury.

While he was a baseball player, though, he continued his acting career and had a $1 million insurance policy in case of a facial injury.

Berardino now appears as Dr. Steve Hardy in "General Hospital."

Other television series he has played in include "M Squad," "Surfside 6," and "The Untouchables."

Market Report

Convenience Foods: You Pay For The Service

Have the years of plentiful, cheap food spoiled you?

Do you make your own hamburger patties, or rely on the packaged kind, already shaped and frozen?

These are some of the questions that arise with the ever-higher price of food, the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA) points out this week.

It's costly enough to buy ground beef by the pound and put your own patties, but to buy them in the frozen convenience package costs nearly double. Rolling your own bread, cracker or graham crumbs may seem a chore, but you'll save money over buying them already crumbed for you. Grated or sliced cheddar costs more per pound than as a whole wedge.

As the market basket price rises alarmingly, we realize that we're paying someone else to do the work. Homemakers may have to spend more time in the kitchen to offset the inflated prices. But the so-called "convenient foods" don't really save that much time.

As you shop for the Thanksgiving turkey, you'll find a range in price, too, between the fresh-frozen toms and the fully-prepared, self-basting turkeys. The latter is delightfully easy to cook and the flavor and juiciness are superb, but you can pay up to 20 cents a pound for the convenience.

Cold storage stocks of turkeys were at record levels at the beginning of November, and demand was down. Prices began to ease last week, and should hold steady through the holiday.

Lowest-priced turkeys are the plain, fresh-frozen toms, followed by fresh-frozen hen turkeys. Frozen, with a pop-up signal to tell you when it's done, falls somewhere in the middle. At the high end of the scale are the self-basting turkeys, and the fresh-killed.

Next time you shop for food, analyze the convenience products you buy, and then decide if the money spent is really worth the effort saved.

Best Buys this week, according to the MDA, are Cortland and McIntosh apples, carrots, cauliflower, native cranberries, Eastern Shore potatoes, Blue Hubbard and butternut squash, and Florida citrus — tangelos, tangerines and grapefruit.

Pollard School Pupils Visit Quincy Sun

Twenty-five second and third graders from Thomas B. Pollard School recently visited The Quincy Sun to see firsthand the workings of a newspaper.

The students were: William Bissett, Michael Chase, James Mayo, Malcolm McDonald, James Murphy, Joseph Noonan, Dhiraj Pande, Theodore Pierce, Mary Brancaccio, Susan Dextradeur, Sandra Dunn, Kim

Gagel, Lori Kay Giarmo, Joanne Goguen, Lynn Gurney, Susan Howlett, Tracy Kellaway, Leigh Ann LaFleur, Catherine Lomanno, Bernadette McDonough, Danielle Morris, all second graders and John DiPietro, Dorothy DelGizzi, Stephen Grazioso, and Karen Kardoose, all third graders.

Classroom teacher Phyllis Reynolds has been working on a newspaper unit with her students for the past two weeks. During their visit the youngsters toured the production room of The Quincy Sun and watched newscopy being set on the IBM computer machine.

They also saw a headline composed on the headliner machine and watched as a finished newsstory telling of their visit was placed on a newspaper page in the paste-up room.

Also accompanying the students were former first-grade Pollard School teacher Janice King and Mrs. Beverly Kardoose, mother of Karen Kardoose.

Before leaving, each student received a complimentary copy of the latest Quincy Sun.

18-Year-Old Drinking Law Turns Into 'Nightmare'

According to the figures, 193 such drivers were involved in fatal accidents during the 12 months before the passage of the new drinking law. Of that number, 33 drivers were reported to have been drinking. A total of 38 people were killed in those accidents involving the 33 intoxicated drivers.

Comparable figures for the 12 months after the passage of the 18-year-old drinking law show 222 drivers aged 18 to 20 involved in fatal accidents. Of that number 74 - up from 33 - were reported to have been drinking. A total of 89 people - up from 38 - died in those accidents involving the 74 intoxicated drivers.

Evelyn Trefry of the statistician office at the state's Registry of Motor Vehicles cautioned that these figures were all based on "preliminary investigatory reports" made at the scene of the accident when injured drivers were oftentimes already transported to a hospital.

In those cases, the intoxication of the driver could not be determined for preliminary reports. She said the driver-intoxication figures would therefore be "much too low". She noted, too, that drivers were not classified according to degree of intoxication.

The use of alcohol by minors has also triggered an increase in other crimes, said Chief Finn. He noted vandalism, burglary, gang complaints, littering of parks, property damage and the illegal sale of alcohol to minors have all risen in Quincy since the lowering of the drinking age.

"Just listen to the police radio some night," said Finn. "I was listening recently and 17 consecutive calls were all gang complaints - a ruckus going on somewhere. Groups congregate, drink beer, and are becoming more noisy, committing vandalism to street lights, shrubbery and cars.

"Our time is being taken up chasing these kids. We go from one call to another and don't have time to perform our prevention-control patrols through the parks and playgrounds. The police are weary of chasing the kids."

The police department is also plagued by minors soliciting, and obtaining, alcohol from older youths, outside liquor establishments. Minors also solicit adults to buy liquor for them. The Police Department's division of planning and research, headed by Patrolman Joseph Molloy, has outlined a series of preventive measures to curb the illegal use of alcohol by minors. Through a joint effort by all departments and divisions within the Quincy Police force - especially the juvenile, detective and uniform divisions - the following steps could be taken:

- Arrest of people purchasing or dispersing alcoholic beverages to minors.
- Summoning of people believed to be providing alcoholic beverages to minors.
- Surveillance, when and where possible, at various liquor stores in Quincy.
- Strict enforcement of ID requirements at entertainment facilities.
- Action to be taken by the Registry of Motor Vehicles to penalize drivers who purchase alcohol for minors and then transport the minors and the alcohol to some part of the city.
- Development of a community program involving youth-serving agencies working to discourage minors' use of liquor.

Whenever a youth is brought into the police station under protective custody, his parents are notified immediately. Sgt.

Lyons, on duty in the juvenile department 10 years, said most parents show deep concern over a son or daughter detained or arrested for any juvenile crime. Chief Finn noted, however, that sometimes the detained youth acts indifferently, nonchalantly, when detained at the station under protective custody.

"It doesn't seem to bother them," said Finn. "They're out in a few hours and back drinking liquor."

Do teenagers need instruction on the effects of alcohol? Do they know, for example, that a quart, even a pint, of vodka can kill if consumed at once? Do they know why they drink?

Educational programs have been conducted in the schools, explaining the effects of drug-taking and cigarette-smoking. Yet Finn contends that any beneficial, deterring effects are not long-term ones.

"There was a sharp decline in smoking after the programs but the rate is back up again," he notes.

Sgt. Lyons agreed. "It's a scare tactic," he said.

"Kids just don't know how to handle their liquor," Lyons added.

Who, then, is to teach young people how to handle liquor? "Everyone is responsible to try and work on the problem," said Finn. No one can bug-out on it. Yet the first responsibility is with the family - with the home. Yet the family pays a lot of money to schools, to churches, because they don't have all the answers."

If Chief Finn had his way, the 18-year-old drinking law would be repealed.

"Yes, I would advocate the repeal of the law, but I doubt it can be repealed because of the 18-year-old voting."

He paused, sighed, and said, "I just wish it had never happened."

• J.J. Smith Opportunity Knocks For Frank Bellotti

Frank Bellotti, vindicated at the polls following a 10-year struggle, will enter the State House next January as Attorney General with a burning commitment to do something about the high cost of food in Massachusetts.

Tough, savvy and dedicated to this concept, the state's new chief law enforcement officer just might surprise his critics who pooh-poohed his campaign promise to try to do something in this vital area.

One thing is certain, the attorney general will pursue this goal vigorously because he was stung to the quick at implications and inferences that his promises were just so much campaign hogwash.

Consumers, faced with increased prices for just about everything, are just starting to fight back. In the person of Frank Bellotti they just might discover the leadership which has been so sadly lacking in this fight.

The tendency for most has been to shrug and take the "What can we do?" attitude. But a close, hard look at the situation reveals that with proper leadership maybe, just maybe, something can be done. Frank Bellotti has a unique opportunity to provide that leadership. Already he must be buoyed by the thought of what a single individual accomplished in another state.

A Florida talk-master in a one-man crusade sparked a three-state survey by the prestigious Wall Street Journal which investigated shortcounting, and found that the practice was widespread. This investigation found the customer was being short changed on virtually everything from aspirins to food to office supplies.

As Attorney General, Frank Bellotti should find fertile ground in such a probe in Massachusetts. Wholesalers setting bread prices before the product goes to individual markets, prices consistently higher in low income sections and other abuses have been found elsewhere - and there is no reason to believe the corporate price-rapist has been any kinder to Bay Staters.

Frank Bellotti will bring unique talents to such a probe. The new Attorney General thoroughly studied the food business before he made his campaign commitment on prices, and is now most familiar with the behind-the-scenes manipulations of that industry.

Bellotti feels strongly that something can and must be done to end the rip-off of the public by means of excessive prices.

Meanwhile, Bellotti is still savoring the sweetness of his victory over Josiah [Si] Spaulding, the former GOP state chairman, although the razor-thin margin of his win had him sweating.

Spaulding was an unlikely candidate to almost bring the Bellotti candidacy to grief. A State Street corporate lawyer who ran an uninspired and under-financed and unimaginative campaign, yet he almost breasted the strong Democratic tide to wrest victory from the former lieutenant governor.

As the voting patterns revealed, heavily liberal communities like Newton and Brookline and others switched to Spaulding in the AG race. The Boston Globe's assault on Bellotti in the closing days was another factor. Voting figures from Martini-swilling so-called "Globe Country" - the affluent suburbs of Greater Boston - reveal this starkly.

Bellotti, however, found his vote severely trimmed when he was knifed by fellow Democrats in the aftermath of two elections, one the primary a few months ago and the other 10 years ago.

Supporters of former Governor Endicott Peabody, upset by Bellotti in a bitter primary fight a decade ago, unquestionably vented their spleen on Bellotti in the just-concluded voting. Similarly, while former House Ways and Means Vice Chairman George Sacco, defeated by Bellotti in this Fall's primary, endorsed the Quincy lawyer many of his key and rank-and-file workers also knifed Bellotti in the final and opted for Spaulding. This was reflected in the heavy anti-Bellotti vote in Middlesex County.

Another factor, especially in Eastern Massachusetts, was the Globe's portrayal of Bellotti as a tired old political pro linked to Democratic party machinations. This swayed many of the young liberals attracted to the Dukakis banner who spurned Bellotti.

Despite it all, Bellotti emerged victorious and now has four years to rebuild his image, heal intra-party wounds, and show the young liberals that he is young, vigorous and committed to good government.

A Bellotti anti-high food price campaign, assuming its success, can make an awful lot of believers out of present foes in the next four years.

Ward 1 Homes In Good Condition in fair or poor condition.

A total of 4.4 per cent of the surveyed Houghs Neck homes received a classification of "poor", while 2.2 per cent of the homes surveyed in Ward 1 [40 homes] received a similar rating.

"Most of the homes that have been classified as poor have several serious problems," said Davidson.

He listed features common to a substandard home as sagging roofs, broken stairs, rotted porches, no foundation, and unsafe walkways.

The most common problems in fair and poor-rated homes in Ward 1 were foundations, porches and gutters, he noted. Many of those homes were most likely summer homes or ones converted into a year-round residence, Davidson added.

Survey results of Ward 4 are expected to be available Monday at St. Mary's Hall at 8 p.m.

New Ward 2 Councillor May Be Appointed

By HENRY BOSWORTH

You might not see a special election but an appointment to fill the Ward 2 City Council seat if Sheriff-elect Clifford Marshall moves to Dedham.

The council apparently could—if it wishes—name someone to complete the unexpired term instead of calling for a special election. If the councillors decide to go that way, insiders think former Ward 3 Councillor Ted McLelland would have the inside track.

McLelland of course lost the Ward 3 seat when his precinct got shuffled into Ward 2 during the redistricting last year. And thus, he would be a sentimental favorite among council members.

If Marshall moves into the Dedham house provided by Norfolk County for its sheriff in January, he would have to vacate the Ward 2 council seat as previously reported here.

That would leave a year to go on his Ward 2 term. Quincy Point could not be left without City Hall representation for a year so the vacant seat would have to be filled by an appointment or special election.

If it is an appointment, the man who got it would have a big advantage in next September's city primary election. He would virtually be a "candidate for re-election."

If a special election is called, there is one man you can count out of the picture: Rep.-elect Robert Cerasoli. Cerasoli says he is not interested, period.

"I told the voters I would be a full-time representative if elected and would hold no job and I meant it," he says. "Besides, I don't believe in one man holding two elective jobs."

Cerasoli is now unemployed and has been since June when he expires as a legislative assistant in the State House to seek the First Norfolk District seat vacated by Marshall to run for sheriff.

The state representative's job pays $12,688 plus about $2,000 in expenses. Cerasoli says that's the only job he will have.

Now, if there is a special election, here are some of the names being mentioned as potential candidates: Atty. Thomas Williams and James Pappie who ran for the state representative seat; School Committee member Daniel Raymond, Dean Paul Nicastro, Beau Page and Ted DeCristofaro, long active in the Ward 2 Civic Association.

STATE HOUSE INSIDERS wouldn't be surprised to see a re-shuffling coming in upper chamber power with Senator Arthur Tobin [D-Quincy] moving up.

Speculation is that Senate President Kevin Harrington will step down soon to take the presidency of the new state college created at Lowell.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph DiCarlo is expected to succeed Harrington with Senator William Bulger moving into the Majority Leader's spot. Tobin, is seen being named third in command-Senate Whip.

IF IT HAPPENS, Tobin would be the second Quincy man to crack the whip. Former Mayor James McIntyre held the job before being named Senate Counsel. If McIntyre had remained in the Senate he probably would now be for the presidency.

And if Tobin does take the job the big question is will he have time for City Council duties or bow out leaving his at-large seat open in next year's city election?

ADAMS SHORE'S Paul Harold was among the half-dozen Massachusetts representatives at the Democratic Party's pre-convention conference in Washington over the weekend. Purpose was to outline procedures for next month's national mid-term convention in Kansas City. Harold is a state-wide alternate delegate to the convention which will adopt a charter for the national Democratic Party.

Dukakis: Like Calvin Coolidge?

"Let us not dream that reason can ever be popular."
—von Goethe

By WENDELL H. WOODMAN

BOSTON — We may be witnessing the birth pangs of the most conservative administration this Commonwealth has seen since Calvin Coolidge decided to go on to bigger and better things.

That it should be fitted out by a man who aptly describes himself as a responsible liberal is not so implausible; the liberals who put him there, after all, cannot admit they were wrong. Liberals are never wrong.

Governor-elect Michael Dukakis is a political enigma being discovered all over again by the people who have known him and watched him since he was first elected to the House 12 years ago.

The ardency of his liberalism has been overstated by his detractors. His name, through the years, was made synonymous with everything nasty about the liberal cult — not because it was true, but because Dukakis was an effective force and, therefore, a threat. It was not necessary to bludgeon an idea by arguing facts and figures; all one had to do was scoff and say, "That sounds like a Mike Dukakis idea."

As the Dukakis government begins to blossom, the fears and misgivings of a liberal offensive on the treasury wither and pale.

His appointments, if we read the tone correctly, will be pragmatic, intellectual liberal activists — people who don't let their theories get started up in their common sense.

The appointment of Rep. John R. Buckley of Abington as Secretary of Administration and Finance is excellent. Buckley, the House Chairman of the Public Service Committee, is as liberal as he is practical.

Lucy Benson of Amherst, former President of the National League of Women Voters, will move into the Secretariat on Human Services, that pigpile of confusion that has been the domain of the theorists.

The appointment of Mrs. Benson is outstanding. She is a lady of great competence and she has a sound working knowledge of political affairs. Again, a liberal, but a very practical one.

It is noteworthy that neither Dukakis nor Buckley have ever been honored by state employee groups for their generosity. Both have been stingy, particularly by liberal standards, in broadening employee benefits. Dukakis has set a theme of austerity loud and clear, and while employee groups are not exactly cheering, they sense a new standard for improved morale and most of them would welcome that more than a pay raise.

Dukakis has said that his legislative proposals will dwell heavily on administrative repair and very little on new social legislation. He does not favor expansion of public higher education facilities for the very uncomplicated reason, he says, that we don't need them.

What is unfolding is not the grand design for more spending that Dukakis's critics had predicted, but rather an interlude of quiet during which the sprawling, aimless bureaucracy will be consolidated and subjected to an innovation known as executive management.

The Governor-elect may stop riding the subway after he's been mugged a couple of times; he may have trouble finding an experienced staff now that he has decided the positions are too numerous and overpaid.

But what we are watching develop in the area of executive policy and approach is a sense of practicality that is long overdue. Perhaps conservative is not the right word, but the Dukakis Government, in whatever direction it grows, will have been rooted in a climate of reality.

Letter Box

Supports Freedom Park

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to take this opportunity to go on record in support of Freedom Park and the proposal to re-zone the strip of land between Upland Rd and the MBTA tracks, as open space.

In my opinion, the most appropriate use for this parcel would be as a "passive" park.

Allowing it to be sold to a private developer would be contrary to the intent of the original taking — for highway purposes, and would frustrate the original purpose of the taking — to develop a new central artery in the city. Construction of townhouses or apartments on the strip would generate parking on the easterly side of Upland Rd, thus narrowing the roadway to the original width, before the 38 homes were torn down.

In the long run, the Quincy Center area and the city as a whole would benefit by preserving this parcel as open space. It would provide a link between the Adams National Historic Site and the Adams Academy, as well as a much desired buffer, to balance the concentrated high-rise development on one side of the MBTA tracks with the residential neighborhood on the other side.

QCA Praises WJDA, Urges Renewal Of License

Quincy Citizens Association has urged the Federal Communications Commission to renew "unhesitatingly" the broadcasting license of Radio Station WJDA.

In a letter to the Commission in Washington, the Association hailed WJDA as providing: "timely, considerate, and very thorough coverage of local news...religious services conducted by all faiths on Sundays...pleasant music appealing to all ages...good clean humor, up-to-the-minute national and international news coverage...commercials...without high-pressure selling thrust...and the Monday through Friday, "Party Line" which gives local residents an opportunity to discuss on the air problems of current interest"

Praising the WJDA staff as 28 next week.

Social, church and news items from other organizations should be "responsible, high-calibre professional people," the Association said:

"These are some of the things we like about WJDA, but they will give you an idea of the excellent job the WJDA staff does 365 days a year."

Licenses of radio and television station's routinely come up for renewal by the FCC.

Conway Presents 8-Point Personal Involvement Plan For Realtors

Realtor Jack Conway has called for an 8-point personal involvement plan for all members of real estate boards to better render customer service "in this most unusual of real estate times."

Conway presented the plan in a speech before 400 members of the Greater Nashua, N.H., Board of Realtors.

Conway, National Chairman of the Realtors Political Affairs Committee and president of a 14 office real estate firm, including one in Quincy, bearing his name, called for the following:

- Honesty: Complete honesty, integrity and fair dealing in all of the Realtors every day practices.

- "The American public is now crying out for moral leadership and is demanding renewed integrity from professional and service people. This includes real estate people," said Conway.

Mass Electric Files For $22.8 Million Rate Increase

Massachusetts Electric Company has filed a request for a $22.8 million rate increase with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities. The company is seeking the increase to offset the impact of rapidly rising costs. If approved, the new rates would result in an average 6.6 percent overall increase in customers' bills.

Average residential customers using 400 kilowatt-hours of electricity would see a $1.32 per month increase in their bills.

Commenting on the filing, William J. Cadigan, president of Massachusetts Electric, said, "We regret having to ask for increases during this inflationary period. However, these new rates are essential if the company is to cover major cost increases and thereby continue to provide reliable service to its customers."

Massachusetts Electric Company is a wholly owned subsidiary of New England Electric System.

Faxon Commons Office Condominium Underway In March

Construction will begin in March 1975 for Phase I of an eight-story, $15 million office condominium building to be located in Quincy Center.

The project, called Faxon Commons, will be completed in three phases. The first, scheduled to be built by 1976, will cost an estimated $4.5 million and will provide business space for lawyers, physicians and dentists.

Located in the central business district between Faxon Ave. and Saville Ave., the development has been planned to maintain the historical heart of Quincy, providing natural walkways and parks for pedestrians.

According to Richard J. Buccheri of RJB Suburban Development Co., Inc., each floor of Faxon Commons Phase I will contain 5,850 square feet, offering space for professionals who purchase or rent the office through the developer. The building will be made of steel and concrete construction faced with brick.

The Commons will also offer two levels of underground parking for the use of unit owners, patients and clients. Additional parking accommodations, if needed, can also be constructed.

The average monthly cost of buying space in the condominium is estimated at $650 with tax deductible items, according to RJB developers. Rental of space would cost an average $833 per month, with tax deductible items such as interest, real estate taxes, depreciation and rent.

Architect for the development is Yamashita and Assn., Inc. The entire project is being planned in conjunction with Quincy's Planning Department.

Faxon Commons will offer soundproof construction, central heating and air conditioning in each unit, large view windows, double elevators and paneled walls.

College, and Diane Walsh, who teaches distributive education at North Quincy High School and co-leads Merrill's college classes, have helped to prepare a booklet to be used during the two-day program to be held at Rider College near Trenton, N.J.

The consultants hope to show the group that helping people to be themselves and to understand themselves is the best preparation for accepting and understanding others.

The "Workshop" was organized as a result of the "tight money" market and discussions keyed-in on the current mortgage problems and several possible solutions were proposed which may enable realtors to obtain mortgage funds for their prospective clients.

The all day program was moderated by Peter J. Blampied, Senior Vice President of the Boston/Five Cents Savings Bank and presented the following members of various mortgage organizations:

Roger F. Blood, Vice President of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. a private lending company; John Valentino, Assistant Regional Vice President of Federal National Mortgage Association, Conventional Mortgage Division; Loretta Wing, Loan Representative of Government National Mortgage Association, Home Mortgage Division; Robert Eisenberg, Assistant Regional Vice President of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation; manner by the present "Money Situation". Remember Your Realtor - somebody good to have working for you."

MILESTONE -- The Wollaston United Methodist Church, located today at the corner of Beale and Chapman Sts., will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sunday.

Bishop Carroll Speaker

Wollaston United Methodist Church Marks 100th Anniversary On Sunday

Wollaston United Methodist Church will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sunday with a special church service and a catered, commemorative dinner to be held in the Fellowship Hall.

The service will begin at 10:45 a.m. with Bishop Edward G. Carroll, resident bishop of the New England Methodist Church, as guest preacher.

He will be assisted by Rev. John Barclay, Boston District Superintendent, and Rev. Ronald W. Ober, pastor of the Wollaston Methodist Church.

The 100th Anniversary Sunday Commemorative Dinner will begin immediately following the service. This dinner is the climax of a year-long program to raise the necessary funds to burn the church mortgage. Ministers of other local churches have been invited to attend the dinner.

The Wollaston United Methodist Church was officially instituted Jan. 4, 1874 with eight members.

On Nov. 22, 1874, the decision was made to build a church at the corner of Beale St. and North Central Ave. The project was completed in the spring of 1875 for a total cost of $6,000.

The growth of the church then triggered the decision to purchase land at the corner of Safford and Beale Sts. The old church building was moved to the new site in 1896.

The church remained at this location until 1921 when the continued growth of the church necessitated a move to larger quarters.

On Nov. 30, 1924, the congregation moved into its new church building adjacent to the then-existing Masonic Temple on Beale St.

A new sanctuary was added in 1952, leaving the old building for the educational, recreational and social needs of the expanding church.

Since that time, a beautiful memorial chapel and modern educational facilities have been incorporated into the old structure. Gradually, all of the windows in the sanctuary were replaced with stained glass windows, all given as memorials.

General chairman of the 100th anniversary committee is Alexander Harding. Other committee members are Helen F. Bailey, secretary; the late Ralph W. Davis and Ronald Pletsch, treasurers; Leslie M. Brierley, Mrs. Frank D'Andrea, Mrs. Alfred Elkhill, Vernon Fielding, the late Mrs. Ralph Messenger, J. Eldon Moody, Rev. Ronald W. Ober, Mrs. Richard Poore, Harold Robbins Sr., Kathy Schaffer, Dr. Albert Sheering, Mrs. S. Sterling Smallman, Z. Cranston Smith and Stanley C. Trask, Jr.

Protestant Social Service Bureau Granted Adoption Agency License

An adoption agency license has been granted by the State to the Protestant Social Service Bureau in Quincy.

Miss Margaret Davidson of Brookline, Director of the program, told a group of 25 prospective parents recently at Bethany Congregational Church that the bureau has a contract with the Office of Children to place children with families on the South Shore.

The emphasis will be on the child who waits for adoption here in Massachusetts and the adoption of children from Vietnam and Korea. There is a possibility also of children being available from Columbia, Guatemala, Bangladesh and the Philippines. There are 400 children from Massachusetts available for adoption in the older child bracket, the child with some emotional or physical handicap and the interracial child, Miss Davidson said. Miss Davidson encouraged prospective parents regardless of religion or income. The agency recommends that there be no more than 40 years difference between the age of the child and the age of adoptive parents.

Miss Davidson completed work at the Smith College School for Social Work. Formerly, she was a psychiatric Social Worker at the James Jackson Putnam Children's Center in Roxbury, a child guidance clinic for pre-school children, where she worked with the parents and supervised student Social Workers.

She came to the Protestant Social Service Bureau from Simmons College where she was Fieldwork Supervisor for Simmons College School of Social Work where she was assigned to students in the elementary grades of the Arlington School System.

There has been a large response to the Adoption program on the South Shore with inquiries coming also from Cape Cod and even New Jersey. Families who have already expressed an interest in the program have ranged in age from the early 20's into the 40's. Many have children already. Prospective parents are asked to be quite specific as to the type of child or children they are looking for and who are best suited for their way of life. Group meetings for interested people are held on a regular basis and information can be obtained by telephoning the agency.

The Protestant Social Service Bureau is a family counseling and child placement agency supported by Protestant Churches in Quincy and surrounding communities.

Life styles change. Traditions and customs change. So does funeral service. Today, no two funerals are alike, because no two families are alike. Today a competent funeral director must provide a broader spectrum of services than ever before. It's a challenge. Funeral directors affiliated with National Selected Morticians meet this challenge with a wide selection in a broad range of prices so each family may choose what best meets its needs. As members of NSM in this area, we helped bring it about. We believe in matching the service to the need. It helps make us someone to count on, every time.

Need More Experience

Quincy, North Girls Windup First Field Hockey Season

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy girls last week completed their first season of field hockey and the girls of both schools found the going rough against much more experienced teams.

North Coach Brian Tilley had the only chance to cheer last week when the Raiderettes edged Quincy, 1-0, in the season's finale. It was the only win for either local team in their first year. Most of the Suburban League schools have had field hockey for four or five years.

Kenra Donovan scored the only North goal as North finished 1-6, while Gretha Ruark's First Ladies were 0-7, despite some fine efforts.

"Only four of our girls had even seen a field hockey game before, so naturally, we were starting from scratch," Tilley said. "Literally we started from the very beginning with the girls learning that 'this is a field hockey stick and ball.' The girls, however, were very eager to learn and they improved in every game."

"The players are the reason coaching is fun," Tilley added. "The game belongs to them for their enjoyment. They have the courage to play game after game against seasoned teams and still face each game with optimism. The team includes players from all four high school grades."

The seniors, who provide the nucleus for the defense are Capt. Cheryl Walsh, bulback; Co-Capt. Nancy Laing, halfback, and Jill Harrington, fullback, and Mariane Byk, goalkeeper.

Juniors are fullback Jean Tower and forwards Nanci Williams, Debra Ayles, Beth Colman and Donna Rooney.

The North coach feels the bright lights for the future are his 10th graders.

Among them is the outstanding goalie, Linda Henry. Terry Kelley is the starting halfback and the other 10th graders are halfback Linda Walker, fullback Lauren Baker and forwards Kathy O'Hara, Sharon Cobban and Kendra Donovan.

The team's two ninth graders, twin sisters Mary and Elizabeth Gori, are solid offensive players and starting forwards who make the future brighter. Pauline Kerney is the team manager.

Miss Ruark found the same situation at Quincy where her girls also were starting from scratch. They showed tremendous improvement and the future looks bright.

The varsity is captained by senior Terri Tucker and includes Joy Bennett, Cindy Tozzi, Marie Nichols, Ellen Rand, Rosemary Maloney, Mary Tucker, Maureen Duggan, Valerie King, Jo Baxendale, Fran Giovanucci and goalie Mary Winn.

The junior varsity captain is Diane D'Olimpio and comprises Wendy Jacob, Tricia Nichols, Cathy Coull, Judy Cappadona, Ginny Weeks, Lois Golden, Randa Broughton, Joannie Goldrick, Tracey Tardiff, Anne Baccarri and goalie Louise Sordillo.

"The girls have shown improvement in every game on defense and the offense has been coming along slowly," Miss Ruark said. "They are very inexperienced and when they gain that experience and start scoring some goals, they will be all right. The junior varsity has been playing very well considering that nearly all have never played field hockey before."

Brookline 18, Presidents 13

Quincy's 'Best Game' A Heartbreaker

By TOM SULLIVAN

Despite what Coach Hank Conroy called "our best all-around game of the year," the Quincy football team will enter the Thanksgiving Day game with North Quincy with a five-game losing streak.

The Presidents, presenting its strongest lineup in weeks with the return of some injured players, dropped an 18-13 heartbreaker to Brookline last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium as the game ended with Quincy on the Brookline four-yard line as it ran out of time outs.

Thus, Quincy's record dropped to a disappointing 2-7 and it has only the North game left in which to salvage something from the frustrating season. Regardless of the team's record, a win over North makes up for past defeats.

"I felt we played our best game both offensively and defensively against Brookline," Conroy said. "We outplayed them and had two long touchdown runs [by Preston Carroll and Paul Vespaziani] called back by penalties. I thought we would go off at halftime with a 7-6 lead but they hit on a 64-yard pass play with only seconds left to take 12-7 lead."

Defensive Coach Bud Mosher singled out Jake Columbus and Paul DiCristofaro for outstanding defensive performances while Ted Wiedemann, Paul Ferris and Jeff Little, playing his first game of the season, also sparked on defense.

As far as the offense was concerned, Conroy hailed Vespaziani, who scored both touchdowns and ran for 80 yards in addition to having a 40-yard touchdown run nullified, and Carroll, who gained 86 yards and had a 60-yard touchdown run voided. He also lauded quarterback Jimmy Forrester for a fine effort.

Quincy scored first early in the game on Vespaziani's 13-yard run. Carroll kicked the extra point.

Brookline scored later in the period on a six-yard run by Peter Piatelli, but the try for points failed.

Just when it appeared like a Quincy 7-6 lead at the half, Paul Kelleher took a long pass from Steve Ewenowski and scored to complete a 64-yard play.

The Presidents regained the lead in the third period when, following the recovery of a Brookline fumble, Vespaziani scored again from the eight.

At the start of the final period Larry DeSantis capped a 58-yard Brookline drive and scored to put Brookline ahead, 18-13.

Quincy wouldn't quit and drove all the way from its 35 to the Brookline four where it bogged down. A fourth down pass went incomplete in the final second.

Quincy gained a net of 167 yards rushing to 179 for Brookline. The Presidents added 102 yards passing with seven for 19 and Brookline picked up 83 yards with three for seven. Quincy had 13 first downs, Brookline 10.

Mary Pratt Looks To Future

A year ago Mary Pratt, one of New England's outstanding women athletes and coaches, piloted the Central varsity and junior varsity teams to the Quincy Junior High basketball championships as the sport was introduced in the junior high schools.

This fall Mary started out as coach of the Central teams but, due to a late new appointment in the physical education department at Central, Mary felt it "best for all concerned if I took on the assignment at Atlantic-North as Mary Younie, who coached there last season, decided to devote her time to gymnastics."

As a result Miss Pratt got a late start at Atlantic and after the first few games she said, "I am still getting to know the players and it will take time for me to install my system."

"We were handicapped by the small turnout of ninth graders, six to be exact, so it was a struggle for the varsity team," she said.

"The situation whereby ninth graders must return to Atlantic for sports competition is far from ideal, but a situation which will have to exist while Atlantic continues to house just seventh and eighth graders and the ninth graders go to the high school."

Mary had only two players with experience on her varsity team, Eileen O'Sullivan and Lisa Sullivan. Donna Shea had played some jayvee ball last year and alternated between the front and back court. Helena Lawlor, Celeste Buckley and Debbie Brennan were playing for the first time and Lydia Robinson, up from the eighth grade, played well at center despite her lack of experience. She used her height to good advantage on the boards and developed into a good scorer.

Debbie Graham provided the offensive power to the junior varsity squad along with Debbie Sherlock, a fine seventh grade player. Other good looking seventh graders on the squad were Mary Shea, Susan Murray, Nancy Bell and Sharon Cochran.

Other seventh graders included Sheila Beck, Sandra MacDougall, Beth Rooney, Robin Graham, Laura Adams, Jill Sweeney and Dorothy Peterson.

Eighth graders on the squad, who will be depended upon to help out the varsity next season, were Debbie Sanderson, Jean Duddy, Lisa Henderson, Sue Curry, Cindy Duggan, Jean MacDonald, Patricia McKeough, Marie Flaherty and Betty Murphy.

Incidentally, Central repeated as varsity champions this year but Broadmeadows won the jayvee crown.

Provost, Morton Shine For Holy Cross

John Provost, former Quincy High standout, and Bobby Morton, former North Quincy quarterback, continue to sparkle for the Holy Cross football team.

Last Saturday Provost returned a punt 56 yards to Villanova's 13 to set up Morton's touchdown pass to Dave Quehl in Holy Cross' 10-6 win, evening its record at 4-4-1.

Later Provost came up with his 26th career pass interception to end a Villanova threat and move to within three of the national interception record.

Provost a week earlier had set a national mark for yards returned via interceptions and had already set a new Holy Cross mark for interceptions. This was his ninth of the season.

Two other players who have performed well for the Crusaders but have not received the recognition of Provost and Morton are Paul Picarski, former Quincy star who, like his former Presidents' teammate is a defensive back, and Joe Morrissey, a former North tackle.

Girls Hockey

Vissa Wins Opener, Cox, Quincy In Tie

The girls' division of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association opened its season last week with Vissa and Sons defeating Tiffany, 7-2, and C. A. Cox and Team Quincy playing to a 2-2 tie at the Youth Arena.

Lisa Norling had the hat trick and also had two assists to pace Vissa. Mary Ellen Riordan had two goals and Paula Constat and Tricia Sullivan one each. Riordan had three assists.

Kevin Connors is the league's top scorer with 51 points, followed by Ron Donovan, 36;

Colleen McAuliffe, Kathy Flynn and Michele Schafer one apiece.

Mary Wiedemann had both Tiffany goals and Sue Rugg had an assist.

Eileen Marr scored both Team Quincy goals unassisted. Linda FitzGerald and Jeanne Rathgeb scored for Cox with Shawn O'Leary having two assists, Rathgeb and FitzGerald one each.

Bucks Leading Snug Harbor Loop

The Bucks lead the Quincy Recreation Dept. Snug Harbor Basketball League with a 5-1 record, followed by Trotters, 3-3, and Celts, 1-5.

The league is directed by Bob Uhlar and Brian Buckley.

Apaches, Elks Tie 12-12 In Youth Football

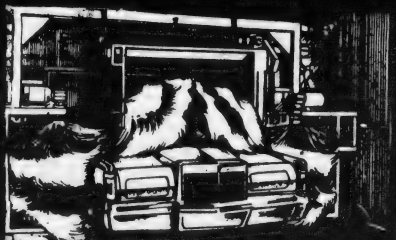

The North Quincy Apaches and West Quincy Elks of the Quincy Youth Football League played to a 12-12 tie Sunday in a post-season game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Rick Gale scored two touchdowns for the Apaches on the most spectacular plays of the game. He returned the second half kickoff 95 yards and was on the receiving end of a Jim Halloran pass for a 55-yard touchdown play.

The Elks played their steadiest ball of the season and twice caught the Apaches with end sweeps. Mike Mannai scored the first touchdown on a 15-yard sweep and Bob Grant tied the score with a 60-yard gallop.

Raider's Gallant Battle Just Not Enough

For the first time in five years North Quincy's football team will take a losing record into the Quincy game and the only objectives for the Raiders are to defeat Quincy for the fourth year in a row and even their record at 5-5.

North, which had excellent records under Ralph Frazier the last four years, started off this season in impressive fashion but faltered during the past four weeks and has a four-game losing streak going into the Thanksgiving Day classic.

Last week North put up a stubborn battle against Brockton's powerful Suburban League leaders and defending Super Bowl champions, but dropped a 34-13 decision at Rocky Marciano Stadium in Brockton. The Boxers are the only unbeaten team in the league and face a strong Waltham team, with only one loss, on Thanksgiving.

"They just had too much offense," Frazier said. "They have some outstanding runners and a good passing game. I felt we could move the ball against them and we did but they just had too much and controlled the ball too long for us.

"They scored on the very first play from scrimmage but we came right back and the score was 7-7 at the half. In spite of the score, I feel our boys did another fine job."

Although they didn't want to say much, the North coaches were more than a little upset at Brockton calling a timeout with only 21 seconds to play and throwing a pass for another touchdown.

Bruce Shea was singled out for an outstanding defensive job and Tom Callahan was also lauded for his defensive performance.

Mark Reale was hailed for "his best game of the year," while Jack Hatfield, Rich Marino and quarterback Mike Meehan also were praised for their work on offense. For the second game in a row North was forced to play without its outstanding running back, Brian Doherty, who is a question mark for the Quincy finale.

On the first play from scrimmage Phil Johnson raced 60 yards for a Brockton score, but North came right back to tie it at 7-7 when Marino capped a long drive with a 10-yard run. Paul Doherty's kick tied it. [Pete Colombo had kicked the first of his four conversions after the Brockton touchdown].

Brockton drove for another touchdown the first time it had the ball in the second half, Mike Delancy scoring from the 15. North was forced to punt and the Boxers went on to another touchdown with Brian Altimas scoring on a 10-yard pass from Colombo.

Brockton made it 27-7 early in the final period on Johnson's 36-yard run.

North then came back with a good drive of its own and Meehan hit Reale with a 12-yard pass for the touchdown. Then came Brockton's unpopular final touchdown, a pass from Colombo to Bill Burchard for nine yards.

Brockton ground out 364 yards on the ground and added 123 yards passing, while North had 148 yards rushing and 78 through the air.

Junior Soccer

A-N, Broadmeadows Share Title

Defending champion Atlantic-North shares the 1974 Quincy Junior High soccer title with Broadmeadows as both teams finished with 5-1-2 records.

Sterling finished third with a 3-2-3 mark, followed by Central, 2-4-2, and Point, 0-7-1.

The final two games of the season wound up in scoreless ties, Atlantic-North vs. Sterling and Broadmeadows vs. Point.

Broadmeadows was named to play the top players from the other teams in the annual all-star game because of scoring more goals than Atlantic-North [12-10] and BM was the winner, 2-0, on two goals by Bill Norton, who was named the league's Most Valuable Player.

The all-stars included Peter DiCenzo, Carmen Repucci, Jack Decelle, Peter Mullarkey and Pompeio Cardarelli of Sterling; Joe DiVello, Peter Ashmanskas, Peter Bourikas, Brian Donovan and Larry Laing of Central; Robert Reed, John Cooney, James Conboy, Ed Beck and Fran Ferrara of Atlantic-North, and Randy Nord, Dave Bann, Chris Goulart, Robert Parsloe and Tom Hulderman of Point.

The Most Valuable Player of the all-star game was DiCenzo. The team MVPs were Steve Ayer and Steve Currier, BM; Reed and Cooney, Atlantic-North; DiCenzo and Mullarkey, Sterling; DiVello and Bourikas, Central; Nord and Goulart, Point.

Norton led the league scorers with 10 goals, followed by Bourikas with six, DiCenzo with four, Mike Colon of Atlantic-North, Peter Martin of A-N, Mike Marks of A-N, John Connolly of BM, Nord of Point and Joe Zimmerman of Sterling, each with two. Fourteen players scored a goal each.

medal because of a fine display of sportsmanship.

Laura stopped to help a Brockton girl, who broke her ankle, instead of continuing to run, thus losing her chance for a medal. The North runner was commended for her unselfish act.

Petracca Winds Up Brilliant Season

North Quincy's outstanding cross country runner, junior Bart Petracca, wound up a brilliant season when he placed fourth in the Eastern Mass. Division Two meet over the Franklin Park course.

Petracca, who set five course records this fall and lost only one dual meet in which he set one of his records, finished 12 seconds behind winner Don Finelli of Revere with a timing of 15:02.

Bart received a medal for placing fourth and teammate Artie Barrett was also a medal winner for finishing 14th. The Raiders finished fourth in the team competition among 30 schools.

Earlier last week Petracca finished second to Weymouth

North's Dan Doyle, only runner to defeat him in dual meet competition, in the Suburban League all-league meet at Brockton.

North tied for fourth place with Newton, while Quincy was ninth.

Receiving medals were Petracca, Artie Barrett, who finished 17th, and Mark Canavan for placing 18th.

In girls' competition, North, in its first year, placed third. Roberta Mahn received a medal for finishing 16th, and Laura Snook lost out in her bid for a Thanksgiving Day Preview?

Quincy, North Sophs In Battle Saturday

The Quincy and North Quincy varsity teams have losing records and five and four-game losing streaks respectively going into the Thanksgiving Day game, but the sophomore teams have outstanding records and their annual game Saturday at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium shapes up as one of the best in the series.

Ted Sadowski's North sophs officially have a 7-0 record going into the game, while Mark Conroy's Quincy team has a 7-2 record, has won five in a row and seven of the last eight.

North's season got off to a confusing start. Due to a schedule mixup, both North and Milton showed up to play Hingham. As a result, the three teams met in a jamboree format with North losing to Hingham, 6-0, then defeating Milton, 8-0, playing two periods against each.

After that foulup, Sadowski's team rolled over B.C. High, Weymouth North, Randolph, Weymouth South, Newton North, Brockton and Waltham.

Quincy opened with a 14-0 loss to Dedham. The young Presidents then defeated Somerville, 12-0; and Weymouth South, 6-0; lost to Hingham, 22-8; and defeated Waltham, 12-0; Newton North, 14-8; Scituate, 14-0; Weymouth North, 14-0, and Brockton, 19-0.

Scituate, incidentally, was unbeaten going into the Quincy game.

"With Mike Adams and George Wallace doing most of the ball carrying behind the blocking of Bill McIntyre, our ground game is balanced by the passing of alternate quarterbacks, Brian Donaghey and Dan Cuddy, to receivers Jerry Mackenzie and Jim Frye," Sadowski said.

"Our pony backfield of Dennis Doherty, Mike Smith, Bill White and Mike Nolan provide additional offensive punch."

The offensive line from tackle to tackle includes Harry Knudsen, Steve Bonoli, Tom Nee, Dan Butts and Keith Lindberg with able replacements in Joe Stockless, Mark Nagle and Jerry Dana.

North's defense has been stingy in giving up points with the heavy work being done by Chuck Killeen, John Ryan, John Baldeck and Ed Hanrahan, backed up by Richard Kennedy, Steve Bell, Paul Petrillo and Frank McGinnis.

Completing the defensive perimeter are Arthur Berton, Ed McElaney and Kim Doyle. Capable defensive reserves are Mike Crevier, Steve Sheehan and Mark Wentzell.

"This sophomore group has remained a closely-knit unit with excellent team spirit throughout the season and the team has provided the varsity with sturdy opposition during practices," Sadowski said. "We are looking forward to a good turnout of parents and students for the Quincy game."

"Most of our games have been close and several were come-from-behind wins," Conroy said. "Defense is again a strong point. Leading the defense are linebackers John Milani and Mickey Thorley."

"It is difficult to single out any one defensive player, they are all for-one and that is why we have a strong defense."

Offensively Conroy believes his team came together as a team in the final game with Brockton.

"We moved the ball well all year but in certain key situations weren't able to put the ball in the end zone," Mark said. "Against Brockton the offense, engineered by quarterback Dennis Walter, put several time-consuming drives together which ended with touchdowns."

Conroy pointed out he has 48 players on his squad who are eagerly looking forward to Saturday's game. The young Presidents have plenty of respect for North and Conroy sees a fine game ahead.

"The two objectives of our team lead to one main goal," Conroy continued. "We try to play every boy that comes out for the squad and, naturally, we want to win. There is no sense in working out every day unless a player is rewarded in some way. The boys realize this and they go out every Friday with that attitude. They work hard all week, together for one cause."

The series has been spiced by some fine games and last year's was one of the most exciting. North had an 8-0 lead midway in the final period but a low pass from center was dropped by the Raiders' punter and Quincy had a first down on the 10. It scored on the next play and tied it at 8-8, a real toughie for Sadowski and his players.

Two years ago Quincy squeezed out a 10-6 win and the young Presidents have a big lead in the series, as Quincy's Dave Burke had many undefeated seasons before moving up to varsity backfield coach last year.

The game pits a veteran, Sadowski, now in his 17th year as a North assistant and sophomore coach most of that time, against a young coach, Conroy, son of varsity Coach Hank Conroy. Mark is in his second year as a coach.

HOLDING COURT

How to control your emotions

By ED COLLINS
Copley News Service

Do you get violent when you play? Many people are great rallyers but can't play when it counts. They get too emotional.

Tennis is a difficult game to play with overly excited. Your body doesn't respond. Although your head knows what to do, your obstinate arms and legs won't listen.

Is it possible to force yourself to relax and keep your poise? Sure it is. Athletes in all sports have subtle tricks to remind themselves to stay relaxed. Here are some things you can do to relax and play up to your potential in tennis.

(1) Don't serve the ball until you are ready. Your opponent can't do anything until you serve the ball, so take your time. Calm yourself by bouncing the ball a few times before starting. Take a deep breath and think the ball to the target.

(2) Relax your grip. A "sawdust" grip is a major cause of tennis elbow and a characteristic of a nervous game. When serving check to see that you are allowing the grip to breathe. During the point you can develop the automatic reflex of turning the racquet once in your hand between shots.

(3) Relax your legs. A tennis player "bounces" between shots. After he hits the ball, he recovers his court position and bounces gracefully on the balls of his feet. This action reminds him to relax and helps his mobility.

(4) Shrug your shoulders. Before serving and returning serve, check your nervousness by relaxing your shoulders and neck. Think jello.

(5) Don't watch your opponent. Don't become paranoid anticipating your opponent's next move. Many inexperienced players habitually take their eyes off the ball to see where their opponent is. Watch the ball!

Deadline 9 Days Away!

Winning Heritage Poster To Be Historic 'Cover Girl'

The winning poster in the $1,500 Quincy Heritage contests will become the front cover of a special souvenir section in The Quincy Sun.

Thus, the winner will not only receive the top prize of $300 in that category but his or her entry will become part of Quincy's history, too.

The Sun, in cooperation with Quincy Heritage plans to publish a special supplement with a listing and stories of the events scheduled for the next two years for Quincy's celebration of its own 350th anniversary and the nation's Bicentennial.

The special souvenir issue will be designed so that Quincy residents and businesses will want to keep it as a handy reference to what's coming up during the two-year celebration.

The winning slogan, as previously announced, will become an auto bumper sticker and win its author the top prize of $300 in that category.

The poster and slogan contests, co-sponsored by the Quincy Savings Bank and The Quincy Sun, in conjunction with Quincy Heritage, have as their theme: "Quincy's Pride: Patriots, Presidents and Possibilities".

Deadline for submitting entries is Nov. 30 - just nine days away. Time is running out. If you're planning to enter, you better get started.

The slogan must be in eight words or less. The poster must be drawn in black ink on white card or paper 11 by 17 inches. Theme for both contests is "Quincy's Pride: Patriots, Presidents and Possibilities."

Recent slogans received include:

For each contest there is a $300 first prize, a $100 second prize, a $50 third prize, four $25 prizes and 20 $10 prizes.

That's 48 prizes in all: two $300, two $100, two $50, eight $25 and 40 $10. - a total of $1,500.

Two panels of judges have been appointed to select the 48 winners who will share the $1,500 in prizes. A cross-section of the community, they represent professional expertise, civic interest, education, men, women and youth. The 10 judges, five for each contest are:

POSTER: Robert Brandt, executive vice-president and general manager S. Gunnar Myrbeck & Co.; Joseph Donahue, Quincy architect; Ronald Iacobucci of 10 Hyde St., Quincy, a student at Boston College High School; Walter Lunsman, director of Arts and Humanities for the Quincy public school system and Mrs. Annette Paglierani, member of the Quincy Art Association.

SLOGAN: Rev. Alicia Corea, Houghs Neck Congregational Church; School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Crendon, Martin McKeon, MBTA Assistant Director Community Affairs; Thomas Nutley, Boston Gas Co. public affairs specialist and George D. Reardon, president South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile entries for both the slogan and poster contests continue to stream in. The winning slogan will become an auto bumper sticker.

City Receives $299,683 In Federal Manpower Funds

Quincy has received $299,683 in federal manpower funds for use in public service employment, Mayor Walter Hannon announces.

The allocation is part of a total grant of $937,689 for Quincy and 10 other towns under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The funds will be available to these areas after the first of the year to place individuals in public service jobs in each of the communities involved.

Hannon said the funding should help to alleviate unemployment in Quincy as well as the South Shore area, and is a positive step toward opening up jobs for area residents.

According to Paul Ricca, Director of Quincy's Office of Manpower Affairs, the Title II funds will be used to place individuals who qualify under the guidelines of the CETA program in city, town and local non-profit agencies.

The money, however, is not expected to be available until after Jan. 1, Ricca said. Applications for employment by those who qualify for the program should be directed to the Division of Employment Security on Hancock Street after the first of the year.

'Cheaper' Turkey Dinner, Family Reunions ,Church Services, N-Q Football Game Holiday Highlights

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy will celebrate Thanksgiving with church services, family reunions, turkey dinners and many will take in the traditional Quincy-North Quincy High School football classic.

Happily, the turkeys gracing Thanksgiving tables will cost 15 to 20 cents per pound less - LESS not more - than last year's birds.

Churches throughout the city will conduct services Thanksgiving Eve or Thanksgiving Day.

Wollaston Congregational Church will observe the Union Thanksgiving Eve Service Wednesday at 8 p.m., while the First Baptist Church of Wollaston will celebrate a Thanksgiving Communion Service at 10 a.m. and a Union Thanksgiving Service at 8 p.m., both Thanksgiving eve in the chapel.

St. Joseph's Church and Quincy Point Congregational Church will celebrate their second annual Ecumenical Thanksgiving Eve service Wednesday at 8 p.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Washington St., Quincy Point.

Rev. Philip J. Mayher, Jr. will preach the sermon entitled "The Grateful Heart."

The Envoys, a musical group from Rockaway, N.J. will present a concert of gospel and sacred songs at Glad Tidings Church, 158 Washington St., Quincy Thanksgiving Day at 7 p.m. The Envoys, hailing from Wisconsin, Idaho, Michigan and New Jersey, travel more than 100,000 miles each year in a custom-built bus. They have presented concerts in Alaska and Canada.

Catholic churches in Quincy will celebrate Mass Thanksgiving Day and several churches will conduct Thanksgiving eve services.

Thanksgiving 1974 finds the country plagued by inflation, "stagflation", and recession. Food prices continue to spiral and Quincy's City Council urged citizens to boycott sugar. A sugarless Thanksgiving Day will mean fewer mince and apple pies for families, fewer candied sweet potatoes swimming in brown sugar glaze, but in the long run, perhaps an earnest, full-fledged sugar boycott will lower the exorbitant price of sugar, giving citizens something to be truly thankful about.

A crowd of some 13,000 is expected to bundle up Thanksgiving Day morning, forgetting financial woes, to cheer their favorite team in the 42nd football clash between Quincy High and North Quincy High at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Kick-off time is 10 a.m.

Three great ways to recapture the past.

Santa To Arrive Saturday By Helicopter

Jolly, twinkling-eyed Santa Claus will arrive in Quincy Saturday via helicopter, landing on the roof of the parking garage in the Ross Parking Area at 12 noon.

He will climb down an aerial ladder from the garage roof to be greeted by city officials and a bevy of Disneyland characters.

The Fire Department ladder truck will then transport Santa through the downtown shopping area, escorting him to the Rite Aid store where he will make a brief visit.

This year Santa will be on the move in Quincy, offering fire engine rides to children during the week or two before Christmas.

Children can begin to compose their annual letters to Santa Claus, for the traditional Santa's mail boxes will dot Hancock St. Monday, Dec. 2. The boxes will be located at Sears, Child World, W.T. Grant and Rite Aid.

Over 70 Units And Floats

Quarter-Million Expected At Christmas Parade Sunday

More than 70 marching units and floats will participate in Quincy's annual Christmas Festival Parade Sunday with an expected quarter-million or more spectators on hand to watch.

The parade will leave Wollaston Center at 1 p.m. and proceed up Hancock St. to the Ross Parking area in downtown Quincy.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, is one of the biggest Christmas parades in the east.

Theme of this year's parade is "Happiness Is..."

The 25 floats, carrying out this theme, and the approximated 50 marching and musical units will compete for a number of prizes.

A total of 10 youth groups and 10 adult groups will compete for the $1,000 grand prize awarded to the best overall youth or adult float. The grand-prize winner will also receive the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy.

There will also be prizes of $500, $250, $150 and $100 in both categories. First-prize winner in the youth division will also receive the Grand Marshall Trophy, while the first-place winner in the adult division will receive the Festival Committee Trophy.

Three commercial floats will compete for the QCBPA Trophy. The Mayor's Trophy will be awarded to the best Quincy float.

Judging of the floats will begin at 11 a.m. in the First National parking lot and continue until 12:30 p.m. Floats will be judged again during the parade from a stand in front of McIntyre Mall. Both assembly area and parade judging will count 50 per cent.

Judging will be based on adherence to parade theme, originality, use of materials and color and overall appearance. Overall appearance pertains to the covering of the entire float, giving the look of one floating unit with no separate prime mover.

Each organization is asked to have a representative at the main reviewing stand in front of St. John's Church after the parade to hear the announcement of the winners.

Leading the parade will be "Leapin' Lena", a specialty car sponsored by the Patriot Ledger, and the Quincy Police Color Guard.

Rounding out the parade will be The Quincy Renegades and, of course, Santa Claus, dressed in a bright red suit and high, black boots.

Nine high school bands, including Quincy and North Quincy, will compete for a $200 first prize, a $100 second prize and a $50 third prize, all provided by Hancock Bank.

Class A Drum and Bugle Corps groups will compete for similar prize money provided by RIGHTS 'N' WRONGS First serving goes to guest of honor

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin, At a sit-down dinner when a maid serves, I say the women are always served first. My mother says the guest of honor receives the first plate and the other guests are served in order. If I'm right she has promised to buy me a mink stroller. If she is right she gets to invite four people for a sit-down dinner at my house. — L. Stevensen

Dear L., Brush up your old coat and start polishing your silver! Your mother is right.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, My husband and I were week-long guests in my sister's home. We planned to start driving home about 10 o'clock in the morning. While we were packing, she came in and stripped the beds. She even asked my husband to help her turn the mattress. We felt as though we were being pushed out of the house. My sister is efficient, but don't you think this was a bit too much? — Home again in Indiana

Dear Home again, If the laundryman (laundryperson) was to arrive within the hour your sister should have explained the situation to you. If she was going to pop them in her home washer she should have waited until your car was at least out of sight.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, My daughter and her first grade teacher have taken an intense dislike for each other. The principal refuses to transfer her to another first grade room. Should I enter her in another school? — No name

Dear No name, Are you sure of your facts? If so, WHY does the teacher seem to dislike your child? If it is true, it probably won't be the first time your child lacks rapport with others. While we all want to be liked, part of the growing up process means being able to cope with the rest of the human race. Help your small daughter to be cooperative and helpful. Has she had a physical examination? Be sure her hearing and vision are up to par. By all means discuss the problem with her teacher so you have both sides. Never criticize the teacher in front of the child. As the school year rolls on I believe your daughter will become adjusted. Remember, the first year is the hardest.

Dear Mrs. Tobin, We will be in Rome for the holidays. We are not Catholics but friends who are have asked us to take them to be blessed. May we? — The Robinsons

Dear Robinsons, Of course.

Questions on etiquette may be mailed to Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Savalas warm but impatient

By JOANNE B. ROMINE
Copley News Service

Usually the viewing public comes to know a television star by the role he or she plays. Many times, in fact most of the time, the actor or actress is entirely different in private life. Such is not the case with Telly Savalas.

After analyzing his handwriting, it is difficult to determine if the role of Kojak was made for Savalas, or Savalas was made for the role — they're a perfect match.

Kojak is a tough, hard-nosed cop... fierce in his determination to fight crime... shrewd, analytical and perceptive. He is a mass of intense, smoldering emotion, ready to lash out at the indignities of man, yet he can also be warm, sympathetic and understanding with those less fortunate than himself.

Who loves ya?

Be Careful Buying A Ring

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I bought a ring for my girlfriend from a buddy of mine. He said that it had been his aunt's. He told me that it was gold with rubies and diamonds set on the top. It was a very pretty ring so I paid him

$180 and took it home. That evening I gave it to my girl and she loved it. Well, she loved it until the next morning when it turned her finger green. She was really mad at me so I explained how I had gotten it. We took the ring to a jeweler and he informed us that it was a cheap imitation set with glass stones. Can I get my money back from this creep or am I out the hundred dollars?

Jim

Dear Jim:

You could see a lawyer about retrieving your money but he would probably charge you another hundred. If you have learned from this, all is not lost. Experience is still the best teacher.

EXERCISE AND A DOG'S LIFE

There are similarities between man and dog and that might add importance to the experiment being conducted at the University of Mississippi. Quite by accident, researchers there discovered that sedentary living caused fat buildup in dogs. The experiment was originally designed to evaluate the effects of exercise on the formation of atherosclerosis in animals fed a diet high in fats. Ten animals, matched in size, were fed a diet high in cholesterol and fat along with a balanced dog food. Five of them were exercised for an hour a day on a treadmill. Atherosclerosis never developed, but fatty degeneration of the livers of the non-exercised dogs was discovered - three of the five sedentary dogs became jaundiced and died before the year of tests was completed. The livers of the exercised dogs were essentially normal. Investigators believe the findings may also apply to humans.

Answers to Turkey Questions

by Marvyn Logan

Q. What is the advantage in removing some of the leg tendons in a turkey?

A. This makes carving the leg much easier. The rich dark meat can be removed in generous slices when most of the leg tendons have been pulled.

Q. Where can you find directions for carving a turkey?

A. You can find step-by-step directions along with illustrations on the gilet bags of all Butterball Swift's Premium Turkeys. Carving a turkey is easy after reading these concise instructions. Fun, too! Complete roasting directions are on the reverse side of the gilet bag.

Q. How do you know what size turkey to buy?

A. Allow 1 1/2 lbs. per person of the regular turkey and 1 1/2 to 2 lbs. per person of the already stuffed turkey. This gives generous servings for the first meal and enough left to combine with cooked noodles, rice or macaroni and a sauce for a nutritious next-day meal. There may be enough, too, for sandwiches and extra nibbling. It is wise use of time, energy and money.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Use this slower paced week to finish work in progress and recuperate energies. Business interests can be served by a behind-the-scenes effort. Don't listen to gossip. Travel now could be more expensive than planned.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — You are extremely creative now and need time alone to develop your ideas. Designing gifts or cards may interest you. Social events are fulfilling so take time out to relax and have fun, but don't go to extremes.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Be especially realistic and practical now. The tendency is to risk security on the hope of a "killing." Use patience and sound logic. Honors or promotions are a possibility — the pay-off for past efforts. Guard health.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE Reynolds film glorifies crooks

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Burt Reynolds' new picture, "The Longest Yard," nicely showcases his considerable charm but it's a shame, since he portrays a car thief, an exploiter of women and a former pro football great who sold out a game.

In fact, "The Longest Yard" is a film of the genre of "The Sting" and "Paper Moon," an entertaining movie which keeps the audience cheering for a set of crooks.

However, the crooks in the new Reynolds film, as opposed to those in the other two pictures mentioned, aren't just con men. They are murderers, arsonists and rapists, a thoroughly sordid crew, and I think there's something wrong with a movie which makes heroes of these.

I also object to the fact that every single character in the picture who represents the law is a sadist, a moron or both.

Don't get me wrong. I'm a Burt Reynolds' fan and enjoyed much of the picture in spite of myself. And that proves its danger.

Next time I hope Burt will make a film glorifying a good guy.

Anita Loos says her lawyers are considering two offers to convert her movietown memoirs, "Kiss Hollywood Goodbye," into a film with Cher Bono, perhaps, playing Miss Loos.

"Several actresses have been suggested to play me," the perky writer and lady of affairs says, "but I was amused when someone suggested Cher, because we are so completely different. But then Carol Channing played Lorelei Lee."

Although a jury acquitted Fatty Arbuckle of liability in the death of Virginia Rappe, Miss Loos says without equivocation and in print that the comic killed her.

"Of course he did," she insists when questioned about her debatable declaration.

She adds that neither Arbuckle's widow nor anyone else has protested the reference in her book to the Rappe tragedy, although she has received a complaint from Mabel Norman's nephew regarding her remarks about his aunt.

"Everybody knew Mabel died of drugs," says Miss Loos, "and I certainly knew it because my brother was her doctor."

"But, after my book came out, a man called identifying himself as her nephew and complained, 'My aunt never took anything stronger than an aspirin.'"

"Now, of course, in the play 'Mack and Mabel,' they have her dying of drugs on stage. I wonder whether David Merrick's heard from the nephew."

"Anyway, lawyers went over my book with a fine-toothed comb before it was published."

As to the report that Paramount will make a movie about Clark Gable and Carol Lombard with Burt Reynolds and Faye Dunaway in the leading roles, Miss Loos, a close friend of the late stars, observes, "Burt has Clark's animal magnetism, but nobody has Clark's dimples. As for Lombard, there has never been anyone like her. It's seldom that you find a beautiful woman who's also a comedienne."

Market Report

Count Your Proteins And Save Food Money

With the price of food in this country rising to unconscionable levels, and the inadequate supply of food in other countries, we have a double reason to re-think our food-buying and eating habits, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture points out.

Our emphasis for years has been on rich and extravagant foods, and generally speaking we eat too much, says the MDA.

We have too many fat people, just as we have too many fat cars in the United States. Neither condition is necessary.

The average man needs only nine ounces of protein - meat, fish, poultry - per day for full energy and good health. Yet the average American is likely to consume that much protein just at dinner, and to expect more at breakfast and lunch.

De-emphasize meats and sweets, says the MDA, and save money. Moreover, there will be more to go around, less pressure on supplies, and a resultant fall in prices.

In short, we consume more of everything than we need.

Homemakers will have to learn to plan menus around vegetables in season, and to change their cooking habits. More rice, beans, grains and eggs - and less meat, fish and poultry - will keep us healthier both in body and pocketbook.

When such items as potatoes, carrots, onions and turnips are reasonable, put them together in a lamb stew. When eggs are down, serve an omelet or a quiche, using chopped leftover meats to enhance it. Try some unusual recipes with inexpensive foods - for instance, apple-stuffed acorn squash, or spinach soufflé.

Nobody believed our driving habits could change when fuel prices began to rise, but they have. Our eating habits can change, too, under the pressure of exorbitant costs.

Surely it's time to give as much thought to protein-per-day, just as we already have to miles-per-gallon.

other activities of interest to youth.

Plans are now being made for a December vacation program including trips, overnight activities, sports programs and opportunities to meet children from other Jewish Community Centers.

Bookmobile Shows Major Circulation Increase In Squantum

City library director Warren E. Watson reports a major circulation increase with the use of the library's Bookmobile in Squantum.

On its first day of operation, Oct. 18, 162 books were circulated, "more than an entire week's business at the Squantum branch," said Watson.

On Oct. 25, the Bookmobile circulated 242 books while on Nov. 1, the library checked out 235 volumes. On Nov. 8 it went to 253 and on Nov. 15, circulation was 241.

"In effect the Bookmobile now regularly does as much business in one afternoon as the branch has been doing all week," commented Watson.

Watson said he believes that the bookmobile's high visibility and the convenience offered to the residents are the reasons why it is so effective.

Having Their Say On The Big Question :

To Build Or Not To Build A New North Quincy H.S.?

SUPERINTENDENT of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon calls the present North Quincy High School "inadequate to serve as a contemporary facility." The solution to the problem, according to Creedon is to build a new North Quincy High School.

A SEA OF PEOPLE estimated at more than 1,000 packed the Quincy Vocational Technical School gym last Thursday to witness the public hearing on the proposed new North Quincy High School at the old Squantum Naval Air Station Site.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Frank Anselmo agreed with Dr. Creedon that facilities at North must be updated but disagreed with Creedon's solution. Anselmo advocates the building of an addition to North Quincy High and Atlantic Junior High.

A STUDENT'S VIEWPOINT is expressed by 12th grader Joseph Carroll who spoke first-hand of the "inadequacies" of the present North Quincy High School.

OPPOSITION SPEAKER -- Edwin O'Neill, retired Quincy High School teacher, explains his reasons for opposing construction of a new North Quincy High School during the public hearing held before the city council.

AUDIENCE REACTION is mixed as some cheer and others frown in response to a comment made by a hearing speaker.

Quincy Court Starts Alcohol Education, Treatment Program

An alcohol education and treatment program started Tuesday for Quincy District Court area announces Judge Robert S. Prince, presiding justice.

The program will be offered to offenders whose alcohol related problems have been responsible for bringing them before the court. It will consist of a 16-hour alcohol education program to be conducted by the South Shore Alcoholism Council, and a 12-hour rehabilitation program to be supervised by the South Shore Alcoholism Clinic Without Walls. The education sessions will be given at the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, 37 Washington St., Quincy. William Schales is Director of the Council. The rehabilitation program will be conducted at the South Shore Mental Health Center, 77 Parkway, Quincy. Dr. Richard S. Makman, Physician-In-Charge of the Court Clinic, has been working closely with Judge Prince and Robert Campbell and David Scott of the Quincy Court Probation Department in designing the program.

Much of the experience gained in a pilot program conducted last July has been incorporated in the new program. Six of 10 persons successfully completed the pilot program. Four of the six markedly changed their attitudes toward alcohol usage. The pilot program was conducted by Mary Vallier, R.N. of the Clinic and Ed Girling of the Council.

The fees for the program will be based on the fines, which would be assessed in court.

Screening is done on Friday at the Court Clinic, and the people who have been brought before the court because of alcohol-related problems will be referred to the program.

Powers Seeks Study Of Building Setback Requirements

Ward 5 Councillor Warren A. Powers has requested the Department of Planning and Community Development to study the lack of building setback requirements in certain zoning categories.

Buildings can now be constructed to the street line in zones unrestricted by a setback requirement. Powers noted that such construction to the street line creates "hazardous conditions at street intersections by blocking the visibility of traffic."

Asking for the recommendations of the Department of Planning and Community Development, Powers said:

"A required setback could provide an area for planting and landscaping to enhance the setting of any new construction."

Walkway Plaque Unveiled Late James F. McCormick Honored At Dedication

The walkway connecting Quincy Vocational Technical School and Quincy High School was dedicated Sunday in memory of the late James F. McCormick Sr., former vice-chairman of the Quincy School Committee.

Hailed as "the father of Quincy Vocational Technical School", Mr. McCormick was a school committeeman for 13 years.

During the afternoon ceremony, both Charles T. Sweeney, vice-chairman of the school committee, and Mayor Walter J. Hannon praised McCormick's contributions to education in Quincy.

Present at the dedication ceremonies were Mrs. Nancy McCormick, wife of the late school committeeman, and Lori McCormick, five-year-old granddaughter of the late McCormick.

The Quincy High School String Quartet played selections and the Quincy High School Vocal Ensemble performed "America The Beautiful".

Following an invocation by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Congregation, School Committeeman John J. Sullivan, a personal friend of Mr. McCormick's, unveiled a relief of McCormick placed on a plaque. Inscribed on the plaque the following tribute:

"In grateful appreciation for the leadership and foresight in the development of education in Quincy, this bridge is dedicated to his memory."

Rev. Jerome Doyle of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, offered the benediction.

Charles Shea Has Inside Track On City Auditor's Job

By HENRY BOSWORTH

There are a number of candidates and would-be candidates for the $23,000 city auditor's post but insiders say one man has the inside track.

A familiar name, too: Charles L. Shea.

The former Ward 1 and city council president pepper-pot is now a legislative research analyst. He was a math major at Boston College.

Shea who is also a former state representative bowed out of local politics after challenging Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa in a losing bid for the chief executive's office in the early 1960's.

Those insiders wouldn't be surprised to see Shea -- if he decides to take it -- named just before Dec. 20. That's the date when City Auditor Alexander Smith will leave on vacation although his retirement will not officially take effect until Feb. 20.

The same insiders say that City Clerk John Gillis could have had the post if he wanted it. It pays more than his job, but he passed it up anyway. Gillis had worked for the state auditor's office before becoming assistant city clerk back in the mid-50's. He then became clerk at the death of Allan Cole.

Councillor John Quinn, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, reportedly could have had the job but also was not interested.

REGARDLESS of how many open at-large seats there may be in next year's city election, Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets says he intends to stay where he is.

But, of course, it's a long way from here to election time.

Incidentally Sheets and his wife, Joanne, are expecting a little constituent in March. They now have three children, Kim 12, Jim 7, and Tad 6.

SPEAKING OF NEXT year, Mayor Walter Hannon triggered a good laugh at the Quincy Sons Of Italy dinner Saturday night celebrating the third anniversary of the lodge's new social center.

Venerable John Fantuccio presented a $10,000 check for new equipment at Quincy City Hospital and $1,000 to the mayor's charity fund. Hannon quipped that he had City Council President Arthur Tobin worried because he had told him earlier that the money was for his [Hannon's] campaign fund. Tobin, who is still being mentioned as a mayoral contender, was seated at the head table and laughed the loudest.

MAYBE YOU ENJOYED "The Godfather", but obviously the Italian people thought it was pretty lousy. Grand Venerable Louis Salvatore, speaking at the Quincy Sons of Italy dinner, had some pretty sharp words about it.

He said that what the Quincy lodge was doing -- contributing to scholarships and other charitable projects and helping their community was the true picture of Italian-Americans in this country.

"The Godfather", he said, "the hell with it!"

IN A LIGHTER moment, Salvatore said he had received a letter from Ambassador John Volpe asking him to be sure that two members of the Quincy lodge never go to Italy again. He was referring to Assistant Venerable A. Mario Salvatore and Rocco Buonvicino, recording secretary and dinner chairman.

Mario Salvatore is manager of Almy's in Hanover and Buonvicino works for the Brockton Enterprise. Both recently visited Rome with their wives.

And according to Volpe's "complaint", the pair put up two signs in front of the Italian parliament: "Read The Brockton Enterprise" and "Do Your Shopping At Almy's".

AND Rev. Joseph Valente of St. Mary's Church got one of the biggest laughs of the night when he observed: "When you put two Italians together you usually get 12 children. Put three Italians together and you get 24 political parties."

MEMO to Rev. John Graham, executive director Quincy Heritage: George Wagner, of Hollis Ave., North Quincy, a Sun reader, has a suggestion regarding the city's 350th anniversary next year and the late Billy DeWolfe.

Wagner notes that Billy was one of several Quincy-born sons and daughters who made it big in the entertainment world. He was also one of those being invited to a special "Homecoming Weekend" next year.

Wagner suggests that during this weekend, Billy's memory be honored. And also that either "Dixie" or "Blue Skies", two of the movies he appeared in be obtained and shown. In one of the two, says Wagner, Billy did his classic "Mrs. Murgatroyd" routine. He can't remember which one but suggests that it be the movie to get.

REP. JOSEPH BRETT has a memento of Election Year, 1974. A letter that reads: "Congratulations on your victory! I've tried to be non-partisan while I've been here and have enjoyed friendships on both sides of the aisle."

"I'd be less than truthful if I didn't say I'm sorry I won't be joining you in January. It was signed: Frank. [As in Francis W. Sargent]."

Wendell Woodman

Ed King's Main Fault: He Was Too Good At His Job

BOSTON -- James A. Fay, the MIT professor who journeys here from his home in Maine to preside over the Massachusetts Port Authority and parrot the wishes of Gov. Francis Sargent's non-political brain trust, was a little upset when he read the morning editions on Nov. 19.

The meeting he had hosted the night before at the Maison Robert eatery in the old city hall, in stark violation of the Open Meeting Law, was all over the front pages. Two of the three members of the Port Authority who walked out on the discussion had blabbed to the press. They had blown Mr. Fay's cover.

Anthony DeFalco and Frank Harrington had told the press that come Thursday, Edward P. King would be fired as Executive Director of the Port Authority by a vote of 4-to-3. They would vote against it, they said, and William Lyden, who also missed dessert, would be the third.

How come? Because Mrs. Ann Hershfang, who was appointed to the authority in October so she could give the Governor the last vote he needed to sink the last remaining administrator in Massachusetts, had memorized the directions on how to find Logan Airport, and it was likely she would remember them long enough to perform her duty on Thursday at the legal, bona fide meeting for which she had been carefully rehearsed.

Ed King had to go. He didn't fit in anymore. He suffered a rare malady called competence. He was too good at his job. He wasn't in the tank. Oh, he carried out the Board's policies all right, admitted Mr. Fay, but the big thing was that King was not in step philosophically.

The bond-holders are very concerned about philosophy.

Mr. Fay was upset because he had wanted to surprise the public with the good news that Governor Sargent, in a pating gesture of magnanimity, had finally succeeded in destroying the last vestige of responsible management in state government.

Mrs. Hershfang and the Ambassador from Maine were joined by Rev. Albert Salles, an anti-Port militant, and Michael Christian, an equally anonymous power in public affairs, in completing Mr. Sargent's six-year war on the New England economy.

It was a fair fight and the forces were equally divided.

On one side we had the stodgy political types -- like U.S. Senator Edward Brooke and Congresspersons like Margaret Heckler of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, and Edward P. Boland of the House Committee on Appropriations, subcommittee on public works, subcommittee on transportation, chairman of the subcommittee on space-science. And there was another nobody named Rear Admiral R.E. Rumble, USN, who was once the Commandant of the First Naval District. Salles defeated them.

The 1700 businesses affiliated with the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, a knock-kneed outfit that dabbles in economic stuff and stocks and bonds and things, tried to prop up King at the last minute, but it was no match for that dynamic political giant, Michael Christian.

The Logan City Club, representing 10,000 airport employees got some help from the 3000 members of Teamsters Local 379 in trying to defend King, but they were no match for the powerful Mrs. Hershfang, who was in good spirits following her maiden voyage to the airport last month.

The Chairman from Maine handled the mop-up work -- little brush fires of support for King that were ignited by banks, investment houses, labor unions, transportation and shipping companies, governments, the European Common Market, some bum who calls himself Chairman of the House Committee on Transportation, airlines, petroleum magnates, fleets, the United States Navy (whatever that is), and a lame-duck Governor named Sargent who took his thumb out of his mouth to say he was surprised. He said he thought King was a nice guy, but he didn't want to get involved. The blood rinsed off easily.

The Governor-elect, Michael Dukakis, didn't want to get involved either.

Where will Ed King go from here?

One rumor has it that he has already been offered a $150,000-a-year position as an airline executive. If that is so, don't be surprised if other companies move in with better offers.

Where will the Port Authority go from here?

After the voice of the people -- Fay, Salles, Christian and Hershfang -- has conducted its international talent hunt and recruited some genius from Precinct 4 of Ward 2 in Somerville for the Executive Directorship, the Port Authority will doubtless go to hell in a handbasket and the New England economy along with it.

Governor Sargent has now completed a task that seemed impossible six short years ago. He has put the last remnant of efficiency and responsible management in the sachel. He has donated the economic jewel of New England to four political hacks who wouldn't know a Dow from a Jones or care if they did.

The removal of Ed King should remind us how easy it is to kill a platitude -- in this case the old adage, "You can't beat somebody with nobody." Maybe the rest of us couldn't do it, but four members of the Massachusetts Port Authority just did it.

Quincy Heritage Compiling Services Directory

Quincy Heritage is in the process of compiling a directory of city and community services that can serve as a central source of information for groups planning special events, announces Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Any community group that wishes to be included in the directory should contact Quincy Heritage officials at their offices in the Quincy Center MBTA Station, he said.

"The directory is meant to serve as the key reference to all the multitude of services that are offered by city departments and all types of community agencies," Mayor Hannon said.

Depending upon the degree of financial support received from the business community for the publication of the directory, the reference book would be made available to taxpayers and new residents.

Grindlay President County Advisory Board

William S. Grindlay, Quincy's City Budget Director was elected President of the Advisory Board to the County Commission at its recent organizational meeting.

Also elected were Ralph Kent of Milton, Francis O'Brien of Dedham, Frederick K. McCabe of Canton and Hubert Yorra of Randolph.

The board discussed proposed plans for the coming budget which must be delivered to the Bureau of Accounts prior to Jan. 31.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving is a happy day. People give thanks in their own special way

We thank God for the food he puts on our plate
And hope that all people will learn not to hate

When we all get up in the morn
We always see the Thanksgiving horn

So when we sit down to eat and to pray,
We remember the pilgrims on this special day

At the beginning they anchored their ship
And thanks be to God that they made this trip.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a nice holiday. You get together with your families and enjoy a nice turkey dinner of potatoes, stuffing, and turkey. The first Thanksgiving was when the pilgrims and Indians got together and shared their food with each other. Families get together and thank God for their health, family and their food. I like Thanksgiving a lot because you eat play and enjoy the togetherness. It is nice. It is part of God's Day. We should put part of the day to say thank you god for all the wonderful happiness and health we have had the past year.

THE TURKEY'S FEAST

Once there was a family of turkeys called the Turkeys. The father, mother and three children. It was near Thanksgiving and mother was getting food from the Indian Village. She didn't want them to see her because they could shoot her for Thanksgiving. Father and the children were sitting at their table in their cave when mother came with a goose on a platter. They had a nice Thanksgiving!

Hancock Bank To Sponsor Wollaston Glee Club Concerts

The Hancock Bank has agreed to sponsor the 75th anniversary concert programs of the Wollaston Glee Club, as a Quincy Heritage project, Hancock Bank President William E. Kelley announces.

A $500 contribution from the Hancock Bank will allow the Wollaston Glee Club to hold a Dec. 2 concert at Atlantic Junior High School and two special concerts during its 75th anniversary next year.

The donation will allow the organization to host the 55th annual glee club competition and concert of the New England Federation of Mens' Glee Clubs next May 17, and another special concert next April 7.

Quincy Heritage general chairman Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said the Hancock Bank sponsorship of the glee club "typifies the spirit of the entire Heritage program."

"The essence of Quincy's heritage is one of people helping people. This is precisely what the Hancock Bank accomplishes when it helps insure the survival of a group that provides a worthwhile service to the community."

"We are hopeful that other businesses in the community will follow the lead taken by the Hancock Bank, and through Quincy Heritage programs, support civic groups that make our community pleasant to live in," Dr. Creedon said.

Wollaston Glee Club President David M. Walsh noting that "donations are extremely hard to come by in this year of inflation" said he was "extremely pleased" with the Hancock Bank support.

The Wollaston Glee Club was founded in 1900 and presently has 37 members.

More Important Than Winning

North Girl Praised For Going To Aid Of Injured Opponent

In a letter to Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, North Quincy Cross Country Coach Lou Tozzi paid tribute to one of his girl runners, Lauren Snook, for an unselfish act, which cost her a chance to win a medal in the recent Suburban League championship meet at Brockton.

In his letter, Tozzi wrote, "Just a brief note to let you know about something which I consider to be unique in today's athletic world. We recently traveled to Brockton for the Suburban League cross country championships for boys and girls.

"As you know North Quincy did quite well [boys fourth and girls third], but there was an incident which occurred that I would like to relate to you.

"One of our girls, named Lauren Snook, was our outstanding individual runner until injured during the season. She worked hard, got back in shape and was able to participate in the league meet. The race was run, the finishers and totals were being calculated, but Lauren had not yet finished the race—the last finishers had crossed the line about five minutes earlier but Lauren and one Brockton girl had not yet arrived.

"Being somewhat concerned, the Brockton coach and I summoned the police cruiser to go out onto the course to see if anything had gone wrong. Well, the cruiser returned with the young lady [Lauren] but we were informed that the Brockton girl had been rushed to the hospital by ambulance. She had fallen down during the race and had been hurt badly, suffering a broken ankle.

"The entire field of 65 runners continued by the fallen girl [she had been one of the leaders] except for one person—Lauren Snook. Lauren had made a decision to help the injured girl, rather than continue on and possibly lead her team to a second place finish.

"Well, it sure made me proud to be associated in any way with this extraordinary young lady, and also with North Quincy High. In my opinion, to stop to help the injured girl in a race of this importance was something that took incredible courage and just plain 'guts'. We were all very proud of Lauren Snook for what she did and, in a strange way, it was one of the highlights of the year.

"To me, it's this kind of thing that makes coaching a wonderful, satisfying human experience. Thanks for listening."

Lauren modestly shrugged off the act. She expressed shock at the fact the other girls passed the injured girl by but said, "I think that they either didn't feel she was hurt or were waved on by the injured girl."

13,000 Expected For 10 A.M. Kickoff

Fans To See Plenty Of Action As Raiders,

For the first time in four years North Quincy takes a losing record into the Thanksgiving Day classic and the objectives of Coach Ralph Frazier are to win the city championship for the fourth straight year and wind up with a .500 record.

North, after a fine start (4-1 record), dropped its last four games and the squad, following four winning seasons, hopes to win on the holiday and make its record 5-5.

"It has been a disappointing season," Frazier admitted. "I feel we are better than a 4-5 team. A win over Quincy will make it a successful year as far as we are concerned."

A year ago North was forced to come from behind for a 20-10 win after Quincy, rated the underdog [if a team should ever be called the underdog in the series], jumped away to a 10-0 lead. Thursday the Raiders will try to get an early lead.

North has a number of bumps and bruises but Frazier hopes to have most players available. "You have to learn to face adversities and if some of our players are out, the others will give 100 percent and I can't ask any more than that," Frazier said.

At this writing among the Raiders whose status was up in the air were Brian Doherty, their best running back, who missed the last two games, and Tri-Capt. Mark Reale, an outstanding end and pass receiver. Frazier hoped to have them back but worked with other players to replace them if necessary.

Until he was injured late in the first half at Brookline, Doherty had gained about 800 yards. He gained more than 100 yards in each of the first six games and had added 71 before being injured against Brookline.

Since his injury, which kept him out of the Waltham and Brockton games, Frazier gave other backs, including Matty Constantino and Jack Hatfield, more running time to go along with Rich Marino. In the Brockton game he used six running backs.

If Doherty is able to start Thursday, he will team with Marino at halfback with Constantino at fullback and Mike Meehan at quarterback. If he can't play, Hatfield will start in his place and Paul McGuigan and Paul O'Donnell will also be used as ball carriers.

The offensive line will have Cooper Jordan and either Dan Noonan or Reale, ends; Mike Nee and Bill Driscoll, tackles; Frank Chiaccheri and Paul Doherty, guards, and Rich Joyce, center.

Also due to see action on offense are Brian Donaghey at quarterback, Bob McCullough at guard and Rick Moran and John Furlong at tackle.

Starting on defense will be O'Donnell and Tom Callahan, ends; Bill Pitts and John Gallagher, both 215, tackles; Ralph Crevier and Chris Morton, cornermen; Dennis McGuire and Pat Connolly, linebackers; Bruce Shea and Steve Lethrop, halfbacks, and Hatfield, safety.

Among others to see defensive service are Alf McHugh, Al Kelleher, Joe Wilkinson, Bruce Hall, Bob Marinelli and Frank Strazulla.

Frazier plans no changes in his attack or in his defensive setup, feeling it best to go along with what has worked for him in the past.

If the running game is stopped, he won't hesitate to have Meehan pass. He did some good passing this fall with Jordan and Reale his favorite receivers.

-TOM SULLIVAN

North Dominated First Five Series Games

Although Ralph Frazier last year became the first North Quincy coach to defeat Quincy three times in a row, North dominated the series for the first five years.

Jack Donahue's Raiders shocked Quincy, 6-0, in their first year of football in 1933, played to a scoreless tie in 1934, topped the Presidents, 14-6, in 1935, beat them again, 6-0, in 1936 and played to another scoreless tie in 1937.

Carroll, Doherty Top Scorers

Quincy's Preston Carroll has a wide scoring lead going into Thursday's game with 63 points. North Quincy's top scorer is Brian Doherty, idle the past two games with an injury, with 38 points.

Offensively both teams are nearly even as North has scored 117 points and Quincy 115. Defensively it is a far different story as North has given up only 117 points to 237 for Quincy.

North Coaches Have 'Home Grown' Look

With the exception of veteran Ted Sadowski, junior varsity and sophomore coach, all of the North Quincy coaches are former North players.

Head Coach Ralph Frazier was an excellent Raider lineman in 1954, '55 and '56, and suffered through three Quincy wins. He feels his three straight coaching wins over the Presidents make up in part for three losses while he was playing.

Tom Fitzgerald was an all-scholastic center at North. He played for the Raiders in 1941 and 1942, captaining the squad in his last year.

Dick Meyer was a standout North lineman in 1956, '57 and '58.

Ken McPhee, the rookie of the coaching staff, played at North in 1965 and '66 as a guard and joined the staff a year ago, replacing Jack Bowes, who took over as head coach at Milton.

Sadowski, a graduate of Boston English High, has been jayvee and soph coach for most of his 17 years at North. He also does the scouting for Frazier. Assisting him in scouting are volunteers Bob Swirbalus, a former Raider, and Jack Page, a student trainer.

Same Officials Lineup

The officials who handled the Quincy-North game the past five years will again be in charge Thursday.

Joe Berman of Hull will be the referee, John Krikorian of Brockton the umpire, Al Benson of North Reading field judge and Edgar Stowell of Bedford head linesman.

Presidents Give All To Salvage Season

QUINCY COACH Hank Conroy and Co-Capt. John Columbus and Preston Carroll wind up final practice ready for the big game on Thanksgiving Day.

13,000 Expected To See Game

If the weather is good Thursday, the crowd at the Quincy-North game is expected to approach that of last year, estimated at more than 13,000. However, it is not expected to be anywhere near the record 18,003 in 1946. Two years ago the crowd was about 12,000 and three years ago it was 10,057, well below expectations. This, however, was blamed on the heavy rains on the holiday which postponed the classic until the following Saturday. The 1970 crowd was 15,336, and is believed the '71 crowd would have been nearly as large if played on the holiday.

The record throng in 1946 was estimated to be actually near 25,000, including all those who watched from the walls and trees and lined the MBTA bus garage yard. That year, incidentally, Carl Leone, now Quincy's athletic coordinator, sparked Quincy to a 31-6 win.

3 Quincy Coaches Former Q-N Players

Three of the Quincy coaches, including Head Coach Hank Conroy, are former Quincy or North Quincy players. Hank, of course, was an all-scholastic back at Quincy and captain in his last year. In 1941 and 1942 he led the Presidents to wins over North. Assistant John Bogan starred as a guard at Quincy in 1958, '59 and '60 and was captain in his senior year. Dave Burke was one of North Quincy's outstanding backs and starred in 1943, '44 and '45. In the 1945 game he gave the Raiders a 7-0 win when he fell on the opening kickoff in the end zone as the Quincy players stood around and let the ball lie there. In '44 Burke threw a long pass to Paul Clem to set up the only touchdown in a 6-0 North win. The only 'outsider' is Art 'Bud' Mosher, who attended high school in Maine. Sophomore Coach Mark Conroy is an 'outsider' as far as his alma mater is concerned, graduating from Scituate High, but he is Hank's son. He also does the scouting with the assistance of Jack Rayer, a Quincy lineman in 1968, who also voluntarily assists Conroy with the sophomores. He is a student at Quincy Junior College.

Reserve Ticket Entrance

Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone announces that reserved seat ticket holders for the Quincy-North Quincy game will be admitted only at the Southern Artery entrance nearest the soccer field.

By TOM SULLIVAN
The hopes of the Quincy football squad for recapturing the city championship and ending North's three-game series win streak rest on the fact it will be at nearly full strength for the first time since early in the year. Coach Hank Conroy, who has suffered through a frustrating year with only a 2-7 record and a five-game losing streak, was hard hit by injuries this fall and at one time he had fourth stringers playing at some positions. "Most of our players will be back for the Thanksgiving game and we will have our strongest lineup in many weeks," Conroy said. "Our defense has been poor much of the year but this was because we had so many boys out that I had no replacements when another player was injured. However, if a player is hurt on Thanksgiving, we will have a replacement."

Conroy, who early in the year gained his 50th coaching win, plans no changes in his attack or on defense against the Raiders. "Why change anything?" Conroy asked. "When we had the personnel, we did all right and we will again have the personnel for North. It doesn't matter that you do, you just have a hard time operating when you have so many players missing. We'll go along with our regular offense and defense."

Quincy has an outstanding running back in Preston Carroll, who has 10 touchdowns and 63 points and had several touchdown runs, including a 60-yarder against Brookline, nullified by penalties. He is joined by Paul Vespaziani, Terry O'Day and Paul Ramponi as the top ball carriers. Quarterback Jim Forrester has had a good season and his passing was outstanding at times with End Mike MacKenzie as his favorite receiver.

Conroy plans to open offensively with MacKenzie and Jeff Little, playing only his second game, ends; 220-pound Steve Coleman and 230-pound Jake Columbus, tackles; Bob Carella and Dave Gosselin, guards; Doug King, center; Forrester, quarterback; Carroll and O'Day, halfbacks, and Vespaziani, fullback.

Among others certain to play on offense are Ramponi and Tony Cedrone, backs; John Riggs and Joe Megnia, ends; Gerv Varrasso, Steve Sylva and Jerry Durante, line.

Both O'Day and Riggs will be playing for the first time since early in the year when they were injured. Little returned only two weeks ago in the last game with Brookline.

Starting on defense will be Megnia and King, ends; Little and Paul Ferris, tackles; Columbus and Paul DiCristofaro, guards; Paul Coner and Ted Wiedemann, linebackers; Carroll and Sophomore Pat Gibbons, halfbacks, and Frankie Guest, safety.

Also playing on defense will be Riggs, Gosselin, Rich Hennessey, Bob Ross and John Wood.

"Despite the records of the teams, this should be another fine game, and we fully expect to win it," Conroy said.

Hank's record against North since taking over as head coach in 1964, is 5-5. Before losing the last three, Hank's teams had won three in a row.

Bill Sullivan Only Coach To Win 5 In Row

The only coach to win five successive Thanksgiving games in the 42-year history of the series was Bill Sullivan, who coached Quincy for eight years and defeated North six times. Bill's team defeated the Raiders from 1954 through 1958 before the Raiders won in 1959, Bill's final season.

Rogers, Ridge On Clock

Leroy [Curley] Rogers, retired North Quincy coach, will again handle the electric clock for the Quincy-North game and for the second year in a row Jerry Ridge will work with him.

Until last year, Rogers had worked with Marty Finnegan, former Quincy basketball coach, for 10 years.

North Sophs Bomb Young Presidents 30-0

North Quincy sophomore football coach Ted Sadowski wasn't the only happy coach at Veterans Memorial Stadium Saturday as his team overpowered Quincy, 30-0, for the young Raiders' first win over their cross-town rivals in four years.

Watching the proceedings with a big smile on his face was North's varsity coach, Ralph Frazier, who happily saw what he has coming up to the varsity next year.

The big win before a large crowd at the stadium completed an undefeated season for North, which had won several of its previous seven games by big scores.

The game again was played with all the trappings of the Thanksgiving Day classic with cheerleaders, concessions and the electric scoreboard being used.

Sadowski, in his 17th year as a North coach, was a happy man following the game. A year ago he barely missed a win, having to be satisfied with an 8-8 tie when Quincy scored in the final seconds.

"These kids did a wonderful job just as they have all season," Ted said. "Our quarterback, Brian Donaghey, did a fine job and our halfbacks, Mike Adams and George Wallace, ran very well."

Sadowski and his assistant, Jack Page, had high praise for end Jim Frye for his receiving and blocking, Steve Bonoli and Dan Butts at guard and linebackers Steve Bell, Paul Petrillo and Mike Crevier.

"Our reserve tackles, Joe Stockless and Mark Nagle, did a great job when we held them near the goal line at the end of the half," Sadowski said. "I decided to leave them in there and they really came through. Dick Kennedy helped us with an intercepted pass and, in fact, the entire defense was outstanding."

Losing coach Mark Conroy said North's defense was stronger than he had anticipated and praised the Raiders' attack.

"Our boys did a good job in the second half but North was just too strong in that first half (North scored all its points in the first two periods)," Conroy said. "We outplayed them in the second half and the boys never gave up."

Conroy hailed the two-way performance of Mark Buchanan, the passing of quarterback Dennis Walter and the receiving of Wayne French. He also singled out Paul Valentini, Dennis Kearney, Mickey Thorley, Ron Moore and Wayne Gardner for their work in the offensive line.

Defensive coach Jack Raymer, who had seen the young Presidents shut out five opponents this year, was admittedly disappointed in the results of the first half but praised his players for their second half comeback.

He had special words of tribute for Scott Awed for his standout efforts all season, Dan Kelsey, Eric Wong, Steve Olsen, John Milani and Bob Pettinelli.

North's Adams raced 50 yards to the Quincy nine early in the game and Donaghey passed to Adams for a touchdown. Donaghey's pass to Frye added the points.

Wallace ran 12 yards for the second touchdown early in the second period and also rushed for the points.

Adams made it 22-20 with a 30-yard touchdown run and, following Kennedy's pass interception, Donaghey passed to Wallace for 22 yards and the final touchdown. His pass to Frye added the final points of the game.

Quincy went to the North two on passes from Walter to Valentini for 25 yards and to French for 32 yards but North held.

Quincy had the better of the play in the last two periods but couldn't pose a serious threat. The defense kept the Raiders bottled up.

none of her marks had less than 8 pins and her top strike showed 29 pins.

Quincy Players Shine At Abp. Williams

Several players from Quincy have played prominent roles in leading the Abp. Williams High school football team to a respectable 6-2 record this fall.

The record is the best since 1969, the first year for Coach Henry Cutting.

In its first seven games the only loss was to Catholic Memorial, 13-6, and last Sunday it dropped a 13-8 decision to unbeaten Don Bosco to lose any chance of the Catholic Conference title.

Sharing the fullback chores is Quincy's John Quinn, and Jim Roberts, also from Quincy, is a wingback and the only junior in the otherwise all-senior offensive lineup.

Five defensive regulars are from Quincy, juniors Steve Aborn, 185-pound tackle; Halfback Dave Perdios and safetyman Tom McBride. Seniors Gerry McGrath, an end, and Halfback Dave Callahan are the other Quincy players.

Morton, Provost In Key Roles For H.C.

He is only a sophomore but North Quincy's Bob Morton is having quite a year as the Holy Cross quarterback and he and Quincy's John Provost will be playing key roles in Saturday's annual Holy Cross-Boston college football game at B.C. Stadium.

Morton had one of his best days last week as his running and passing sparked the Crusaders to a 23-14 comeback win over U. of Connecticut to make their record 5-4-1.

With H.C. trailing, 6-0, late in the half, Morton, who had done a good deal of running, began to throw. The former North Quincy High quarterback completed five passes, the final one to Dave Quehl for a touchdown which gave the team a 6-6 tie at the half.

Bob gave a great demonstration of ball control in the third period as H. C. ran 31 plays to just seven for U.Conn. and The Crusaders added a touchdown and field goal.

Another bomb, to Quehl accounted for the final touchdown in the last period.

For the day Morton ran for 91 yards and passed for another 178 with 13 for 23 and two touchdowns. He also did some excellent punting.

While Morton will be an offensive key Saturday, Provost, the former Quincy High backfield standout, will be the big man on defense.

In addition to running back many punts for long yardage, Provost had nine pass interceptions this year and 26 for his career, putting him in second place nationally. He already has broken the national record for pass interception return yardage.

Paul Picarski, defensive back from Quincy, and tackle Joe Morrissey from North Quincy will also be in the Holy Cross lineup as the Crusaders try to pull off one of the great upsets of the season. Powerful B.C. will be a heavy favorite.

John Flynn Gains Over 800 Yards At Deerfield

John Flynn, one of North Quincy's top running backs the past two years, recently completed an outstanding season for the Deerfield Academy football team.

Flynn ran for more than 800 yards and scored nine touchdowns as Deerfield enjoyed a perfect 8-0-0 season.

In the Mt. Hermon game John set a school record by gaining 214 yards.

In addition to his running, Flynn played every minute on defense as a rover back.

Secretary of the student faculty, a rarity for a post graduate student, the former Raider star has not decided which college he will enter but is leaning toward the Ivy League.

One of his North Quincy teammates, quarterback Carl Leone, also had a fine season for Deerfield and he is also leaning toward the Ivy League. The two have been teammates since their days at Central Junior High.

Pee Wee A's

The Pee Wee A team defeated Milton, 4-1, and has a 7-1-0 record.

Scott Richardson had two goals, Neil Shea and Paul McGrath one each. Bob Beniers, Robbie Craig, Tommy Gerry and Tom Joe Connolly had assists. Gerry, Sean Dennis and Robbie McHugh were outstanding.

Bands To Unite In Anthem

The outstanding bands of both schools will again combine for the National Anthem at the holiday classic.

The North band will march into the stadium from one end and the Quincy band from the other. Each, facing its home stands, will play its school song, then mass at the center of the field for the playing of the National Anthem. This plan was used for the first time two years ago and has proven popular with everyone.

Hank Aaron Faces Sox In April 8 Opener

It seems pretty early to think about baseball, but it appears the Red Sox will be sure of a full house when they open their season at Fenway Park next April 8 against all-time home run king Hank Aaron and his new team, the Milwaukee Brewers.

However, before that, the Sox have scheduled 31 exhibition games next spring, including 15 at their home park, Chain O' Lakes Park in Winter Haven, Fla.

The spring season will open Friday, March 7, in Winter Haven where they face the Detroit Tigers, and end April 6, with the Minnesota Twins at Winter Haven.

For the first time in three years, the Sox face the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers, with two games in Winter Haven and one in Vero Beach. Three night games are included, two in Lakeland with the Tigers and one in Orlando with the Twins.

Boston will face American League opponents 14 times and play the National League teams 17 times.

Meanwhile, Sox fans are still waiting for the team to make a trade and hope they fare better than last year.

So far the only personnel changes are on the coaching staff with the popular Johnny Pesky replacing Eddie Popowski as first base coach and also being named a batting instructor, and Stan Williams succeeding Lee Stange as pitching coach.

Stange recently signed with the Minnesota Twins as pitching coach. He pitched for the Twins for three years.

HOLDING COURT

How to return the big serve

By ED COLLINS
Copley News Service

Are you intimidated by the big serve? Do you close your eyes, turn your head and hope you don't get hurt? You shouldn't. Here are five points that will help you develop a neutralizing service return:

(1) Position yourself on the court properly. Bisect the angle of the two widest possible serves and stand deep behind the baseline.

(2) Watch the ball as your opponent releases his service toss. See it twice: once on the toss, the second time as it bounces in front of you — refocus your eyes.

(3) Get your momentum going forward before he hits the ball. Time a step forward and then split step as he tosses the ball. "Step-split-hit" (remember to initially position yourself deep enough to allow for this step.)

(4) Pick up your feet and move to the ball. Sometimes you'll be lucky if a leaping drive will get you to the ball; normally, you'll have time to shuffle to the ball. Take two steps. ...

(5) Abbreviate your backswing and "borrow the power" of the ball. No swinging. Bevel the racket back and you'll impart underpinning good for neutralizing the speed of the ball and adding control. Now you're ready for Smith's serve — that's Sally Smith, of course. ...

TV MAILBAG

Safer served in London, Saigon

By RICK ROBERTS
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. We think Morly Safer of "60 Minutes" is terrific. What did he do before he became a cohost on the show? — L.S., San Francisco

A. Safer, who serves with Mike Wallace as host of "60 Minutes," served as chief of the CBS News London Bureau from 1967 to 1970.

While serving in that post, Safer was not limited to covering news events in the United Kingdom. Among the stories he worked on include Middle East hostilities, the invasion of Czechoslovakia and the Vietnam War.

Before his assignment as London bureau chief, Safer was head of the Saigon bureau for CBS.

He has won numerous awards including an Emmy Award in 1973 for his work on several stories. One detailed the route of opium from the Mideast in "The Heroin Labs of Marseilles." Other topics included the civil rights case of a homosexual teacher and interviews with tennis star Billy Jean King and Johnny Ford, black mayor of Tuskegee, Ala.

Q. Is it true Gene Rayburn once worked on the "Tonight" show? — B.C., Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Rayburn worked on the original "Tonight" show with Steve Allen as a comedian in the 1950s.

He stayed with that show for several years while, at the same time, he appeared in several television and stage shows.

In 1963, he was selected as host for the "Match Game," when it first appeared on television.

Q. Where is "Harry O" filmed? I know it's supposed to take place in San Diego, but do they actually film down there? Also, how many series has David Janssen been in? — G.R., El Cajon, Calif.

A. "Harry O," the story of an ex-policeman who was forced into retirement because of an injury, is filmed entirely in the San Diego area, with much of the action filmed on Coronado Island.

Janssen is in his fourth television series. His first series was "Richard Diamond, Detective." In 1963, he returned to television, after appearing in several movies, as Dr. Richard Kimble in "The Fugitive." He also starred in the brief series, "O'Hara, U.S. Treasury."

Quincy Scout Supervises Planting Of 500 Pine Seedlings

G. Frederick Shepard, a Life Scout from Troop 42 sponsored by St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy, has taken a big step towards reaching the status of an Eagle Scout.

Fred, a 13-year-old freshman at Boston College High School, organized, researched and supervised the planting of 500 eight-inch pine seedlings in the Houghton's Pond area as a service project for the Quincy Community. Each boy wishing to become an Eagle Scout must perform a service project.

Fred, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick V. Shepard of 93 Centre St., West Quincy, has been planning his project for over a year. By planting the seedlings in the Houghton's Pond area, Fred and his eight assistants have done a service for posterity. In less than 15 years, the 500 seedling will grow to maturity forming a natural barrier between traffic-heavy Rt. 128 and the Houghton's Pond baseball field and tennis courts.

The eight other scouts participating in the project were James Ciardelli, 153 Intervale St., South Quincy, Robert Graham, 128 Water St., South Quincy, Russell Nord, 122 Elm St., Quincy, James Lawlor, 29 Payne St., South Quincy, James Byrne, 1 Payne St., South Quincy, Fred wrote to 10 nurseries in the mid-Atlantic and New England states and received three offers to donate seedlings for his project. A nursery in Pennsylvania donated 250 white pine seedlings and a nursery in Maine donated 250 red pine seedlings.

Adults helping the boys plan the project were Richard Nord, scoutmaster of Troop 42, Robert Stanhope, director of Trailside Museum and Charles Shurcliff, architect for MDC Park Division.

Fred, a Boy Scout for three years, needs two more badges to become an Eagle Scout. He hopes to complete the Eagle Scout requirements by spring.

Hannon Calls For Stepped-Up Action Against Crimes

Mayor Walter J. Hannon met with Police Chief Francis X. Finn and superior officers this week to discuss plans for a stepped-up drive against the increasing number of burglaries, robberies, and drug offenses in the city.

Hannon asked Finn to implement increased police protection in addition to safeguards already in effect.

The meeting was the first in a series the Mayor plans to have with local officials.

Hannon and Finn later met with Dist. Atty. George Burke and will meet with Quincy District Court officials.

They are seeking the assistance of the courts in helping to recognize and deal with the problem of repeated offenders.

They will recommend to Burke, Judges and legislators that a new procedure be adopted to increase bails substantially in order that persons arrested for violent crimes and crimes against property, and serious drug offenses will not be able to be "on the streets as easily as it is now".

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Hubby courting the doghouse

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have a hobby that I really enjoy, but my family tells me that I am crazy. Several years ago I bought a purebred puppy and the breeder suggested that I show him. It has been a lot of fun. The shows are held outside and it is a lovely way to spend an afternoon. My husband makes fun of me and the dog. His reasoning is that all dogs are pets and marching around a ring is pure nonsense.

Before I had attended the shows I was inclined to agree with him but now I see a definite reason for this. Usually the finer animals win. Therefore, they are the producers of the best puppies. This keeps the various types of dogs up to standard. Without shows and matches, I feel that the quality of the purebred dog would plummet to rock bottom. How can I get my husband to stop teasing?

Dog Fancier

Dear Fancier:

Showing dogs is a fascinating hobby and until your husband understands this, he'll tease you. Unless he is willing to learn about your interest, be prepared to take some ribbing.

Perhaps you could suggest that unless he shuts up, the dog won't be the only one in the doghouse.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have never seen my problem in your column. I am 11 years old and I am pigeon-toed. My mom says that it is better than when I was a baby but it's horrible. The kids make fun of the way I walk. Even if I try, my feet go in. Is there something that I can do? I'd be glad to do exercises. Would shoes help? Please tell me that to do.

Sue

Dear Sue:

It may not be as bad as you think but I'm not the one with the answer. Ask your mother to make an appointment with an orthopedic specialist. He is the doctor who specializes in bones. If you need medical care, he will know what to do.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

The barefoot boy always wins

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

I've never known a child old enough to untie his own laces who wasn't crazy over new shoes.

If a mother plays her cards right and says things like: "You won't get new shoes Saturday if you don't stop biting the dog, hitting the baby..." or whatever else the kid might be doing that isn't quite cricket, she can work a child up into such a frenzy that he will be putty in her hands.

So with Santa Claus, one birthday and at least five new pairs of shoes a year, there's really no reason why we shouldn't all have model children.

To the child, however, once those shoes have crossed the store threshold, they are no longer new. Gone are all thoughts of reprisal from mother, now all he wants to do is go barefoot.

You pay $8 extra for corrective shoes and he can't wait to get them off. You can't have that and you tell him so in no uncertain terms. You're firm about it right there on the sidewalk — all over the sidewalk, in fact.

And when you get him home you're both exhausted. It isn't long, however, before you realize he only seems exhausted. Nature, in her flagrant favoritism of the young, has given him his second wind.

His forty-fifth, "Why can't I go barefoot? Why? Why?" is finally met with a tired, "All right! Take 'em off! Grow up to walk like Ron Cey — see if I care!"

Smiling maliciously, he makes a mental note that Mother gives up after 45 tries. Off he patters down the driveway toward rusty nails, broken glass and possible lock-jaw.

This only goes to show that with a little patience, perseverance and fortitude on your part, the kid will win every time.

RIGHTS

Ignore passes at bar

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Two girls (in their twenties) are sitting at the bar in a hotel pub. The bartender puts drinks in front of them and says, "Compliments of the man at the end." The man indicates he'd like to meet one of the girls if she can ditch the other. Do you get the picture?

What should the "Chosen girl" have done?

One of Two

Dear One:

I get the picture all right. Both the girls should have said, "Thank you," and left, unless you went to the bar for two kinds of pick-me-ups.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Is it proper to send sympathy cards to one's relatives when there has been a death in the family?

M. C. in Rochester, Mi.

Dear M.C.:

Cards to anyone are proper at any time but you should certainly add your own personal message. "With sympathy from the Does," sounds cold, to me. It would take less time and money to write a note than go out and buy a card. I think one's relatives deserve more than a store-bought message.

ers are sharp — begin working on new projects that carry over to next year.

Mother blamed for son's crime

An English judge named Solomon, Judge Peter Solomon, says a mother's stubborn refusal to give her 15-year-old son pocket money led him into crime — three burglaries involving property and cash worth about $750.

Judge Solomon told her the boy was almost blameless. She was the one who should alistic though.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Creative energy is high and your ability to make good decisions is highlighted. Encourage associates to produce their best effort. Financial picture improves, but don't "go out on a limb" for extravagant items.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Problems with mate over extravagance should be handled gently but firmly. An older relative is a source of joy and help. Be understanding and helpful to others who come for assistance. Try for harmony.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Working "behind the scenes" and laying the groundwork for future action is your best activity now. You may be somewhat unrealistic in money matters now or overly optimistic — be careful. Enhance your wardrobe.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your prestige, reputation, professional image expands. Keep your own counsel — friends judgments may be faulty. Curb urge for compulsive spending — hold the line on budget. Career opportunities abound. Be alert.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Not the time to go into debt — try to consolidate what is already owed. Possibility of financial return from an idea launched in September. Travel, promotional ideas are favored. Romance is favored — partner responds.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Bobbie, Storch show is popular

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

LARRY STORCH

HOLLYWOOD — A short week before her closing at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, Bobbie Gentry received news that her beloved grandfather had died in Mississippi. Pals Wayne Newton and Vic Damone subbed for her so that she could attend the funeral.

The night before her closing, Larry Storch, special guest star on her bill, with his wife hosted a lavish party in the Sky Room atop the hotel. The elaborate buffet included whole, roast pig!

Bobbie was one of the few guests present who could eat without counting calories, because she says her problem is keeping her weight up.

"I lose at least three pounds every time I do a show," she said.

Norma Storch, Larry's wife, as pretty as a poesy in lilac chiffon with maribou trim, reported that her husband's car had recently been stolen from the Universal lot by a thief who, when apprehended near Niagara Falls, explained that he took Larry's auto instead of the one parked next to it, because the other car was equipped with color television which he considered ostentatious.

Norma also said that, while she was in Vegas, she, without identifying herself, made a survey of cabbies, asking each one with whom she rode, "What's the best show in town?"

She claims that almost every one replied, "The show with Bobbie Gentry and Larry Storch."

Elvis will make his debut as a movie producer with a documentary about karate. He's already filmed footage at the Tennessee Karate Institute in Memphis, owned by his buddy Red West, and will go on location to other karate studios across the country.

No, the film won't feature Mike Stone.

Warren Oates has been set to star with Peter Fonda for the second and third times in "92 Degrees in the Shade" and "So Mote It Be" respectively.

Yes, "mote" is the correct spelling. It's archaic English for "might."

PICK POCKETS, THIEVES AND MUGGERS

The chances of losing valuables or money increase when you take a vacation. Here are some precautions:

When traveling by car, lock the doors every time you leave the car. Keep valuables out of sight, preferably in the trunk. If you must leave your ignition key with a parking attendant, keep the trunk key with you.

Carry the bulk of your money in traveler's checks, except the cash you expect to use in a day. If you should be a holdup victim, law-enforcement officials say you should immediately surrender your valuables and money. This may avert possible violence. They also suggest that you not carry all of your money in one place, but divide it up into different pockets. When you check into a hotel, be sure to place any valuables you may have in the hotel's safe or safety deposit box.

Market Report

Turkey Not Just For Thanksgiving

With Thanksgiving past you may be going back to hamburger or roasts, but if you do you'll be missing one of the year's best buys, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA).

That best buy is turkey. Lower by some 20 cents a pound than a year ago, it's half the price of ground beef, yet more versatile and equally full of protein.

And don't let the thought of that big, overstuffed holiday dinner turn you off. What fills us up on Thanksgiving is not the turkey - it's the stuffing, the potatoes, the gravies and the rich desserts.

Plan and prepare meals with turkey as you normally do with chicken and you'll feed your family very well and save money in the bargain.

Large, fresh-frozen turkey is selling currently at 49 cents a pound and up, while regular hamburger starts at 88 cents. Other turkey varieties are higher, with the fully prepared, self-basting kind somewhat higher. Do your own basting and save.

Many homemakers tend to avoid turkey in their regular meal planning because of the bird's size. But as with everything else, the MDA points out, the larger the package the smaller the unit price. What's left over makes excellent soups, sandwiches, salads...and even a wonderful turkey pie.

When roasting a turkey, loosely wrap the bird in aluminum foil, roast at 325 degrees and open the foil for the last half hour to brown it nicely. When the meat thermometer registers 185 degrees, it's done. A 16-pound bird takes about five and a half hours.

The practice of roasting a turkey through the night at lower temperatures is definitely not recommended. The temperature inside the bird tends to induce the growth of bacteria. For the same reason, one should not stuff a turkey the night before it is to be cooked.

Fontonne Academy Holly Ball Dec. 15

The annual Holly Ball sponsored by Fontonne Academy's Fathers' Club, will be held Saturday, Dec. 15 at 8 p.m.

Joseph Serrilla of Wollaston is president of the Fathers' Club, and the co-chairman for the ball are John T. Quinn of Rosindale and Mr. James Santoro of Hyde Park.

A buffet will be served and music will be furnished by Earl Hannifan's orchestra. For tickets, contact James Glennon, 52 Tower St., Jamaica Plain.

Fine Arts Chorale Concert Saturday, Sunday

The Fine Arts Chorale, under the direction of Peter L. Edwards, will present its Christmas concert in two performances, Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at Weymouth North High School, Commercial St., East Weymouth.

The Chorale numbers over 150 singers, who come from more than 35 communities, including Quincy and whose ages range from 16 to 70. It is also accompanied by an orchestra of 20 professional musicians from the surrounding area.

Eligible For Food Stamps

You may be eligible for Food Stamps and not know it, the MDA points out. To find out, don't hesitate to inquire at one of the mobile Food Stamp trailers parked at various supermarkets throughout the state.

Turnips, Onions Good Buys

Among the Best Buys at the produce counter this week are yellow onions and yellow turnips, selling at 10 cents a pound. Carrots and sweet potatoes are on special sale in many stores. Citrus fruits and native apples are economically priced. Some good native fish buys are coming into the Boston market. Look for them and save, says the MDA.

Hancock Bank Votes 50 Cents In Dividends

The Board of Directors of Hancock Bank has voted a quarterly dividend on common stock of 40 cents per share plus a year-end extra of 10 cents per share according to William E. Kelley, president. The dividend and the extra will be paid Dec. 31 to stockholders of record Dec. 16, 1974. Kelley added that this dividend brings to $1.70 the total dividend pay-out to Hancock Bank stockholders during 1974. He said this was an increase of 10 cents per share over the 1973 dividend pay-out.

He credited the increased 1974 dividend to the bank's continued strong earnings and growth.

"Hancock Bank has maintained a record of continuous increase dividends each year since it was founded in 1967 as a result of a merger of the Quincy and Dedham Trust Companies", he said.

Hancock Bank now has 15 offices throughout Norfolk County. The most recent one was opened last month in the Walpole Shopping Mall, Rte. 1, Walpole.

General Dynamics To Acquire World Southern Facility

General Dynamics Corporation announces it will acquire World Southern's Corporation facility at Charleston, S.C., from Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Company.

World Southern, a wholly owned subsidiary of PDM, is engaged in production of large spherical aluminum tanks for giant liquefied natural gas (LNG) ships being produced at the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

David S. Lewis, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of General Dynamics, said the company will operate the 90 acre Charleston plant with its more than 400 employees and plans to add substantial new facilities and equipment to increase the plant capacity.

PDM received contracts, now valued at more than $110 million from General Dynamics in 1972 and 1974 for the production of 40 120-foot diameter aluminum spheres to be used on the eight LNG ships currently being built at Quincy. Additional ship orders, anticipated over the next several months, will further expand the backlog at Charleston, Lewis said.

General Dynamics, headquartered in St. Louis, Mo., is one of America's largest Corporations, with annual sales of nearly $2 billion. The company is a leader in the development and production of a wide variety of products for military and commercial customers. It employs some 65,000 men and women in the U.S. and abroad.

THE DAY OF THANKSGIVING

There was a boat called The Mayflower. That had many people in it. It landed on an island. As it came to pass they found that there were Indians on the island and they soon became friends. The Indians helped the pilgrims. They showed them how to plant corn. When winter came near most of the pilgrims died. The strong took care of the weak the best they could. For the ones who lived there was a feast. The invited the Indians too. That's how Thanksgiving started.

Laurie Forbush

THANKSGIVING

I like Thanksgiving because, I like turkey and stuffing. The pilgrims and Indians had the first Thanksgiving. Over fifty braves came and Indians came. The Indians shot turkeys and deer and they ate them. They cooked corn and they had a feast for three days. The Indians showed the Pilgrims how to grow corn. They planted the seeds and put fish in the ground.

Michael Wallace
Wollaston School

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING

Once upon a time there were some Pilgrims. They did not have much food. They had no basket to keep food in and they did not have much luck in fishing. One day some of the men went out hunting for food. When they came back they did not have anything. But they met a friendly Indian. The Indian's name was Squanto. He taught the boys how to fish. He gave them corn and taught them how to plant it. He taught the girls to weave baskets. He was a very nice Indian. All the men went out hunting and caught a big turkey. The Indians and the Pilgrims had a big feast. That big feast was called Thanksgiving.

SNIPPY THE SNOWMAN

Well a very very long time ago there was a snowman and he was very sad. And I think I can tell you why because nobody likes him. But look! Here comes a little girl maybe she can make him happy. So the little girl said what is your name? My name is Snippy and I know that you don't like me because nobody likes me. But I am going to ask you your name anyway. Well what is your name? It is Jane but I do like you. You do! And I like you too. And now I have a friend. The End.

Robin Hodess

WHAT THANKSGIVING MEANS TO ME

I think Thanksgiving is a time for thanks. We should be grateful on this special day. The pilgrims were the first to ever have a Thanksgiving. At first the pilgrims thought the Indians were mean and angry Indians. But when Squanto was the first Indian to come to the pilgrims, he came in peace with the pilgrims. The Indians taught the pilgrims, to plant corn and fish, and how to plant crops. Then the big day came. They had the big feast [Thanksgiving]. The big feast lasted for three whole days, but we only celebrate it with one day.

Kathy Doherty
Wollaston School
Grade 4

THANKSGIVING

I like Thanksgiving because it's loads of fun. I like Thanksgiving because there's bread and buns. I like Thanksgiving because there's a feast. I like Thanksgiving because there's not the least bit of sadness.

Susan Ayles
Wollaston School

THE TURKEY

One time we had nothing to eat. I went out and tried to get old Sam, biggest and fattest turkey you have ever seen. Most people tried to kill old Sam but nobody ever shot old Sam. Now it's my turn. Then I saw the turkey. I was ready to shot my gun when it ran. I shot it right in the head. Then I brag it home and had a big dinner.

THANKSGIVING

November 28 is a special day. On this day is Thanksgiving. On Thanksgiving we have turkey and stuffing. Thanksgiving is a day of thanks. The pilgrims and the Indians had the first Thanksgiving. We celebrate Thanksgiving so happy Thanksgiving.

Citizens Against Forced Busing Meet Tonight In Squantum

South Shore Citizens Against Forced Busing will meet tonight [Thursday] at Star of the Sea Church, Bellevue Rd., Squantum.

The newly-formed organization, chaired by Robert Lewis, emphasizes it is not opposed to busing but to FORCED busing.

All elected officials of the South Shore area have been invited to Thursday's meeting to express their views on forced busing. All Quincy residents, proponents and opponents of forced busing, are also welcome to attend.

Lewis said the aim of the organization is "to regain our lost rights." He said:

"We are not against busing. We are for quality education and integration but not for forced busing. We feel the government has overstepped its boundaries and has taken away our constitutional rights. We want to regain our lost rights."

process of raising money to hire a constitutional lawyer. Money is also used to tutor students who are not attending Boston schools.

Lewis urged proponents of forced busing to attend the meeting. He said:

"We'd love to have pro-busing people there to express their views... And they'll find the people involved [in the organization] are not racists or bigots."

LaRaia Telling Friends He's Definite Mayoral Candidate

By HENRY BOSWORTH

City Councillor Joseph LaRaia is telling friends he's running for mayor-for sure.

That shouldn't come as too much of a surprise for City Hall observers who figure he's been looking-and acting-like a mayoralty contender for the past several months.

What makes it interesting though is that in the past LaRaia has kept his political cards pretty close to the vest. He usually responds to inquiries about running for mayor with a "it's a little too early to say anything."

But from what friends say, he has made his decision nice and early: he's in it all the way.

LaRaia could be in a good spot position wise. Rep. William Delahunt has been-unless he has changed his mind the past few weeks-a virtual sure candidate.

And there is still speculation that Council President-Senator Arthur Tobin might yet sail his hat into the ring.

If Mayor Walter Hannon seeks re-election and Delahunt and-or Tobin runs, they could split a lot of votes giving LaRaia a good shot to clinch a nomination in the city preliminary election.

Of course, as to how he would fare against Hannon, Delahunt or Tobin in the finale you'd have to wait to count the votes to see.

Regardless, LaRaia would have to be reckoned with.

WHILE WE'RE LOOKING ahead to next year's city election, Robert Hayes, popular co-founder and former president of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association is toying with the idea of running for one of the council at-large seats.

REP. JOSEPH BRETT, as the result of an item here last week that Charles Shea had the inside track on appointment to the city auditor's job, dashed off a letter to Council President Arthur Tobin supporting Shea.

"We all know Charlie as a dedicated, sincere, and thoroughly honest public servant," wrote Brett who served with Shea in the City Council back in the 1960's. "The City of Quincy would indeed be fortunate to have him take over the reins of the city auditor's office from the extremely capable and dedicated Alexander Smith."

Brett noted that Shea knew nothing about the letter being written.

We reported that Shea had the "inside track" on the appointment if he wants it. But a recent reading shows that City Treasurer Robert Foy is gaining strength as a contender.

IT'S OFF TO Kansas City today [Thursday] for Dist. Atty. George Burke and Paul Harold. Burke is a delegate to the Democratic National Mid-term Convention and Harold a state-wide alternate.

Burke attended the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago as a delegate and Harold as part of a research project for his college government paper.

AND WHAT'S THIS with Mike Peatridge? Peatridge who ran for the Ward 5 City Council seat last year, printed up his own lineup programs for the Quincy-North Thanksgiving Day game and had them distributed free compliments of Mike Peatridge. And that, of course, immediately triggered speculation by politicians in the stands that he'll be a candidate for council at-large next year. [Well, he's not looking for Hank Conroy's or Ralph Frazier's job.]

CASUALTY: City Development Director John Cheney had a revolting development. Hobbling around with a pulled leg muscle suffered playing tennis. Remember when tennis was considered a sissy game?

MILESTONE: City Assessor and Mrs. Henry Bertolon are grandparents for the first time. Daughter and son-in-law, Carol and Michael Dorn presented them with a granddaughter, Stephanie Ann.

WATCHING THE CHRISTMAS parade Sunday reminded us what two outstanding bands the city has at North and Quincy High Schools. They look sharp, play sharp and march sharp. And it's nice to see a lot of kids are still learning to play real instruments instead of loud guitars.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Koch Club youngsters are raising money to purchase a TV set for the pediatrics ward at Tewksbury State Hospital. And they're doing it the nice way. Instead of soliciting funds from others, they're giving up a little candy and other treats to donate their own money.

OBSERVATION: Well, old Wilbur Mills is really something. You'd think we had enough problems with inflation, unemployment, energy crisis, etc. etc. Now we have the chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee flipping his wig over a stripper. You can imagine how much he's concentrating on his job. You know, he and the country, too, could go down the drain by his Fanne.

Quincy Delegation Seeks Bicentennial Funds For Restoration

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and other city officials are in Washington, D.C., to discuss applications for $40,820 in Bicentennial funding for historic restoration projects here.

A $4,400 grant is being sought from the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities to study the heating and roofing needs at the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Another grant for $6,420 is being sought from the National Science Foundation for restoration of the first productive iron works in the country on Crescent Street.

The National Science Foundation is also being asked to provide $30,000 to establish a multi-media, traveling exhibit on Quincy's granite and shipbuilding industries.

Rev. John R. Graham, executive director of Quincy Heritage, plans to meet with officials at the agencies to discuss the status of the grants.

Geoffrey Davidson, Director of Planning and Community Development, and John Cheney, development coordinator, plan to meet with federal officials to discuss flood insurance programs, and the status of city applications for federal money to develop the city.

Hannon was to meet on Wednesday with Congressman James Burke to review the applications and seek his assistance in obtaining federal money for these and other programs.

The Quincy group will return on Friday.

Community Needs Questionnaire Available

During the past few weeks the city's Department of Planning and Community Development has been holding meetings in each ward to ascertain citizen's concerns about urgent community problems.

As part of the application process for the $1,014,000 community development funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD], the city is seeking input to help set priorities and develop responsive programs.

Realizing that many people may have been unable to attend ward meetings, yet wish to register their ideas, Director Geoffrey A. Davidson, announces that the Department of Planning and Community Development is making available the same questionnaires that were used at the ward meetings to pinpoint neighborhood and city-wide needs.

With the cooperation of Library Director Warren E. Watson, these will be placed in each branch library and the Bookmobile for the next few weeks and can be completed at these locations.

All who missed a ward meeting and wish to express their views are urged to do so.

Commission Praises OEA On Equal Pay Stand

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Many people were surprised to discover that the salaries of women coaches in the Quincy School System had been lower than salaries of men coaches. When the girls' gymnastics coach at Quincy High School resigned in protest over the differential pay scales, this appalling situation was brought to their attention.

Mayor Hannon has recently established in Quincy a Commission on the Status of Women which will concentrate on encouraging women to participate fully in the life of the city. The City Council has demonstrated its support of the Commission by further appointments and some funding.

The Women's Commission congratulates the Quincy Education Association for its stand in support of equal pay for men and women coaches in the School Department. We are encouraged to hear that Robert Laing, Q.E.A. President, will recommend other changes in the Quincy pay scale relative to male and female coaches.

We congratulate the Quincy School Committee also for its unanimous vote in favor of equal pay for equal work. The members of the Women's Commission look forward to further action by the Q.E.A. and the School Committee to implement the goal of equal treatment for all members of the Quincy School System.

Suggests Honor For Jack Donahue

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I feel that honor is due to one of Quincy's number one citizens John [Jack] Donahue, former North Quincy H.S. football coach.

A fitting tribute would be to name the circular road that runs in front of North Quincy High School ground, John [Jack] Donahue [way or circle]. He has done much for the youth of Quincy. I feel he deserves such recognition. Thank you.

World Food Crisis Topic For S.S. United Nations Council

Jack Thomas of The Boston Globe will speak here on the world food crisis: the current shortages and problems and implications for the future, Thursday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m.

The lecture, to be held in the parish hall of the Church of the Presidents in Quincy Sq., is sponsored by the United Nations Council of the South Shore.

Thomas, a resident of Hingham, is a national editor of The Globe. He has been with the newspaper for 10 years, serving in various capacities including reporter and city editor, before assuming his present position.

Thomas has done extensive traveling while researching the problem of the world-wide food shortage for The Globe. For a month during the summer, he toured the drought-stricken areas in Africa south of the Sahara Desert, especially the Sahel. He recently returned from Rome, Italy, where he covered the United Nations-sponsored World Food Conference. He attended all the sessions of the conference and filed daily stories. He also has written several articles on the problem of hunger in America.

The lecture on this timely and important subject will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

The U.N. Council of the South Shore, a non-profit educational organization for the promotion of understanding in the fields of international relations, the United Nations, and U.S. foreign policy, this year is sponsoring its thirtieth season of world affairs lectures.

Admission to the lecture is free but there is a charge for the catered dinner served at 7 p.m. Reservations may be made by telephoning Miss Eleanor Brown, 59 Andrews Rd, Quincy; Miss Vera Call, 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy; or Mrs. Viola Ellis, 18 Terme Rd, Quincy. Deadline for reservations is Monday, Dec. 9. A limited number of dinner tickets are available at reduced rates for students.

For North, A Disappointing End

For Presidents, A Big 'Second Season'

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy-North Quincy football series has been spiced by many exciting games but few have been more thrilling than last week's 42nd renewal on the frozen turf of Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Both teams went into the game with losing records but for them this was the second season. All other games during the season are forgotten and for the players this game makes or breaks the season.

Hank Conroy's Quincy team won its first game in your years, 14-13, but it was Ralph Frazier's North club which provided the most exciting play of the game with only 1:43 left and barely missed pulling out the win.

Quincy had scored its second touchdown with two minutes remaining to take a 14-7 lead but North immediately came back with a 63-yard pass play to come within a point. Sophomore Brian Donaghey threw to Brian Doherty for the score. Quincy's defense, however, rose up and halted the try for the two winning points.

"This is just great and the kids did a tremendous job," said a happy Conroy. "I was especially pleased with our defense, which had given up an awful lot of points. They were outstanding.

"During the week we relaxed and took the boys to a movie and I told them it was a rough season but they had to have pride and they certainly had it. We were hurting all season and had our strongest team today since the first couple of games of the year. This win makes up for our frustrations this season and it is a happy ending. I'm tickled for the boys who took their lumps and never complained. They just wouldn't be denied today."

Preston Carroll, a standout runner all year, had one of his better days as he gained a net of 138 yards himself and scored all of Quincy's points.

"This was a fitting end to a fine high school career for him," Conroy said. Paul Vespaziani also ran well and they were a good combination today.

"On defense Doug King and Joe Megnia were terrific at end and North couldn't gain around the ends. The whole defense did a great job. And the line was opening the holes for Carroll and Vespaziani with King, Steve Silva, Steve Coleman and Bob Carrella blocking well. Jeff Little and John Riggs played fine two-way games.

"I want to pay tribute to my assistant coaches for a job well done. They really had the team prepared for this game."

Frazier was understandably disappointed after failing to get his fourth straight win over Quincy but was high in his praise of all his players.

"This is as fine a group of boys as I've ever coached and they certainly deserved better than a 4-6 record," he said. "They did another fine job today and I have no complaints. We had our chance to win it at the end. These kids lost some tough games this year and were in every game except Brockton. Even in that game we were tied at the half.

"Carroll was just great for them and I was surprised at the way he ran on the frozen field. If the field had been dry it would have been no surprise but it was amazing the way he carried the ball on that field. The footing was very tough."

Ralph had words of praise for his outstanding runner, Brian Doherty, who had missed the two previous games and whose status had been questionable up to game time. Doherty gained a net of 83 yards and ran hard all day. Frazier also hailed Fullback Matty Constantino, Dan Noonan, who played for the injured Mark Reale at end, and center Richie Joyce.

The entire defense was praised by its coaches, who had special words for Jack Hatfield, Tom Callahan, Paul O'Donnell, Dennis McGuire and John Gallagher.

North made a gallant goal line stand late in the half to stop Quincy four times within the three-yard line after Carroll had raced 19 yards to the three, stepping out of bounds there.

"I thought that when we held them there we were in fine shape," Frazier said.

Quincy's first touchdown was set up by a questionable play. With fourth and 10 on the Raiders' 25, Cooper Jordan went back to punt but surprisingly chose to run instead and was stopped on the 31 from where Carroll went all the way and Quincy took the lead.

Quincy gained a net of 166 yards on the ground, had only 21 yards passing with two for seven and one interception and had 13 first downs after going the first 13 minutes without one. North had a net of 119 yards rushing, 77 yards and both touchdowns passing with two for seven and had nine first downs.

6th Win Over North For Conroy

Thanksgiving's win over North Quincy ended a three-game losing streak for Quincy Coach Hank Conroy in the series and gave him a personal 6-5 record against North since he took over as head coach in 1964.

Earlier this year the Quincy coach had recorded his 50th coaching win.

Quincy, incidentally, knocked Waltham out of the Super Bowl by handing the Hawks their only loss, 21-20, in a thrilling finish earlier in the year. Waltham finished just one point behind Natick for second place in Division One and a bowl berth against Reading. Waltham finished up with a resounding 46-6 win over Brockton.

A Matter Of Streaks

Quincy's win on the holiday snapped a five-game losing streak and handed North its fifth loss in a row.

North, 4-1 at one time, finished with a 4-6 record, Ralph Frazier's first losing season in four years, while Quincy had a 3-7 mark.

Rickson, Leone 'Pour'

Coordinator of Athletics Carl Leone and Coordinator of Physical Education Ken Rickson were hosts again at half-time Thanksgiving as they served coffee and doughnuts to city and school officials and other dignitaries under the stands.

The Scoring

Here is how the scoring went in the Thanksgiving Day game:

First Period

North's Mike Meehan passed to Matty Constantino for 14 yards and a touchdown and Paul Doherty kicked the point. The touchdown was set up by a pass interception by Jack Hatfield on Quincy's 28.

Third Period

Quincy's Preston Carroll ran 31 yards for a touchdown and also rushed for the two points to put the Presidents ahead. The touchdown was set up when North's Cooper Jordan decided

Fourth Period

Carroll scored from the one but the try for points failed. Quincy drove 56 yards for the touchdown after a Jordan punt and the touchdown came with two minutes to play.

With 1:43 remaining, Sophomore Brian Donaghey took over at quarterback for North and threw a bomb to Brian Doherty, who ran the final 35 yards to complete a 63-yard play. Doherty was stopped in the try for the winning points.

Donaghey's Play A Big One

Brian Donaghey, North Quincy sophomore quarterback, was in the Thanksgiving game for only one play but almost emerged as one of the Raiders' big heroes.

After Quincy scored its second touchdown with only two minutes left in the game, Ralph Frazier put young Donaghey in at quarterback to replace Mike Meehan. He immediately unloaded a bomb to Brian Doherty, who made a nice catch and ran 35 yards to complete a 63-yard scoring play which took everyone by surprise.

However, Doherty failed in his attempt to rush for the game winning points and Quincy won by one.

No Whistle While He Worked

Referee Joe Berman was forced to stop the Thanksgiving game at one point to request the p.a. announcer to advise the Quincy fans that if the blowing of a whistle didn't stop, the Presidents would be penalized.

"I heard a whistle in the Quincy stands and it was confusing to us and the players," Berman said. "I had to have it stopped."

'Quincy 350 Years' Goes On Sale

"QUINCY 350 Years", a soft-cover and hard-cover book published by Quincy Heritage, Inc., tells the story of Quincy in 13 chapters, each symbolizing one of the 13 original colonies.

The book, edited by Quincy Historical Society President H. Hobart Holly, is now on sale at the Quincy Heritage office located in the Quincy Center MBTA station.

A total of 4,500 soft-cover copies of the book have been printed and 500 hard-cover copies will soon be off the press.

Beginning with an introductory letter from Mayor Walter J. Hannon, "Quincy 350 Years" traces Quincy's history from its early days to the present and also peeks into the city's next 350 years of growth and change.

Individual chapters deal with Quincy's government, past and present, geology and geography, religion and ethnology, education, economic life and Quincy's 27 miles of shoreline. One chapter, "Distinctively Quincy", noted the city's features and landmarks which make Quincy, Quincy.

Two separate chapters are devoted to "The Adams Family and Quincy" and "Quincy's Sons and Daughters".

The next-to-last chapter maps out Quincy's Historic Trail, "not a road by which one follows history; but rather a way by which one may experience contact with a rich and varied history."

With 350 years past, the city of Quincy and its citizens look ahead to the next 350 years in the final chapter of this saga of Quincy.

Each of the 13 chapters was written by local authors. Those contributing articles to the book were Holly, George Wilson, Rev. John J. McMahon, Dr. James R. Cameron, Thomas S. Burgin, Richard K. Chrystal, Richard W. Carlisle, Dorothy E. Newton, Thomas B. Adams and Geoffrey A. Davidson.

The many pictures dispersed throughout the pages were donated by Doris

S. Oberg, Teresa Camten, W. F. Bowman, Peabody Museum of Salem, Dorothy Cavanagh, Rosenfeld, W. C. Edwards History of Quincy, Bostonian Society, Edmund Quincy and the Museum of Fine Arts, the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Historical Society.

William Dahlgren, a post graduate student at Quincy Vocational Technical School, designed the book's red, white and blue cover combining the British and American flags.

S. Gunnar Myrbeck & Co., Inc. created the overall book design and produced the books for Quincy Heritage, Inc.

Lawrence P. Creedon is general chairman of Quincy Heritage and John R. Graham is executive director.

Co-chairing the publication committee of Quincy Heritage are Henry W. Bosworth, Jr., Richard W. Carlisle and Herb Fontaine. Other members of the publication committee are Teresa Carsten, Richard Chrystal, Carl Deyoso, John Golden Jr., Carol Lee Griffin, Mildred Harrison, Sol Levenson and Robert Waywood.

Hannon Hits Merrymount Residents' 'Selfish Attitude'

Merrymount Addition Hinges On NQHS

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The fate of a proposed addition to the Merrymount School hinges on whether a new North Quincy High School is built.

The two proposals are piggy-backed on the same bond issue, it was disclosed this week. It means if the new North Quincy High School is voted down, the Merrymount School addition will go down with it.

While Merrymount citizens clamored for "separate and distinct" consideration of school needs, Mayor Walter J. Hannon called their request "a selfish attitude" on the part of Merrymount citizens:

"Of course they want separate consideration," he told the Quincy Sun, "I think that's a selfish attitude. They can send their kids to Quincy High School, an accredited high school. There is no concern for North Quincy High School which can lose its accreditation. Who cares about North Quincy High School? I care."

Hannon said, too, the building of an addition to the Merrymount School was "not a priority."

Ward I Councilor Leo J. Kelly disagreed with the Mayor, calling the need for a Merrymount addition "crucial".

"The need is there," said Kelly. "I intend to work to get the proposal out of the Mayor's office. I totally believe the school is needed."

Kelly also said he had not known both proposals were to be combined on the same bond issue. He said:

"This is the first time the Mayor has definitely said the two would be on the same bond issue. The building of a new North Quincy High School and the addition to the Merrymount School are two different issues which stand on their own merits. They don't belong on the same bonding issue."

Admitting his office is "lobbying for North Quincy High School," Hannon said:

"If we can afford it [the addition to Merrymount], and lump it with the bond issue and get a 65 per cent state reimbursement, we can see doing it. If we get North Quincy High School, I'll support it on one big bond issue."

A group of Merrymount citizens have formed a Committee for Action Now [CAN] to renew their fight for the Merrymount addition.

Mrs. Frederick Swanton of 10 Samoset Ave., Merrymount, a member of CAN, listed a litany of space deficiencies at the Merrymount School, including the lack of a gymnasium, a lunchroom, and classrooms. She said:

"School Department figures show the need for an addition at Merrymount. And the school's needs should be separate and distinct from any other school."

The Quincy School Committee passed eight months ago a six-to-one vote to build an

'Not In Good Faith'

Nurses Association Files Negotiation Charges Against City

The Massachusetts Nurses Association has filed formal charges against the City of Quincy charging it failed to negotiate in good faith with the 350 registered nurses employed at Quincy City Hospital.

The charges which, filed last week with the State Labor Relations Commission, follow a year of efforts on the part of the nurses to secure agreement from the city over wages and other working conditions. The nurses have been working without a contract since Dec. 31, 1973.

Both the city and the nurses agreed several months ago to submit the issues to an independent fact finder for settlement, but the city has refused to abide by the decision handed down last month, the MNA said. At that time, some 100 off-duty registered nurses marched from the hospital to Quincy City Hall to meet with Mayor Walter Hannon and his labor negotiator, Joseph McParland. Both maintained that they could not agree to the retroactive pay increases recommended by the fact finder. In addition to claiming a legal barrier to this settlement, they said the city could not afford the expense.

The nurses, on the other hand, pointed out that the hospital is not operated at a loss and that their low salaries in effect are subsidizing the health services provided there. The nurses' salaries at Quincy City Hospital have fallen behind those of other hospitals in the area as a result of the year-long delay by the city to implement the recommended new wage scales, the MNA said. The State Labor Relations Commission will now conduct an investigation of the nurses' charges against the city.

Rev. William Carroll Transferred To Woburn

Rev. William R. Carroll, associate pastor at St. John's Church, Quincy for three years has been re-assigned to St. Charles Church in Woburn.

Fr. Carroll will begin his duties as associate pastor of that parish Tuesday, Dec. 17.

St. John's will hold a farewell reception in honor of Fr. Carroll Sunday from 2:30-4:30 p.m. at the church.

A native of Charlestown,

Father Carroll attended St. John's Seminary and was ordained in 1970.

While at St. John's, he was active in the hockey program and was in charge of CCD classes in the upper grades, the Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts as well as the Junior League.

Before coming to Quincy, Father Carroll was stationed at St. Francis Xavier Cabrini in Scituate.

Ground Rules Argued

Now It's A Debate Over 10-Story Height Debate

The setting of the ground rules and format for the proposed 10-story height limit debate has turned into a debate itself.

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, one of the debaters, has disagreed with several ground rules proposed by Richard P. Ward, official Quincy Citizens Association [QCA] representative appointed by QCA President Pasquale DiStefano, the other debater.

Tobin objects not only to the format of the debate but to the issue to be debated, calling both proposals "unreasonable".

Henry Bosworth, editor and publisher of The Quincy Sun, Robert Sears, City Hall reporter for the Patriot Ledger, and Herb Fontaine, news editor of WJDA, were selected last month to oversee the debate and to work out the ground rules and format of the debate with Ward.

All three moderators were approved by both Tobin and DiStefano.

In a letter written to the moderators as well as Tobin and DiStefano, Ward stated the issue of the debate as "Should the QCA's 10-story height limitation for zones without a present limitation be adopted by the City Council of Quincy?"

Tobin responded to this statement of the issue, saying:

"The issue is much broader than that. It is statements made by the President of the QCA and members which are not totally correct and insist that high-rise construction can be constructed in residential areas of the city."

Tobin requested a written affidavit by the QCA if this issue point were no longer an issue.

Tobin strongly objected to Ward's format outline of the debate in which he labeled Tobin "the negative speaker."

Tobin replied:

"I have no thoughts of being the negative speaker. This statement is so incongruous and laughable, to the point of being hysterical."

"No one has been more positive," he continued, "in the approach to government in the City of Quincy than the Council President and no one has been more negative in public press statements about our city government than the President of the QCA. I will never agree to those terms."

Tobin also reiterated to Ward his request to obtain a list of the QCA members who voted to support DiStefano's action in the debate. The QCA president claims he represents a membership of 600.

"I want this program to go forward," said Tobin. "...I have nothing to hide in any of my actions as an elected official and I intend to be heard regarding the half-truths, innuendos and defamatory statements being made by the President of the QCA."

Ward also proposed the debate take place in a public hall, "such as at Voc-Tech, Woodward School for Girls, or Central Junior High School," whichever is acceptable to Tobin and DiStefano.

According to Ward's outline, both Tobin and DiStefano would have 12 minutes to deliver a "constructive statement" and each debator would be allowed six minutes rebuttal time.

Each moderator would ask each debator two questions, one at a time, in rotation. Each speaker would have one minute to respond to his question and the other speaker would be allowed 30 seconds to comment on the other's answer.

Downtown Area Much Brighter At Night

Downtown Quincy is now almost three times brighter at night than it used to be.

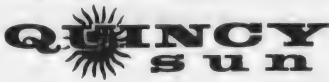

Approximately 35 new street lamps with an output of 63,000 lumens each are being installed on Hancock St. at the request of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The new lamps were requested by the association last year, but were delayed due to the energy crisis.

John Shirriff of Massachusetts Electric Company said that all of the new lamps should be installed by Christmas, and will cost about $17.50 per month to operate as opposed to the old lamps, which had an output of 22,000 lumens and cost $9 per month.

Shoppers and merchants had complained that the old lights made the downtown area dark, unattractive and a cause of potential problems.

Committee To Study

6 Alternatives For S. Quincy MBTA Transit Highway Project

Six alternatives have been selected for detailed analysis in connection with the proposed South-Quincy area MBTA transit-highway project.

The alternative designs were presented last week at a meeting of the Study Committee for the project.

The MBTA and the Massachusetts Department of Public Works are conducting the study, an environmental impact analysis for the proposed "T" station and its related highway and parking facilities. Consultant for the study is Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade & Douglas, an engineering, planning and design firm with offices in Boston.

The proposed transit station would be a regional one, serving commuters from the south of Boston, as well as local residents.
The station would be located along an extension of the MBTA Red Line from Quincy Center to South Braintree, in the area where the transit line meets the Rte 3 expressway, near the Rte 128 interchange.

The Transportation Study Committee for the project includes representatives of local government, business, residents, conservationists and other interest groups from Quincy,
Braintree and the South Shore Region. The committee's role is to review the progress of the study and to comment on the alternatives and their impacts.

The six alternatives include a no-build alternative, a minimum-action alternative, and four different designs for a regional facility with direct access from the expressway.

A detailed analysis of environmental impacts is being made for each of these alternatives, and the costs of each option will be compared with expected benefits to transportation users.

The no-build alternative would provide no transit station or related highway improvements in the South
Quincy area. Under this option the Red Line extension to South Braintree would still be completed, as the Federal government has already approved this project and recently granted the MBTA an additional $23 million to complete it.

The minimum-action alternative would involve only a local platform station in the South Quincy area, and would not include a regional parking facility. This kind of station would serve primarily local residents, who could walk to the station or be dropped off there.

The remaining four station alternatives would each include a parking garage for as many as 1,500 to 2,000 cars, with new access ramps allowing direct access to the facility from the expressway. The expressway would also be rebuilt to accommodate the new interchange, improve driver safety through the elimination of the weaving problem and facilitate traffic flow.

One of the regional designs, designated Scheme A, would place the station and a parking garage along the railroad right of way in the area to the north of the Raytheon plant. This plan is unique in that it could separate regional from local traffic.
Regional traffic would enter the upper level of the parking facility directly from ramps connecting the expressway. A separate section of the parking garage would be reserved for motorists arriving on local streets.

Under Scheme B, the station would be in a similar location, but the access ramps would be constructed south of the Raytheon plant, connecting to Center Street. In either of these designs, pedestrian access from Independence Avenue could be provided or not depending on local neighborhood impacts.

The other two regional station designs, Scheme C and Scheme D, would locate the station in the vicinity of the Center Street underpass, requiring slightly different ramp configurations because of their nearness to the expressway.

During the development of these alternatives, care has been taken so that neither the ramps nor the transit facility would require the taking of any homes in either Quincy or Braintree.

Consumer Center Established

Mayor Walter J. Hannon announces the establishment of a new municipal function, The Consumer Assistance Center and the appointment of its director, Mrs. Elizabeth A. DeAngelis.

Hannon said the Consumer Assistance Center will be responsible to the Quincy Council on Aging and its executive director, Putnam S. Borden.

He noted the reasons for this were because of the difficulties many of the city's elderly experienced in initiating consumer complaints and because a large part of the volunteer staff might be recruited from among civic minded senior citizens.

Hannon added that the program was conceived at a meeting in his office with Senator Arthur H. Tobin, Borden and staff members from the Consumer Protection Divisions, Office of the Attorney General.

The Consumer Assistance Center, when staffed, will accept all local consumer complaints and will attempt to negotiate mutually acceptable solutions between the parties. In instances of unresolvable legitimate complaints, cases will be referred to appropriate state or federal agencies for legal action. In addition to complaint handling, it is expected that the Center will also serve as a source of consumer information for the community.

Mrs. DeAngelis is a resident of Weymouth, married and has three children. She earned her B.A. in Economics at University of Massachusetts, Boston in 1971 and intends to pursue graduate studies in the future. Prior to her appointment she was the Data Coordinator for a nation wide heart attack study conducted in this area by Boston University. For many years Mrs. DeAngelis has been active in civic and community programs including the presidency of the League of Women Voters of Weymouth.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Short boyfriend gets overlooked

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

While most of the guys are carrying on flirtations, all I get is dirty looks. No one wants to go out with me because I am short. I am 5'6" and realize that I'm not John Wayne, but all the girls my size or smaller want to go with someone six feet tall. Why??

I asked a girl to go to the first dance of the year and she told me that she was going to be out of town. Well, since I could go stag, I went. She was there with a tall guy. When I asked her why, she told me it was because I was too short. Are elevator shoes all that expensive?

Ronnie

Dear Ronnie:

Size has nothing to do with quality. This girl is a small loss. As you date more, you'll find that many people really do not care about size. It is unimportant. With the trend in men's shoes why not try some of the new chunky heels that are being shown? You can add two inches to your height in five minutes!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

For the last five years my husband and our three children have lived in a very nice home. The neighborhood is composed of doctors, lawyers, and other professional people. My husband is a partner in a construction firm. Lately things have not been too good. The children are still participating in sports and recreation with the neighbors, but we feel that we can no longer afford to entertain.

We both want the best for our children, but I am tired of never being able to go out. My husband says that our extra money should go to the children because they need every advantage. I feel that I need some advantages, too. What do you say?

Wallflower

Dear Wallflower:

Each family must set its own priorities. In this case, it sounds as if your husband has one idea and you have another. If you are unhappy, giving the children another guitar lesson won't help you or the children. Boredom and frustration only make the entire family miserable. Why not consider spending half of your recreation fund on the children and half on the parents? You will be happier and the children will appreciate that more than the extras.

Vitamin pill pitch brings blush of shame

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

By now most of us are successfully tuning out corny TV commercials and struggling to keep our proportions realistic when it comes to the less corny ones. I mean, sometimes a lot of high-priced talent is employed to make us think the right toilet tissue will really make a difference in our lives.

Up until now I have managed as well as the next person, but I saw one the other night which could not be laughed off. A pharmaceutical company which makes vitamin pills shaped like little animals for children, sent a message into our house which brought me from another room to make sure I was hearing right. And I was.

A mother, or reasonable facsimile of one, was lamenting the fact that even though our children might eat all the right foods, sometimes we don't feel SURE they are getting all their vitamins. And then we might have trouble getting the little dears to take an ordinary vitamin pill which would give us so much peace of mind. But with the animal-shaped pills, the children will clammer happily for them. Big smile. End of commercial.

I turned her off and took a walk around the block, but I still didn't feel much better. It was the day I had read in the morning paper about delegates to the World Food Conference in Rome not attending all meetings as expected and, instead, running off to banquets and cocktail parties.

And like everybody else, I'd seen those pitiful photos in news magazines of starving, sometimes nude children — either standing alone or clinging to the tattered skirts of their helpless and haunted-looking mothers.

Thousands upon thousands of human beings all over the world are not just hungry — but starving to death. And we mold vitamins into pastel, animal-shaped pills to make them more attractive to our children. Just to be SURE.

I am ashamed and a little frightened. If that commercial is bringing results — as I assume it is intended to do — then aren't the people who reward such efforts, as well as the people who present them, equally guilty? Is an absent delegate to the World Food Conference any less sensitive than viewers who are not offended by such a commercial?

I have listened to pitches for sweat-free armpits, softer toilet paper and feminine sprays, but it took a vitamin pill shaped like a little animal to make me blush.

Pablo Casals said it well: "The love for one's family or country is a natural thing. But why should love stop at the border? We are all leaves of a tree and the tree is humanity."

romance and guard your reputation. Maintain conservative practices regarding finances. Finish projects.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — A busy week with work challenges and active social life. Check contracts and legal papers very carefully for possible errors.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Curb your temper, lest you seriously harm a relationship with a relative. You may receive an unexpected gift or two — maybe some money. Don't encourage old romances or think about them. Perform work with joy.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Out of town relatives may arrive, or you may take short trips. Letters and phone calls are stimulated. Home redecorating could occupy your attention. Not a good time to go into debt for gifts or non-essentials.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Communications of all kinds are active. Work on last minute details of projects in process. You can be the mediator in a controversy. Your disposition is happy and optimistic. Social affairs and business mix well.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Career honors or bonus or both could come to you now. Don't enter into arguments with loved one — take them "with a grain of salt" and good humor. Join in community affairs and lend your talents and support.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Take care of last minute mailings, arrangements for the holidays. Avoid arguments, disagreements with mate or partner — let troublesome attitudes "go by the board." Be discreet in romance and realistic.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Opportunities are all around you — be alert! Consider all offers with a realistic eye. Renovate yourself and your wardrobe. Change of style is uplifting. Social life is active so get in the swim. Curb extravagance.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Resist desire to loan money to a friend. Something or someone out of the past requires that you stay with your principles of honesty and high ideals. Finish up projects in progress and tie up all loose ends.

HELEN GURLEY BROWN...determined to be herself

Helen Gurley Brown, editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine and author of "Sex and the Single Girl," is a woman of high intelligence, and more interested in dealing with the realities of life, than in abstract theories.

Her writing reveals her to be a straight-forward individual. And, whether you agree or disagree with her point of view, you have to admit she has a keen, sharp mind and ease of expression that we might all well envy.

Since Helen's name has almost become synonymous with sex, let's take a closer look at how she thinks, feels, and functions physically.

Regardless of tradition or moral codes of the past, this lady insists on being practical, realistic and direct in her approach to the problems of women today — including herself. She possesses personal pride and dignity, and though she is receptive to new ideas and new people, she is really a conservative person when it comes to emotional involvement. She will be most cautious in her selection of close intimate friends. She has known disappointment and frustration in the past, which has contributed to her cautious approach.

She is self-confident, (note the large capital letters) and an independent person. Even though what she thinks, says, or does, may make her vulnerable to criticism, she is determined to be herself.

In a social situation she is a delight. She can be warm and friendly, quick-witted, a good listener as well as offering much to the conversation that stimulates thinking. She has a talent for being a good storyteller, and with her excellent sense of timing, she can, if she so desires, keep people hanging on every word.

Ms. Brown has many talents in addition to her literary skill. Her aesthetic tastes combined with her creativity give her the ability to paint, as well as endowing her with a sense of drama.

She can be many things to many people — on the job, efficient, responsible, devoted; as a wife, she will be affectionate, considerate, and occasionally stubborn; as a friend, she is loyal, understanding, and frank. But to her "own self" she will be true.

She is avant-garde in her approach to life, but always totally open and honest. So much so that at times, even she suffers from feelings of guilt.

*All my best wishes
Helen Gurley Brown*

The Aching Back

One out of three adults in this country have experienced at least one episode of severe and prolonged back pain in their lives. It is estimated that close to two million Americans will suffer from chronic backache this year alone, and most of these victims will be middle-aged and physically inactive.

According to the U.S. Public Health Service, the problem is increasing. By 1977, more people will suffer from chronic and recurring back ailments than from any other single medical problem.

Why the continued rise? Most experts believe it is a further sign that the nation is not in the physical condition it should be in. In most instances, they say, bad backs are the result of being overweight, middle-aged or older — and out of condition — allowing for weak muscle tone and poor back support. One of the main methods now being used to help the average back victim is to gently get him back into condition — through exercise, diet, sometimes both.

TASTY SNACKS - These easy-to-make ham and cheese snacks will add tasty food interest to cocktail parties.

COOKING CORNER

Do-ahead foods give parties a boost

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

A well-balanced cocktail food menu includes both hot and cold hors d'oeuvres.

The wise hostess is one who prepares and refrigerates party food long before serving time. Then, at the last minute, she heats the hot hors d'oeuvres and removes plastic covers from the cold food.

The recipes given today are the do-ahead type.

CRESCENT HAM 'N CHEESE SNACKS

- 2 1/2 cups very finely chopped ham
- 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 cup chopped stuffed green olives
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 8-oz. can refrigerated quick rye crescent dinner rolls
- 3 tablespoons sesame seed

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In medium bowl, combine first six ingredients; mix well. Separate crescent dough into four rectangles; firmly press perforations to seal. Spread each with ham mixture. Starting at shorter side, roll up each rectangle. Coat with sesame seed. Cut each roll into five slices. Place cut-side-down on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 18 to 22 minutes until golden brown. Refrigerate any leftovers. Twenty snacks.

Tip: For use in counter top portable oven, preheat oven to 375 degrees. Prepare snacks as directed. Place 10 snacks on ungreased oven tray. Bake 22 to 28 minutes until golden brown. Repeat with remaining snacks.

PATIO PATE

- 1 8-ounce package small curd cottage cheese
- 1 4 1/2-ounce can liverwurst spread
- 1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Combine all ingredients in a mixing bowl and blend well.

DEVILED DIP

- 2 4 1/2-ounce cans deviled ham
- 1 cup sour cream
- 3 tablespoons spicy brown mustard
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 teaspoons celery seed

Combine all ingredients in a mixing bowl and blend well. Chill. Serve with crisp, fresh vegetables or chips.

Metropolitan Civic Ballet In 'The Nutcracker' Here Saturday, Sunday

Quincy Symphony Orchestra is sponsoring two performances of the classic miniature ballet "The Nutcracker", performed by the Metropolitan Civic Ballet Center Co. of Newton.

The first, a 500-seat sell-out, will take place Saturday at 8 p.m. in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

QSO has arranged and scheduled a second performance to be held Sunday at 2 p.m., again in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

"The Nutcracker" is the story of Clara, a little girl, and a toy nutcracker she receives as a Christmas gift from her favorite uncle.

Out of a handful of magic dust thrown over the Christmas tree comes the Sugar Plum Fairy who awakens the Nutcracker Prince from his toy form.

As Clara sleeps under the tree, the Sugar Plum Fairy and the Nutcracker Prince appear to her, inviting Clara to accompany them to the Kingdom of Sweets where she is crowned a princess and royally entertained by delicacies from every land.

Officers of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra are Andrew T. Walsh, president; Raymond A. Thayer, first vice-president; Mary Vallier, second vice-president; Irene Williamson, recording secretary; Harriet Bonish, corresponding secretary; Margaret Phelan, treasurer;

Richard Ambrosia, Marjorie Maxham, Bruce Randall, trustees; Nancy J. Johnson, librarian; Catherine Bishop, Robert B. Brown, Rose Devore, Joseph Doran, Anthony Ferrante, Sumner Hirschberg, Amy Kehew, Richard Koch, Al Marchionne, Eleanor Nelson, Jack Powers, Marilyn Reiman, Jack Savitz and Norma Taylor, directors.

DANCERS in the Metropolitan Civic Ballet Center Co. of Newton delight in the gift of the toy nutcracker - soon to come to life - during "The Nutcracker" to be preceded by the Quincy Symphony Orchestra Saturday and Sunday.

Quincy Eligible For Federal Development Funds

Quincy is now eligible to receive federal funds from the Economic Development Administration to reduce the level of unemployment and increase the level of economic activity within the entire Boston area.

The Boston Labor Area which includes Quincy has been designated by the U.S. Department of Commerce as a redevelopment area under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, as amended.

To become eligible for financial assistance under the Act, Quincy and the other towns and cities involved must officially request designation and must also submit an acceptable overall economic development program.

Benefits of the Act include assistance in the planning and construction of new public works projects and other measures all designed to reduce unemployment and to raise the level of economic activity in the Boston area.

'Toys For Tots' Eagle Scout Project For Wollaston Youth

"Toys for Tots" is the theme for an Eagle Scout Project being worked on by Life Scout Edward Boudreau of Troop 19, Wollaston, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Boudreau of 256 Everett St.

In cooperation with the annual drive being conducted by the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, Edward has been making arrangements for the collection of the toys for the needy children of the area.

Arrangements were made by Edward for the placement and manning of the barrels, along the route of the recent Quincy Christmas Parade. The boys, who were standing beside these barrels were volunteers from Edward's own troop.

Realizing that the parade is only one method of acquiring these much needed toys, Edward has planned a collection campaign which will run until Dec. 20. He has contacted the leaders of some of our local religious, fraternal and business establishments and has been successful in arranging for drop-off points at the following places:

Antonio's Restaurant, 6 Maple St., Quincy Center.
City Hall, Quincy Sq.
Capitol Market, 150

Parkway, Quincy.
Dependable Cleaners, 27 Adams St., Quincy.
First National Stores, Beale St., Wollaston.

North Quincy Knights of Columbus, 5 Hollis St., North Quincy.

Sabina's Beauty Salon, 661 Hancock St., Wollaston.
St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Contributions can be made at these, or other places wishing to cooperate in this plan, between now and the final date of the campaign. For further information call 471-3134.

Mrs. John Penniman Christmas Seal Chairman

Mrs. John R. Penniman of 71 Davis St., Wollaston, has been named this year's Christmas Seal Chairman for Quincy, announced Dr. Marjorie A. C. Young, President of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, the local Christmas

Seal agency.

As well as representing the 54 year old organization in its holiday season fund-raising efforts, Mrs. Penniman will also be involved in its year-round objective of the prevention and control of all lung-diseases.

Christmas Seal monies work 12 months a year in the areas of medical research, public health education, community services and programs for controlling such lung cripples as Emphysema, Asthma, Chronic Bronchitis and Tuberculosis.

Poet Conducts Workshop At Quincy High School

An American poet has been "living" at Quincy High School this semester.

She is Diana Der Hovanessian, actually a resident of Cambridge and a Harvard graduate student, who has published widely: her lighter verse in Look, McCall's, and Ladies Home Journal; her serious poems in Harper's Magazine, The Nation, and the Paris Review.

Representing a Newton-based group known as "Poets Who Teach", and funded by the Mass. Council on Arts, Diana has been conducting a 10-hour workshop, stretched over six class periods from Nov. 14 to Dec. 18, at Quincy High School.

Her workshop involves a score of juniors and seniors who are volunteer students from John Braccia's creative writing course and Mrs. Maureen O'Brien's junior advanced English class. The sessions are conducted casually, without desks, chairs, or textbooks, in the balcony-studio of the Method Center [the refurbished auditorium].

Diana gives dramatic readings of the students' poetry and then comments on the significance and the verbal dynamics of each work submitted. Sometimes she cites her own verse or that of well-known authors to illustrate a poetic principle or linguistic stage.

In the course of the workshop, the poet elicits from the school's aspiring lyricists everything from an impressionistic haiku on winter to a full-blown sonnet on isolation.

Like metal-sculptor John Ramondi, who worked with the Vo-Tech students last year, Diana has been brought into the public schools as part of a new approach in teaching generally referred to as artist-in-residence.

The underlying principle of this novel program is the doctrine that art instruction should show young people how to do, rather than tell them what to do. Having the example as well as the words of a practicing performer to go by, the amateur is more effectively enlightened and encouraged to try his own hand at artistic creation.

In 1973 Diana conducted a similar workshop at Broad Meadows Junior High. In the future she is slated to hold seminars on poetry writing for the Quincy teachers as part of the in-service courses they attend after school hours or on release-day afternoons.

Real Lovers Are Friends

Real lovers are making friends with each other all the time...don't even want to make issues over little things which set them apart...either emotionally or in proximity. Some of my readers will accuse me of being super romantic...but I still believe in love...that love mellow and causes an adult male and an adult female to join together in a relationship which doesn't need to be marked with incessant quarreling and fighting. The trouble in most marriages is that husband and wife aren't lovers. They're just "making do"...but not in love with each other...not even friends.

People live together who don't really love each other...who aren't even friends for a number of reasons. One reason is fear...the fear of separation. Each feels so inadequate in themselves that without recognizing it weakness is leaning on weakness...and at the same time blaming the other for not being stronger.

A second reason why people live together who don't really love each other...who aren't even friends is because of the children. Poor children. What a yoke to hang on their young necks. They don't deserve it. They don't usually come out very well in the end. Parents who are not friends do their children no favor...usually they are just using the children as an excuse.

A third reason why people remain together who do not love each other is that through some twisted thinking they hope it will improve. Usually the same script is followed as long as they remain together in their "unholy alliance." Things don't automatically get better...change comes by deliberate action.

Real lovers are friends. Look at them...they talk together. Talking together for friends is fun...look forward to it...have much to tell each other...little events...big events...they talk about feelings...make plans for the future...while they drive...sitting in the living room...out on their boat...pillow talk at night. Real lovers are friends...they talk.

They're content being together. The reason why many husbands and wives have affairs is because they aren't content being together...so they go in search of human companionship...they can find it because others are seeking it too. Then comes the silence at home...or increased fighting...finally the break-up. Real lovers are friends...so they don't need to go in search of outside companionship.

Real lovers who are friends have learned how to cope with their differences. Of course, there will be differences in ways of doing things...in thinking...in attitudes...but they don't need to let these differences keep them from loving and being friends. They have learned how to "talk through" to a satisfactory conclusion to the matter. Observe that talking is very basic to loving and being friends...to having a system of resolving problems. That system can be "wife give in"..."husband give in"...these will sooner or later create unrest. The best system I know is open minded talking...listening...feeling what the other is projecting.

Real lovers who are friends make agreements with each other and commit themselves to those agreements so that they know what each other can count on. "I know what Doris will do"...said Terry..."She's already told me." To Terry Doris' word was as good as her bond. Doris felt the same of Terry. That's the knowing what you can count on.

That partner sitting in the room with you...the one you had children with...are you in love with him/her? Are you friends? Or, are you just living together for some lesser reason? It's your life.

Mother Of 12 And College Student

Maggie Bellotti A Remarkable Woman Of Many Talents

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Maggie Bellotti, wife of Attorney General-elect Francis X. Bellotti, is an amazing woman of many talents and inexhaustible energy.

Although the mother of 12, Mrs. Bellotti still finds time to attend college part-time, perfect her game of tennis, play the piano, campaign for her husband and run a home.

A student at Quincy Junior College since 1966, Mrs. Bellotti has taken and enjoyed courses in English, History and Child Psychology, working towards a degree in sociology. But this semester she has hit a snag - Spanish.

"The professor will read a story," she confided, "and when he asks a question, I won't understand. And there is so much to memorize. Thank God there are other older women in the class."

Striving for a "C" in the course, Mrs. Bellotti said, "I don't want to get any lower than that."

During her two days of classes per week at the college, Mrs. Bellotti also studies basic math. In three more years, she will earn a degree in sociology.

Yet, Mrs. Bellotti does not plan a career in the field.

Interviewed at her home, Mrs. Bellotti said, "I hope to do volunteer work after I earn my degree. I have plenty to do here."

As the mother of a dozen children, Mrs. Bellotti does indeed have plenty to do. During the interview, she was interrupted not only by a congratulatory phone call - long after the Bellotti victory - but also by a daughter's query of "Have you seen my gloves, Mom?"

Her face still tanned from her recent week's victory vacation in Florida, Mrs. Bellotti quietly but firmly denies the often-assumed loneliness attached to the life of a political wife.

"It hasn't at all been a lonely or solitary life," she said. "I hardly left home for 15 years with 12 children. Frank was out a lot, building up his law practice and I started going out more when Frank entered politics in 1964. Then the older ones could take care of the younger ones and I could enjoy banquets and meeting people."

Mrs. Bellotti admits that she never foresaw a political career for her husband when they married.

"I knew Frank six months before marrying him and didn't know all sides of him...Politics fascinated him. There was so much to be done and he thought I could do something. Frank has a lot of principles and morals."

The couple met 27 years ago in Florida where Mrs. Bellotti was working.

"He came down with matched luggage and a convertible," remembered Mrs. Bellotti. "I guess he thought he'd meet somebody," she laughed.

Born in Twin Lakes, Wisconsin - population 1,000 - Mrs. Bellotti doubted she could ever leave the closeness and warmth of a small town.

"I never thought I could leave that town atmosphere," she said in a pensive tone triggered, perhaps, by happy memories of hometown days. "I loved the closeness of a small-town way of life, calling people by their first names."

"But I like Boston very much," she continues. "I enjoy it here. There are endless things to do. And someday I'll go on some tours I should have taken 20 years ago."

Dressed in a black turtleneck sweater and orange slacks, with her blond hair tied softly in a bun lying low on her neck, Mrs. Bellotti belied her age. One of her secrets is exercise, especially tennis.

"Tennis is the greatest thing since peanut butter for women my age," she said with conviction. "The exercise makes me feel great and I've lost 10 pounds since I started playing." She even prefers a night of tennis-playing to an evening of dining out.

Mrs. Bellotti's interests do not end here. She is also taking piano lessons, practicing an hour every day. Added to her list of activities is, of course, campaigning for her husband.

"In former campaigns, I worked eight hours a day for Frank," she said. "But this time, the kids did a lot with 'Youth Voters For Bellotti'. I campaigned a couple of hours a night for him during this campaign."

Mrs. Bellotti does not expect her way of life to change, now that her husband is the attorney general of the state.

"I don't expect any new demands on myself," she said. "...And it's not what the woman does, but what the man does. Frank is well-enough known, for better or worse. He has a 97 per cent recognition factor."

"I'd rather be active, doing something," she continued, "rather than attending luncheons. Mrs. Sargent did a lot of things in a quiet way and I admired her for that - anyone in that type of role, as a matter of fact."

The Bellottis, married 26 years in February, have lived 20 years in Quincy. Their 12 children range in age from 24 to 10. They are Frank, 24, Kathy, 23, Lizzie, 22, Nina, 21, Peter, 20, Terry, 19, Rita, 17, Joey, 16, Tommy, 14, Patty, 12, Michael, 11, and Sheila, 10.

All but three of the children live at home, but all 12 were home for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Bellotti bought a 22-pound turkey to feed her clan and also prepared batches of lasagna for them, adding an Italian touch to Thanksgiving dinner.

Mrs. Bellotti had one priority to fulfill during the Thanksgiving holidays - to finish reading a memory book she had started. "Maybe it will help me with my Spanish," she laughed.

Quincy High School

We Apologize!

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Last week we made - if you happen to go or went to Quincy High School - a colossal goof.

Not buried somewhere down in a corner inside the paper but right smack on Page 1. Right at the top of Page 1 to be exact where nobody could miss it.

It was a photo of the North Quincy High School band being led by their majorettes up Hancock St. during the Quincy Christmas Parade.

There was nothing wrong with the photo. But what was under it - the caption. It said the North band had won the $200 first prize in the high school band competition.

Well! The Sun wasn't on the street an hour when the phones began to ring. And ring, and ring.

On the other end were majorettes and members of the color guard of the Quincy High School band and other Quincy students telling us we had made a boo-boo.

The Quincy band - not North's - had won the top prize.

Marge Nash, our bookkeeper who took the first call came over to me to report the goof and asked, "What are you trying to do, start a Civil War?"

"Oh, no!", I moaned as the phones really began to ring.

I checked the story inside. It correctly reported that Quincy had indeed won first prize. But the photo on Page 1 was dead wrong.

Oh, boy! And the phones kept ringing.

And there was no one to blame - except me. I was the one who had written the outline. And I wasn't about to tell the kids - not right then, anyway - that I'm a Quincy High alumnus. I just didn't feel like being charged with treason on top of stupidity.

As the calls continued to stream in [boy, if one of our advertisers was only sitting there to appreciate such response] each of us who took them apologized.

I told one of the girls - Laurel Peddie, I think her name was - to pass the word around that we not only would correct the error but run a photo of the Quincy High School band in the next issue. [It's on Page 3.]

Apparently everyone did not get the word because the next day we were still receiving calls and then a delegation of girls from QHS arrived at the office.

"Are you going to print a retraction?" one wanted to know. I said we certainly were. "You're not going to hide it somewhere in a corner?" another asked.

We assured them we would give it a prominent space. They said "thanks" and left - friends.

Sometimes a mistake - like a cloud - can have a silver lining. By making this error, we discovered first-hand how nice the kids really are.

Having gone to QHS, I know the feeling of rivalry between Quincy and North. And here, we had given North credit for a Quincy accomplishment. When Polly Dredge, a QHS student who is with us on a work study program reported the kids were thinking of picketing the Sun Office, we couldn't blame them if they did.

But they didn't. They were nice about the whole thing. They were polite in their complaints, mature in accepting our apologies and some even compassionately cushioning our embarrassment by noting "things like this can happen."

Most of the adults who called were nice about it, too. But a couple of them could learn a little from the kids. One woman was positive we had done it on purpose.

Another who called several days later said: "I thought it was in poor taste that you would run the North Quincy band picture when Quincy won..."

I told her it was not a matter of poor taste but an honest error. But she inferred we favored North Quincy which is pretty childish, as any regular reader of The Sun knows. [Example: The QHS Color Guard photo on Page 1 in the Oct. 31 issue.]

We try to give both schools equal space and treatment. We are interested in both schools and their students.

In fact in this very spot last week we complimented both high school bands for being so "sharp" in the Christmas Parade, and other events in which they appear.

As an alumnus of Quincy, I'll confess that after all these years, I still get a tingle up my spine when I hear the QHS band break into "March Down The Field To The Music". Like the day of the Quincy Heritage ceremonies in front of First Parish Church a few weeks ago. But I still think North has a good band, too.

We congratulate the QHS band for being No. 1 in this year's parade. But we know North will be in there next year trying to take the honor away from them.

Two good bands, two good schools. We are proud of them both.

And, most of all, it was nice to meet and hear from some great kids.

To discover and uncover a criminal, the ancient Greeks would place an agate or a piece of jet on a red-hot axe, and it supposedly indicated the guilty person by its motion.

Kansas City Report

Democrats Make History: Adopt Charter Without Fight

By PAUL HAROLD
Quincy Sun Correspondent

KANSAS CITY -- The Democrats made history here at their mid-term convention: they adopted the first charter for a political party, and did so without a battle, not even a fist-fight.

For all the preliminary publicity and hoop-la, the convention turned out to be a political "non-event" - nothing happened. The anticipated disruptions and walkouts by different groups were averted by months of planning and last minute compromises. Ironically, the "reform" charter was ultimately adopted only after "back room" dealings.

Most delegates were not exactly sure what happened or why, and probably won't know for sure until all the newspaper articles and studies are published. The consensus is, however, that the main fight over the charter and the affirmative action provision was a reflection of a battle among leaders of national labor, which had been brewing for the past year.

Massachusetts sent 76 delegates and alternates to the three day convention, two of whom were from Quincy, Dist. Atty. George Burke and Massachusetts Young Democrats National Committeeman Paul Harold, and Peter O'Neill, an aide to House Speaker David Bartley. Congressman James Burke flew in from Washington to join the delegation, as did the state's other Democratic Congressmen.

The Massachusetts group was seated in the far left-hand corner of the convention auditorium, but received almost as much attention and TV coverage as the center stage because of the presence of the state's senior Senator - Edward Kennedy. The constant crunch of TV cameras and autograph seekers surrounding the Senator added a degree of excitement to the sometimes dreary proceedings.

And while Kennedy has announced he is not a candidate for President in 1976, the convention hall was full of Governors and Senators who are indeed candidates. Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia [who visited Quincy last year] and Congressman Morris Udall of Arizona [whose brother Stewart, Secretary of the Interior visited here in 1967 with Lady Bird Johnson] were the first two Presidential hopefuls to visit the Massachusetts delegation.

They were followed by Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas [who sponsored a "Texas-style" cocktail party for 5,000 people], and Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who distributed Washington state apples.

John Q. Adams Ring Brochures In Gas Bills

Quincy residents will be receiving in their gas bills, brochures for ordering limited edition John Quincy Adams signet pendants and rings.

Boston Gas has offered as a public service to insert the brochures into bills going out to 22,000 Quincy residents beginning this week, according to John Graham, Executive Director of Quincy Heritage.

Proceeds from the sale of these items will be used to preserve the crypts of the Presidents in the First Parish Church and for the "Plant a Tree For Life" project of Quincy Heritage, Rev. Graham said.

The ring and pendant bear the Quincy Heritage logo which authenticates them as official commemorative items. They are on display at Roger's Jewelry Store, Quincy, and at the Quincy Heritage Office, Quincy Center MBTA Station.

On behalf of our church members and friends I extend our sincere thanks for your news coverage of our church in two issues of your paper - Nov. 21 and Nov. 27 - on the occasion of the celebration of our 100 years of christian service.

school by the City of Quincy in the Squantum marsh site. It was further voted to support the renovation, remodeling and enlarging, if possible, the existing building located on Hancock and Squantum Streets.

It is the intent of the Quincy Taxpayers Association to demand that the City be realistic in the planning and overall development of any programs which are geared toward the public good.

After several months of continuous study of this and other so-called high school proposals, we do not feel that the City has demonstrated any logical support in its selection of this incredibly remote area for the education of the children of this community.

We, therefore, call upon all of the residents of the City of Quincy to demand an opportunity to cast their ballot either for or against the construction of a new North Quincy High School in the Squantum marsh area in a referendum vote.

Survey To Determine Accessibility Of Buildings For Handicapped

A city-wide survey is being conducted by the city, Easter Seal Society and Cerebral Palsy Foundation, to determine the accessibility of both public and private buildings to handicapped persons.

The three have formed the "Committee to Improve the Environment of the Physically Handicapped," and hopes the results of the survey will:

Make the public aware of the architectural barriers that do exist and how easily they could be removed.

To publish a guide to aid the estimated 10,000 handicapped people in Quincy, as well as visitors during the bicentennial period.

Within the next few weeks, volunteers will be visiting various premises to determine their accessibility to the handicapped.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon urged all to cooperate and help make the project a success by removing all barriers currently existing.

QCA To Launch Drive To Put Height Limit On Ballot

Voter petitions will be circulated within the month to place the 10-story building height limit question on next year's city election ballot.

Quincy Citizens Association [QCA] President Pasquale DiStefano said his organization voted unanimously to authorize funds to print initiative petitions on the height limit controversy.

A total of 5,000 signatures of registered Quincy voters is required to place the question on the November, 1975 city election ballot.

DiStefano said the seven-member committee organizing the petition drive is aiming for 10,000 voter signatures.

"We're very optimistic about the drive," said DiStefano. "People are afraid of high-rises and overdevelopment in Quincy. We hope to see a reasonable limitation on our buildings in Quincy."

The QCA had proposed to the City Council a possible referendum question on the height limit but had received no response from the Council, according to DiStefano.

"We wanted to get concrete action on the issue," he said. "We have to go ahead since the Council hasn't acted."

The committee members coordinating the petition drive are DiStefano, Richard Ward, QCA vice-president; Dorothy Kelly, QCA secretary; Saul Lipsitz, QCA treasurer; Lawrence Curtin, former City Council president and founder of the QCA; James Vey, QCA executive secretary; and Arthur Chandler, officer in the Quincy Taxpayers' Revolt. They plan to print flyers and bumper stickers on the height limit issue and to run advertisements in local newspapers.

Organizations which have endorsed the concept of a 10-story height limit include the South Quincy Civic Association, Wollaston Park Association, South-West Community Council, Quincy Taxpayers' Revolt, Quincy Environmental Protection Society, President Cranch Hill Association, the St. Moritz Association and the QCA.

The petition drive committee also plans to enlist the support of fraternal organizations throughout the city.

Raiders Again Will Depend On Speed

By TOM SULLIVAN

Coach Bob Nolan has led six of his eight North Quincy basketball teams into the Tech or State Tournaments and if he hopes to do it this year he will have to depend again on speed and aggressiveness.

Bob seldom has had tall teams and the Raiders will be small once again this year. Last year's club, which won nine of its last 12 games to qualify for the state tournament with a 12-6 record, was at a decided height disadvantage in every game but was beaten badly on the boards on only one or two occasions.

Last winter North was co-champion with Medford of the Greater Boston League. This year both North and Quincy are in the Suburban League which Nolan sees as just as competitive as the GBL.

Three of Nolan's teams won the GBL title outright in addition to sharing the crown a year ago.

Nolan has only three lettermen among his players and one of them, Co-Capt. Mark Reale, will be out of action with an injury until late January or early February. Reale, at 6-1, was to have been one of the Raiders keys.

The other lettermen are senior Tim Clifford [6-2], the other co-captain, and junior Cooper Jordan [6-1]. Last year Jordan was promoted to the varsity for the eighth game of the season and wound up as one of Nolan's top scorers and rebounders.

Other seniors are Steve Martell [6-1], Walter Melton, Jack Powell and Jack Rabel. Rabel, who ran into all sorts of bad luck a year ago, will be the quarterback of the team, hoping to fill the shoes of the sensational Steve Miller, now a standout freshman at Eastern Nazarene College. Last year, just when he was ready to spell one of the starters, he was either injured or ill.

All of these seniors played some with the varsity, as did junior Jay Nelson, the tallest player at 6-4.

The other juniors are Paul Kelleher, Rich Mahoney, Mike

Holleran, Pete Fallon [6-2], Jack Browne, Scott Roberts, Joel Devlin, John Lawson and Tom DeAngelo.

All of the juniors played for Eddie Miller's outstanding junior varsity team last season.

"This will be a typical North team with the emphasis on defense," Nolan said. "In the past our press has proven extremely successful and we will use it a good deal again. As far as the offense is concerned, I expect a lot of balance."

Clifford and Jordan are good scorers and Nolan expects to get a lot of points from his guards. Fans can be assured of a good, hustling, aggressive team, North's trademark since Nolan took over the reins.

Last year, after their great comeback to make the tournament, the Raiders were defeated by Xavier of Westwood in the opener as 6-6 Jim Bailey of Xavier scored 30 points and controlled the boards.

With 10 teams in the Suburban League, North plays only two non-league games, both with B. C. High. The Raiders open on Dec. 21 at home against the Eagles and wind up the season with them Feb. 17 at B. C. High.

Eddie Miller, former North Quincy and Boston State standout, is again assisting Nolan and coaching the jayvees.

O'Brien Club, Gamblers Off To Good Start

By TOM SULLIVAN

This will be the biggest year yet for semi-pro basketball in Quincy with two outstanding teams representing the city in the Cranberry League.

The O'Brien Club, defending co-champion, has been joined by the Quincy Gamblers in the strong eight-team league.

Each Quincy team won its second in a row over the weekend, defeating the S. Boston Lithuanians.

Saturday the Gamblers won, 94-82, as Sprague had 19 points, Greenlaw 18 and Kissane 15.

Sunday the O'Brien Club romped, 128-81, with Jellison and Dalton scoring 26 points each, McNamara 25, Bowen 16 and Bradley 15.

The first meeting of the Quincy rivals will be played next Thursday at Eastern Nazarene College's neutral gym.

Both teams play their home games on Sunday nights. The O'Brien Club at North Quincy High at 7 p.m. and the Gamblers at the old Quincy High gym at 6:30. All games are open to the public free of charge.

Both teams got away to impressive starts as the O'Brien Club walloped the Weymouth Alphas, 143-82, and is believed to have set a league scoring record, and the Gamblers bowed in with a 104-76 win over another new entry, Middleboro.

Newcomer Mark Jellison scored 29 points, Gary Bowen 23 and Alan Dalton 21 for the O'Brien Club.

For the Gamblers Carlton Chandler had 17 points, Vin Costello 17 and Mike Dunn 16. O'Brien Club Player-Coach Leo Papile, former North Quincy High and Keene State College player, has several returnees from last year's championship club which followed up by winning the Quincy YMCA Spring League title.

Back from that team, in addition to Papile, are 6-3 Ron Bradley, North Quincy High and Eastern Nazarene; 6-3 Alan Dalton, Suffolk U.; 6-7 Bob McNamara, Boston University, and 5-9 Eddie Miller, North Quincy High and Boston State. Gary Bowen (6-9) from Fairfield U., played for the team over the last half of last season and played for it in the Y League.

Newcomers are 6-4 Mark Jellison, North Quincy High and Northeastern; 6-4 Fred Cabral, Boston State; 6-5 John Douglas, Boston State, and 6-7 Dave Johnson, Jamaica Plain High School. Douglas has three years ago played with Beau's Place of Quincy, which that year won the Cranberry crown.

North Quincy is well-represented with three former Raiders playing with the Gamblers as well as the four for the O'Brien Club.

Player-Coach Mike Dunn of the Gamblers is one of four players who were with the O'Brien Club last year.

Dunn (6-2) one of nine former Boston College players on the club, is joined by Rich Sprague (6-2), 6-5 Paul Gullikson and 6-5 John Hassan from the O'Brien Club. Sprague and Gullikson are former North Quincy High players and Hassan went to Weymouth High and B.U.

Player-Manager Mike Greenlaw (5-11), former North Quincy and Colgate captain, coached Beau's Place to the league title three years ago.

Rounding out the star-studded lineup are 6-0 Billy Evans, B.C. and New York Nets; 6-6 Carlton Chandler, Northeastern; 6-6 Vin Costello, B.C.; 6-6 Mike Verroneau, B.C.; 6-7 Mark Raternik, B.C.; 6-7 Jim Kissane, B.C.; 6-4 Dennis Dobie, B.C.; 6-3 Bruce Stewart, who played with the brilliant Cleveland Cavalier star Austin Carr in high school; 5-10 Jim Downey, B.C., and 6-4 Greg Cees, B.C.

Returning from last year are the O'Brien Club, co-champion Boston Stars, Weymouth Alphas, Easton Huskies, and Bristol County Cavaliers of Fall River. New teams are the Gamblers, South Boston Lithuanians and Royal Cafe of Middleboro.

The O'Brien Club is sponsored by Dick O'Brien, owner of Caradonna's News in Quincy, who had done much to foster semi-pro basketball in the city.

Zink, Miller Key Men At ENC

Two former North Quincy High stars, 6-3 senior Dan Zink and 5-7 freshman Steve Miller, are playing key roles for the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team this season.

Zink played for the Crusaders the past two years, while Miller promises to be one of the most exciting players Coach Jim Smith has had at ENC.

The Crusaders defeated St. Francis College of Maine, 75-62, last Saturday after losing a one-point decision to Southeastern Mass. and also losing to much taller Western New England College.

ENC hosted Curry College Tuesday and Friday will be home to Barrington College at the Lahue Center at 8 p.m. The Crusaders will then be idle until Jan. 10 when they play in the two-day Gordon Tournament with Gordon, Barrington and Houghton.

If Smith had one more tall player he could have one of the top small college teams. Senior Howie Briggs at 6-6½ is his only big man and ENC usually finds itself at a decided height disadvantage.

Zink, an all-around athlete at North Quincy captained the Raiders in basketball and football as a senior. He entered Amherst on a football scholarship where he started as a tight-end as a sophomore. He transferred to ENC and is a regular in basketball and baseball. He expects to improve on his 4.6 points a game average and 3.2 rebounds a game this year.

Miller, a real sparkplug in high school, "quarterbacked" the Raiders last year and was one of the finest ball handlers in school circles.

"Steve is a remarkable ball player for his size," Smith said. "We have needed a guard with Steve's ability since Steve Shoff graduated two years ago. Miller reminds me of Shoff's ability and know how and he should be a great one."

In a recent 77-76 win over Barrington in the Small College tournament title game at Boston Garden in a preliminary to the Celtics game, Steve made a defensive play which earned the plaudits of Red Auerbach, the Celtics general manager and former coach.

With ENC leading, 77-76, and less than a minute remaining, Ralph Tomasso of Barrington headed in for what could be the winning basket and was three steps ahead of the pack. Miller was hot in pursuit and when Tomasso went up for the layup, Miller dove at him. With his body extended in mid-air, Steve reached the ball with his fingertips. What appeared to be a sure basket bounced out of bounds and ENC kept its winning one-point margin.

Zink, Miller and Briggs are joined by 6-foot Capt. Gerry Whetstone, 6-0 Mike Cox, 6-4 Gordon Wetmore, 5-10 Steve Parks, 5-9 Dave Rouse, 6-3 Mike Barefoot, 6-3 Jim Flinner and 6-1 Rick Giove.

Smith sees an interesting season ahead and he expects big things from former North Quincy aces Zink and Miller.

Quincy, North Girls Clash Today

When the Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams clash today [Thursday] at the old Quincy gym, there will be more than the usual interest in the game.

Barbara Webster, who coached the North girls for the past three years, has moved over to the Quincy girls this year, replacing Gale Palmer, who is on a leave of absence. Taking over at North is Sandra Colletti. Many of the North girls played for Miss Webster, who expects "a very interesting game."

The First Ladies got off to a slow start last week, losing their Suburban League debut to Cambridge Latin, 53-26, but showing marked improvement in their second game as they were edged by Waltham, 33-30.

Quincy lost several of last year's outstanding players. Returnees are seniors Kathy Keating, Terry Tucker and Maureen Duggan and juniors Cindy Tozzi, Kelly Sparks and Rose Maloney.

Rounding out the varsity squad are Juniors Tricia Kussman, Frannie Giovanucci and Peggy Pestelli and sophomores Carol Lynch, Lois Malvesti and Peggy Thorley.

"We have many new people this year and had a fine turnout of 45, five of whom have dropped out," Miss Webster said. "I have a no-cut policy, so you can see we have quite a large squad."

"We have a lot of height and some really good guards. We got off to a slow start but I think the girls will come along and do all right. We already have an injury problem, Lois Malvesti, who played at Sterling Junior High last year, is out for two weeks with a badly sprained ankle."

"I can't say enough for the junior high program, which is only two years old but already we are seeking the benefits. Both Quincy and North are getting some really good girls and the two teams are starting to go."

North lost its first game last week to Newton North, 44-27, taling all the way.

Elaine Shea and Cheryl Walsh led the Raiderettes' scorers and Jean McCarthy grabbed 15 rebounds.

Tuesday Quincy will host Brookline and North will go to Brockton.

Thursday it will be Weymouth South at North and Quincy at Newton North.

Shuttle Bus For Q-N Hockey Games

Carl Leone, athletic coordinator for the Quincy schools, announces that, due to the limited parking at the Quincy Youth Arena, a free shuttle bus will be run from the Vo-Tech School parking lot to the rink every 10 minutes for the Quincy and North Quincy hockey games.

"Cars should be parked in the Vo-Tech parking lot near the tennis courts for anyone attending the games," Leone said. The Quincy and North games will be played as doubleheaders Saturdays starting at 5 p.m. The first games are Dec. 21.

Leone also announced that, because of the limited seating at the rink (only 400 seats), tickets for the games can be purchased on Thursday only at the two high schools. Both adult tickets at $1.50 and student tickets at $1 will be available at that time.

"Anyone planning to attend the games should be sure to purchase tickets at the high schools," Leone said. "Once the tickets are gone, none will be available at the rink. Because of the expenses that will be incurred, only passes by the Massachusetts Secondary School Principals Association will be honored."

Crime Crackdown Machine Guns, Shotguns For Quincy Police

The Quincy Police Department armed itself this week with machine guns and shotguns in an effort to counter the recent increase in holdups, burglaries and other crimes.

The new weaponry will be placed in unmarked cars used in the organized crime unit, the special night surveillance unit and the burglary unit.

Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn emphasized the weapons will be used by trained and competent officers.

The move was immediately decried by the Civil Liberties Union which labeled the action as "outrageous."

Mayor Walter J. Hannon defended the move, saying police officers would have an equal chance when confronting criminals armed with equal fire power.

The issuing of the new weapons is only part of a crime crackdown including increased police patrols, computer data, and bail reform legislation.

Several hours before the announcement of the city's beefed-up crime attack, the Child World Store, 1473 Hancock St., Quincy was robbed of $5,000 by three bandits armed with shotguns and a handgun.

John McGowan Named Heart Fund Chairman

John W. McGowan will serve as chairman of the 1975 Heart Fund campaign in Quincy, announces Thomas F. Canuso, 1975 Campaign Chairman for the American Heart Association, Southeast Massachusetts Chapter.

McGowan will coordinate the efforts of community volunteers who will visit all residential areas during February, contact special gift and business donors, and hold special events. Volunteers will distribute educational materials and collect funds to support research, educational and community service programs sponsored by the Quincy Heart Association.

McGowan is a trust officer with the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, trustee of the Museum of Transportation, a member of the Republican City Committee, owns and exhibits antique Studebakers, and is the Alumni Director of the Acadia Associates Corp. He lives at 67 Bigelow St., Quincy, with his wife, Patricia, and their two children.

McGowan noted that heart disease, kills more people than all other causes combined in Quincy and in the nation. They urged area residents to support the Heart Fund drive and to give generously through a Heart volunteer visits their homes.

Houghs Neck Christmas Lighting Ceremony Sunday

The annual Christmas lighting ceremony of the Houghs Neck Community Council will be held Sunday at 5 p.m. at a Christmas tree erected on the Houghs Neck Fire Station lawn.

There will be singing of carols by school children under the direction of Mrs. Gay Carboneau, and the choir of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will take part. Mrs. Abbie Sines will be soloist.

Devotions will be led by Rev. James Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament Church and Rev. Alicia Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has been invited to attend along with Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, Commodore Bernard McCourt of the Quincy Yacht Club, Commander John Christensen of Houghs Neck Legion Post, Russell Barattelli, president of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club, and Santa.

Mrs. Willard J. Timcoe is chairman of the program which will be introduced by William Nugent, president of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Preceding this at 4:45 p.m., Commander Christensen and Chaplain Thomas F. Hurlebaus of the Houghs Neck Post will place a wreath on the granite war memorial on Sea St.

Maxwell Bleakie To Head Chamber Quincy Council

J. Maxwell Bleakie Jr., has joined the staff of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce as director of its Quincy Council, announces Eric Swider, executive vice-president.

The Quincy Council will be organized for Quincy members of the Chamber, and will be operational by early January. Purpose of the group will be to develop a more basic level of relationships between the business community and local governmental officials.

"At a time when the Chamber has become an effective spokesman for regional concerns, we believe a definite need exists for us to provide a grass-roots mechanism for our members and this organization to address local concerns and issues," said Swider. "Bleakie will work with our local organizations to make them relevant and give us this capacity."

In addition to management of the Quincy Council, Bleakie will work with similar South Shore Chamber organizations in Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and Hingham. In communities where local organizations exist—like Scituate and Norwell, Bleakie will serve as the South Shore Chamber's liaison to these groups.

The Chamber will work with existing sectional organizations in the community in an attempt to develop a program that is community-wide in nature.

A 1971 graduate of Harvard College, Bleakie recently completed three years of active duty as a Naval officer. He lives in Scituate.

Brownell Suggests $1 Million Grant For Low Income Interest Home Owners Loans

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell has suggested Quincy use a recent $1 million federal community-development grant to fund a low-interest loan program for city homeowners.

Brownell has filed a bill for consideration by the 1975 legislative session which would authorize cities and towns to grant residents low-interest loans to maintain and rehabilitate private homes.

He noted that under the current system, homeowners who rehabilitate or improve their homes are penalized by receiving an increased assessment and high tax bills. They are sometimes shouldered, too, Brownell noted, with the added cost of a loan taken to make the improvements.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, urging him to support the proposed legislation, Brownell said:

"Consider the fact that he (the homeowner) obtains no tax deductions for his expense as would be the case if he owned business property, and one can only conclude that the government policy is to discourage the homeowner from keeping his home up."

Brownell continued, "I believe we ought to adopt imaginative programs to help the beleaguered homeowner. My legislation is an attempt to change the thrust of current law so that government encourages home maintenance and rehabilitation on a voluntary basis."

Christmas Party Sunday For Houghs Neck Youngsters

The annual Christmas party for Houghs Neck children will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Atherton Hough School.

The program is sponsored each year by the Houghs Neck Legion Post in cooperation with the Houghs Neck Congregational and Most Blessed Sacrament Churches, the Houghs Neck Community Council and the Houghs Neck Legion Auxiliary.

Santa Claus will attend with gifts and candy, and there will be a program of films and songs.

Merrymount Addition Hinges On New NQHS

addition to the Merrymount School, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, acknowledging "a legitimate need" at the school, added that other schools are equally in need of renovation. He said:

"The School Committee voted in response to deficiencies in that building as measured against contemporary standards for an elementary school. Obviously, the Merrymount school is not the only elementary school in the city of Quincy having the same kind of deficiencies."

Creedon said a report released last February delineating all the deficiencies in all of the schools evaluated the Adams School and Pollard School the same as the Merrymount School.

Hannon minimized the need for the building of an addition at Merrymount School, saying:

"When stacked against other schools, Merrymount is in pretty good shape."

Hannon said, too, an addition at Merrymount "would not be just a room."

"The state will come in and say, do this, and this and this."

The Mayor suggested that one Merrymount mother approach Councillor Kelly on the matter. "I care about North Quincy High School," said the Mayor. "And so should Councillor Kelly."

Kelly, however, insisted upon the separation of the two building proposals, said: "I intend to take all issues independently as I have in the past. I advocate that all issues be taken as individual problems and solutions."

Public Works Dept. Info Workshop

The Public Works Department, headed by James Ricciuti, will share information about the operation of the department at the second in a series of inservice workshops planned for all department heads Wednesday Dec. 11.

The workshop will begin at 8:15 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. at the Francis W. Parker Media Center, Billings Rd, North Quincy.

Last month, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and his staff presented facts and figures on the Quincy School Department.

These workshops are part of a new economic campaign launched to cut operating expenses and to streamline municipal government at the same time.

Each city department will introduce itself, one to another, in an effort to increase interdepartmental cooperation and efficiency, including mutual use of equipment and other facilities.

The Machineguns: A Poor TV Show

Mayor Walter J. Hannon's controversial "decision" to arm Quincy police with machine guns and shotguns may have been more a case of over acting than overreaction.

The fact of the matter is that the Quincy Police Department has had both machine guns and shotguns for sometime now. Whether the machine guns have ever been taken out of police headquarters we don't know. But the shotguns have been out many times on stakeouts of banks believed marked for possible holdups.

From where we sat, Mayor Hannon's big announcement last week was an unfortunate TV show—one Quincy will take a long time to live down.

Whether carefully selected, specially trained police officers should be so armed is a debatable question.

Most policemen will probably favor it. They feel they should have a fighting chance against heavily armed bandits.

Most store owners and other businessmen—the potential victims of gunmen—apparently agree as a survey in today's issue of The Quincy Sun would seem to clearly indicate.

But we wonder if it might not boomerang.

Police could have carried machine guns and shotguns without making a TV spectacular out of it.

As it turns out, neighboring Hanover police have had two machine guns for the past couple of years and Abington has one. But there was no big TV production to announce it. Those communities don't have the notoriety that Quincy has suddenly won and must now try to live down.

Those TV cameras just didn't happen to be there for Mayor Hannon's press conference. Television crews and newsmen don't bother coming to Quincy unless its for "something big". They knew ahead.

Quincy Sun Will Move To Savings Bank Building

The Quincy Sun will move to larger downtown quarters in the Quincy Savings Bank building, 1374 Hancock St. on or before March 1.

The Sun will occupy the left-hand side of the building on the street floor and the bank's former conference room below. This street floor space until recently, housed the Quincy Savings Bank's mortgage department which is now located in the bank's new downtown headquarters at 1200 Hancock St.

The street-floor space being taken by The Sun was once the office of the Boston Gas Co.

The Quincy Savings Bank will continue to occupy the right hand side of the building as its downtown branch offering all bank services including mortgage transactions.

Announcement was made jointly by Charles A. Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank and Henry W. Bosworth, publisher of The Sun and president of the Quincy Sun Publishing Co.

"We are pleased to have The Quincy Sun move into our downtown branch office," said Pearce. "We have had a pleasant association with the newspaper in the past and are looking forward to continuing it in the future."

"We believe The Sun will be a stimulant to the area as it moves ahead in its role as a community-oriented newspaper."

"This is a major milestone in the short history of The Quincy Sun," said Bosworth. "Our new location will give us four times the space we have now in the heart of the downtown area. It is also our first street-floor location."

"With the economic conditions the way they are, some people believe it is a time to sit tight and make no moves. But we are optimistic. We have faith and confidence in Quincy and in ourselves."

"In our new location we hope to bring Quincy a better weekly newspaper and to solve the severe space problem we have had in our commercial printing division."

"It is a pleasure for us to be associated with The Quincy Savings Bank in this new chapter of The Quincy Sun. The Quincy Savings Bank recently illustrated its faith in Quincy by opening its handsome new headquarters at 1200 Hancock St. We are happy to share that faith with as fine a Quincy institution as the Quincy Savings Bank."

The Sun will move into its new location as soon as necessary renovations now underway are completed. This should be around March 1.

The Sun was established Sept. 26, 1968 in a small second-floor office at 7 Foster St. From there it moved to larger quarters on the second floor at 1601 Hancock St. where it is currently located.

Quincy Consumer Survey Shows

Plenty Of Fuel Oil, But Prices To Fluctuate

Quincy residents should have plenty of fuel oil this winter but the price will fluctuate, according to a survey conducted by the city's new Consumer Assistance Center.

The center was recently established by Mayor Walter J. Hannon as an information aide to Quincy consumers.

Mrs. Elizabeth DeAngelis, director, reported Wednesday she had polled 55 oil dealers in Quincy from Dec. 3-12 inquiring about the supply of oil and prices.

All but one of the dealers polled agreed the supply of home heating oil was plentiful. All agreed oil prices were subject to unpredictable fluctuation.

The lowest quoted price of oil was 34.9 cents per gallon given when the customer pays in cash. The highest quoted price was 41.9 cents per gallon, reported Mrs. DeAngelis.

However, she cautioned the consumer against choosing a dealer based solely on current oil prices, since dealers voiced their inability to project price changes due to rapid fluctuations in heating oil cost.

Mrs. DeAngelis noted that the dealer listing the lowest price one week may have the dubious honor of having the highest price the following week or vice versa.

According to the Energy Assistance Division of the Federal Energy Administration, Famigletti May Seek Re-instatement, Back Pay

Former Cemetery Supt. Anthony Famigletti may seek re-instatement and retroactive pay back to when he was forced to resign his post last November.

Famigletti's salary was $14,624 a year.

Famigletti's attorney, Morris Goldings said there is "a strong possibility" of filing suit to require the city "to effect re-instatement" of Famigletti.

After re-instatement, Famigletti would then be suspended under the Perry Law, said Goldings.

The Perry Law is a statute whereby a public officer, under indictment for actions allegedly conducted while in office, can be suspended without pay during the period of indictment.

Goldings said the Perry Law also states that if the officer is acquitted, he may be re-instated with back pay after prosecution.

Goldings has filed a total of 48 motions in Norfolk County Superior Court in response to nine Grand Jury charges stemming from alleged irregularities within the Quincy Cemetery Department.

Famigletti was arraigned Oct. 22 on the nine charges before

Back Mayor's Decision

Majority Of Businessmen Favor Machineguns, Shotguns

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The vast majority of downtown Quincy businessmen polled in a recent Quincy Sun survey favor Mayor Walter J. Hannon's decision to equip part of the Quincy Police force with semi-automatic machine guns and shotguns.

A total of 17 businessmen - all potential victims of robberies and burglaries - were asked the question, "What is your reaction to the decision to equip part of the Quincy Police Department with semi-automatic machine guns and shotguns?"

Twelve businessmen registered support for the move, one opposed it, two labelled the decision as both "good and bad", one said he was not qualified to comment and one made no comment.

The comments were:

ROBERT COLMAN, owner of Colman's Sporting Goods: "Press coverage so far has been inaccurate. The police are not riding around with machine guns. We need the protection that the police are providing to offer. The Mayor is right. We have a good police chief. Support him."

WILLIAM WOSKIE, manager of Sears Roebuck: "I back any request the police feel is necessary to do their job properly. I have complete faith in them. I think they do an excellent job."

TED JOHNSON, co-owner of Granite City Hardware: "It's a good idea. It will be a deterrent to the criminal and offer the police department more firepower and give them an

Kelly Criticizes Hannon For Merrymount 'Selfish' Remark

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly today sharply criticized Mayor Walter J. Hannon's "totally unnecessary and inconsiderate remark" labeling the residents of Merrymount as selfish in their bid for separate, not combined, consideration in the building of an addition to the Merrymount School.

It was disclosed last week in The Quincy Sun that Hannon piggy-backed the building of the proposed Merrymount addition with the construction of a proposed new North Quincy High School. Hannon said:

"Of course they [the Merrymount citizens] want separate consideration. I think that's a selfish attitude. They can send their kids to Quincy High School, an accredited high school. There is no concern for North Quincy High School which can lose its accreditation..."

Responding to Hannon's comment, Kelly said:

"Mayor Hannon had no grounds for making his totally unnecessary and inconsiderate remark referring to the Merrymount people as being selfish and I view the Mayor's remark with dismay."

Accusing the Mayor of "dangling the Merrymount addition on a string," Kelly noted the Mayor has admitted lobbying for the building of a new North Quincy High School. Kelly said:

"Because the people do not respond to this lobbying does not justify the Mayor's remark."

Kelly said he would reiterate to the Mayor a request to bond each issue separately.

"They are two different issues," said Kelly "and must stand on their own merits."

Thousands Of Dollars Seized

Gaming Raids Evidence To Be Presented To U.S. Grand Jury

Evidence seized in Saturday's football card gaming raids will be presented to a federal grand jury in Boston in mid-January for indictments.

A total of 31 officers converged on seven different locations in the Boston area, including Quincy, seizing large sums of illegal football gaming cards, money, records and apparatus.

The raid was jointly and simultaneously executed by FBI agents, detectives associated with the Suffolk County district attorney's office and members of the Quincy Police Organized Crime Unit.

All confiscated evidence will be presented before the grand jury by the Organized Strike Force of the Justice Department.

Confiscated revenue seized from the illegal card operation was estimated "in the tens of thousands" by Lt. David F. Rowell of the Quincy Police Organized Crime Unit.

Rowell and Detective Paul Snow armed with search warrants went to a Furnace Brook Parkway, Quincy, home and seized football gaming cards, records and money estimated by Lt. Rowell as "in the thousands."

Detective Richard Bergeron assisted by FBI agents, also seized gaming cards, money and apparatus found in the automobile and on the person of two men stopped in the Howard Johnson parking lot on Route 3.

Other teams of detectives and agents confiscated similar materials in Malden, Lexington, Somerville, Rosindale and Dorchester.

According to Rowell, the raid culminated a two-year joint investigatory effort of the Quincy Police Department, the Boston FBI Office and the Suffolk County District Attorney's office.

Rowell said teams of investigators had been "laying the groundwork" for the raid by identifying football gaming cards as well as persons, places and times involved over the past two years.

He said, too, persons suspected of picking up and distributing the cards had been under surveillance for an undisclosed period of time.

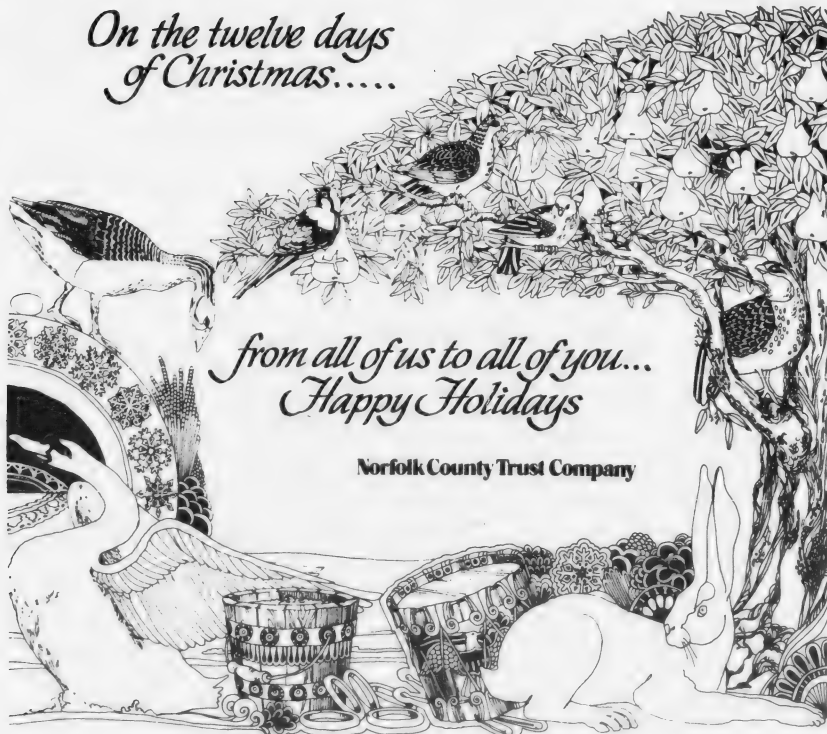

Commenting on the raid, Rowell said:

As a result of this combined effort, organized crime has suffered a major blow in the area of illegal sporting activities."

Other men involved in the jointly executed raid were Detective Peter B. Gallagher of the Quincy Police Force; Special Agent James Scanlon, gaming squad leader of the FBI; Special Agent Joseph Kelly, head of the FBI investigation; Organized Crime Task Force Attorney Jerry O'Sullivan; Assistant Dist. Atty. Thomas Dwyer of the Suffolk County D.A.'s office; Detective John C. O'Malley of the Boston Police Department under the auspices of Dist. Atty. Garrett Byrne's office; Boston Police Organized Crime Division under the auspices of Deputy Superintendent John Doyle; and the Quincy Police Department Organized Crime Unit.

Fire Fails To Slow Down Visiting Nurses

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The fire which gutted the Health Center headquarters of The Visiting Nurses in mid-November has not slowed down the staff at all.

On the day of the fire, Sunday, Nov. 17, two nurses left their homes to visit regular patients.

Although the fire destroyed all agency records, such as discharges and office forms, the active patient records - kept in steel cabinets - were preserved.

"Our work has continued without interruption," said Mrs. Ruth Dobbie, RN, director of the Visiting Nurses. "The entire staff was in on Monday, the day after the fire. Our work has gone on as usual."

"Usual" for the Visiting Nurses staff means an average of 84 visits per day. According to Mrs. Dobbie, her staff of 17 - including two part-time nurses - made 2,322 visits during the month of November.

The Visiting Nurses are temporarily located in the Gordon House at Quincy City Hospital. The nurses provide seven-day-a-week service to people throughout the city.

Staff members include Mrs. Marian Rugman, RN, assistant supervisor; Mrs. Marjorie Flynn, RN, Mrs. Louise Logan, RN, Miss Diane DeCosta, RN, Mrs. Georgina Kelleher, RN, Mrs. Eileen Waters, RN, Mrs. Catherine Lind, public health nursing co-ordinator at Quincy City Hospital, RN; Miss Lorraine Reardon, RN; Miss Jane Gelzins, RN; Mrs. Doris MacPherson, RN; Mrs. Shirley Johnson, RN; Mrs. Laura Cushing, RN; Mrs. Barbara Hoytt, RN; Mrs. Edith Egan, RN; Mrs. Priscilla Meriot, RN; Mrs. Marcelline Czarniak, RN; Mrs. Adele Barcelo and Mrs. Beth Sprague, physical therapists; and Mrs. Lenora Kickey, home health aide.

Mrs. Dobbie said she and her staff hope to move back to their Health Center headquarters in mid-January.

$64,943 In Plumbing

James A. Erwin Jr., inspector of plumbing and gas fitting reports 63 plumbing applications for an estimated $64,943 in plumbing were filed during the month of November.

A total of $288 was received for permits. One hundred seven plumbing inspections were made.

Erwin also reports the filing of 52 applications for gas installations costing an estimated $9,735.

Tobin Would Make It Illegal To 'Mark Up' Food Items On Shelves

Legislation making it illegal for supermarkets and foodstores to increase the present practice of "Marking-up" the prices for food items already on shelves has been proposed by Senator Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy].

Under the proposed legislative measure, supermarket chains and foodstores would be prohibited from placing additional price labels over prices previously affixed to items already on display.

"The practice of placing two, or even three or more price labels on food items must be stopped immediately, Tobin said.

"Although some major supermarket chains have made it their policy to discontinue this practice, the average Massachusetts consumer is constantly confronted by numerous sticker mark-ups of items placed on shelves at many stores."

Under his proposal the state consumer council would be given the power to oversee and regulate all future retail pricing policies on shelved items. Tobin said:

"The regulatory power invested in the council would prohibit retailers from raising prices through the use of mark-ups on shelved items or any commodity which has a personal, family or household use, once they have been priced and placed on the shelves for sale."

Early News Deadline For Sun's Holiday Issues

Because of the Christmas Holiday, The Quincy Sun will be published Tuesday, Dec. 24 next week instead of Thursday, Dec. 26.

This will necessitate an early deadline for church, social and other general news items. All such items must be in The Sun office by Friday, Dec. 20 at noon.

The Sun will also be published early the following week because of the New Year's holiday. It will appear Tuesday, Dec. 31.

All church, social and other general news items for that issue must be in The Sun office by Friday, Dec. 27 at noon.

Starting with the Jan. 9 issue, The Sun will be back on its regular Thursday publication schedule.

Judge Kramer To Be Sworn In

Judge Albert Kramer will be sworn in Friday as presiding judge of Quincy District Court by Gov. Francis Sargent.

The ceremony will take place in the main court room at 7 p.m.

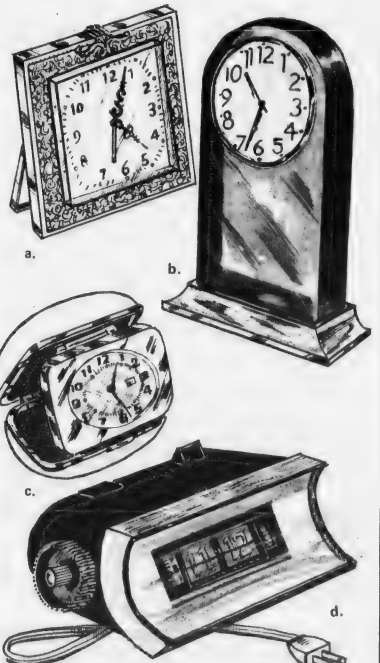

Kramer succeeds Judge Robert S. Prince who will soon be sworn in as a superior court judge.

Kramer, 41, is the former chief policy advisor to Gov. Sargent and is a former Chelsea state representative.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I am writing this letter for my four brothers and sisters. We are 14, 12, 9, 5 and 3. My dad yells at us all of the time. He is always mad about something. My mother does nothing to stop him. Dad picks on all of us but especially the boys. My father came from a poor family and he is always complaining that we need to get straight A's so we can go to college. He is not happy with our homework unless it is perfect.

We all want Dad happy but the pressure is too much. How can we do good work when he is yelling all of the time? Everyone is upset.

Angie

Dear Angie:

Let your father read your letter. And, Dad, putting children under such pressure does not improve school work. It merely creates anxiety and grades will drop. These children are worried about your yelling and dissatisfaction. This method of discipline hinders — not helps. Encouragement and praise will do more. Try it for six months. I promise that your family will be happier and more successful. You have placed your children in a pressure cooker. LET THEM OUT.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What is wrong with a 35-year-old single woman? I have an excellent job, make top money in my field, and have many friends. My parents and relatives all seem to feel that my head is on crooked simply because I do not want to marry.

I have dated many men and have yet to find one I would like to spend years with. I go out as often as I want and see no reason to settle down as my family suggests. I enjoy my freedom. How can I convince my relatives to drop the subject?

Free

Dear Free:

Marriage is not for everybody. Tell the family that you prefer your born-free existence and do not wish to discuss the subject further.

Make two glasses of Santa cheer

By GEETS BUROKER &
POLLY HUNTSINGER
Copley News Service

During the holiday season one often hears the expression "have a glass of cheer." In this case, two glasses can quickly be made into a most cheerful Santa Claus ornament that will brighten any table in an original manner.

If available, use clear, plastic four ounce glasses, the kind usually sold in sets of eight in novelty or grocery stores. However, any pair of identical squat glasses will do as long as the rim is wider than the base.

Join these rims with clear plastic tape after first filling them with small bright Christmas balls or foil wrapped candy.

Bits of household cotton, glue, red, white and black felt scraps, scissors and pinking shears are then all that is needed.

Glue or tape an edged triangle of red felt over the top so it becomes a floppy Santa's hat. Properly draped, the glass is hidden. Trim this with white cotton which marks Santa's forehead. A dab of cotton on the tip becomes a tassel.

Next, cut white circles with the pinking shears, smaller ones (slightly niched) of black with scissors. In no time, Santa's bright eyes are glued in place and twinkling. A generous white moustache, glued to the center, hides where the glass rims have been joined. Do not glue the pointed tips of the moustache, however, so they can stand straight out in a realistic fashion.

The next step is to give Santa a red tip of a tongue that peaks out from under the moustache's center. And finally, cut out a big, bib-shaped beard which, when glued under the bottom of the moustache and tongue will completely hide the remainder of the glass front. Allow the bottom part to hang free, however so that a natural look is once more achieved.

Santa's head and face is now completed. It is a light ornament that can be moved easily from place to place as desired. But at the same time, the solid bottom of the glass insures there's no danger of this decoration tipping over when someone passes by.

If you wish, use much larger glasses (and larger bits of material in proportion) and make a Santa head that will also serve as a novelty container for a gift of homemade cookies or candies. Instead of carrying a heavy pack, the jolly old fellow, when delivering your present, will "really be using his head."

Husband made safari to join Susannah York

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Susannah York says its been suggested that she and Roger Moore continue as the characters they played in "Gold" in a sequel to the picture.

But so far the idea is a suggestion only.

Susannah had to be in South Africa for six weeks to make "Gold," and, since she and her husband, Michael Wells, don't believe in long separations, he joined her there, traveling down by safari.

"We'd planned to go down as a family," Susannah says, "but on the very morning we were to leave, as our suitcases stood all packed in the hall, my husband saw an item in the paper to the effect that a safari was about to leave North Africa to go all the way to the Cape, and he decided he wanted to go with that."

"Of course I said, 'By all means,' because he must have his own life to an extent."

"But I do think separations are an absurd idea. We have on occasion been separated for as much as three months by his work or by mine, but that sort of thing isn't good for a marriage."

Susannah's a British actress who speaks with honesty and concern about Britain's present problems.

"I think Britain will survive," she says, "but the difficulty is Britains haven't had their backs to the wall for a long time."

"There was an explosion of frivolity during the '60s, and we're paying for it now. The

SUSANNAH YORK
... "separations are an absurd idea"

British are in a terrible state of lethargy, and, as a race, we're really not equipped to deal with run-of-the-mill life.

"In times of stress and crisis, the British have stamina and courage unlike any other people in the world. But, during the '60s, when everything was going well, a terrible lack of vitality crept into our society. We lost our united feeling."

"However, when we're forced to fight for our lives, we always survive."

"I'd find it hard to live in America, because your society seems to have been brutalized by the country's very size. Though I find Americans individually very warm, generous people."

"The trouble with us in England is we're just too nice for our own good. In fact, I'm beginning to feel a bitterness for England, because we allow ourselves to be so trodden on. We put such importance upon good manners and consideration of others, that we're taken advantage of."

Market Report A Few Money Saving Tips On Food Shopping

Habits can be costly when it comes to "how" and "why" we buy on our grocery shopping excursions.

Just for starters; most of us would save some money by shopping less often, for this helps to cut down on "impulse buying" and also saves on gas, for those of us who drive to the super-market, or on bus fares.

A complete shopping list can also save time and money. First, plan menus with advertised specials in mind, and once the list is made, don't indulge in displays of unneeded merchandise. Buying "coupon items" is fine, as long as they are foods you will use.

Buy store brands when they are less expensive. In a Philadelphia research test, shoppers couldn't distinguish between nationally advertised brands and store brands, which are often cheaper.

Don't depend on the size of a package to judge the contents - check the net weight on the label.

To get the freshest product - refer to "open dating" - and, don't be afraid to return bad merchandise.

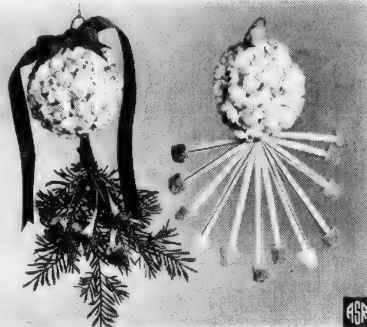

Read the nutrition label which now appears on many products in order to be a better informed shopper. If the children are with you when you shop, simple don't give in to their requests for empty calorie snacks such as; soft drinks, chips, cup-cakes and candy.

For the adults in the family, too, apples, oranges, other fruits, juices, cheese, bread, ice cream, yogurt, and, even milk shakes are the kind of snacks that offer the most nutrition for your food dollar.

Popcorn Balls Fun To Decorate

Wrapped in cellophane or plastic film and tied with a bow, popcorn balls enhance any tree, especially one that is trimmed with a variety of homemade ornaments. Given a creative touch, a popcorn ball turns into a witty, unusual ornament. The ones here are trimmed with plastic straws and gum drops and sprigs of fake flowers. Whether you make them for eating or decorating, one of the easiest recipes around is this one for Quick Popcorn Balls.

Quick Popcorn Balls

3 quarts freshly popped corn 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup Karo light corn syrup 1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar

Turn popcorn into large bowl or pan; place in warm oven. Stir together in heavy 2-quart saucepan corn syrup, sugar and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Cook, without stirring, 4 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Slowly pour over popped corn mixing well. When cool enough to handle yet still quite warm, quickly shape into balls. Let stand until cool and no longer sticky. Wrap in plastic film. Decorate as desired. Makes about 9 (3-inch) balls.

2 European Students Enrolled At Quincy High School

Two students from Europe are enrolled in the senior class at Quincy High School this year.

Pirjo Kastinen, 17, is from Eastern Finland and Vera Smolderen from Northern Belgium. Miss Kastinen is in the U.S. under the auspices of Youth for Understanding. Her stay in America is funded by her parents and relatives here. She is living with her cousin Elsie Halonen. Miss Smolderen is an American Field Service exchange student who, through programming services in New York City, was matched up with a U.S. family most like her own in Belgium. Her "foster" mother is Mrs. Linda Grant of Quincy Point.

Both young women have been in the U.S. for six weeks.

Miss Kastinen, is the oldest of five children. Her father is a farmer in Finland who raises rabbits and chickens along with growing grain and hay. In Finland the scholastic year runs from August to May and the hours of attendance are from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. She has had four years of elementary, five years of middle, and two years of high school and has taken courses of study in English for 6 years, Swedish for 5 years and German for a year. Her hobbies include painting and reading.

Miss Smolderen, who has eight brothers and sisters, comes from a village between Antwerp and Brussels, a Flemish-speaking area of Belgium, where the major tongue is French.

Her father is a cabinet-maker who produces cabinets for Hammond Organs. In her homeland she studied French for 10 years, English for five, and German and Dutch. She is a water-ski enthusiast and enters competitions in that sport [her father built the motor boat] at a lake-side water-skiing club.

At Quincy High School Miss Kastinen is taking courses in English, German, American history, political science, and sewing. She plays sports [volley ball] and has no specific plans for a career. Miss Smolderen is studying Spanish, mathematics, English, U.S. history, the human body, and microbiology. She intends to become a physical education teacher or a physical therapist. She engages in all girl sports at the high school.

S.S. Chamber Accredited By U.S.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, serving 14 communities, has been named an accredited organization by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Official announcement was made by Charles H. Smith, Jr., National Chamber Chairman of the Board, and Board Chairman of SIFCO Industries, Inc., in Cleveland, Ohio.

The U.S. Chamber's Accrediting Board approved the South Shore Chamber's application for Accreditation, thereby endorsing the local organization's self analysis and evaluation that had been conducted by a group of 30 business people during the summer and early fall.

The South Shore Chamber becomes the only accredited Chamber in Metropolitan Boston, one of five in Massachusetts, and among 272 of over 2,700 local chambers in the U.S. to have received this designation from the National Chamber.

Attorney Harold H. Slate, the 1971-72 President of the South Shore Chamber, served as chairman of the local group who conducted the self-evaluation and analysis between June 15 and September 15 of this year.

In early October, the U.S. Chamber's verification team, headed by L. Foster Barr, Director of their Consulting Service, visited the Chamber and interviewed business leaders.

'The Ascent Of Man'

Quincy Junior College To Offer Course Via Television

Quincy Junior College is offering a unique college course to be given on television starting Jan. 7, announces Dean Richard T. Mula, of the Division of Continuing Education.

"Participating students will receive three credits upon completion of the course," said Thomas Mullen, instructor of the course.

"The Ascent of Man" is a series of 13 films prepared and narrated by the late Jacob Bronowski, noted scientist, mathematician and poet. It shows the history of man through his scientific achievements. Dr. Bronowski, who died Aug. 22, devoted the last years of his life to this project, which took three and a half years of preparation and filming and cost more than $4 million. Shown nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service stations, it will be seen here on Ch. 2, on Tuesdays at 8:30-9:30 p.m. and repeated on Sundays at 2 p.m. on Ch. 2, and 10 p.m. on Ch. 44.

Acclaimed for its high degree of scholarship, the series received great acceptance from British Broadcasting Corp. viewers who were from diverse economic and social strata. This is largely due to Dr. Bronowski's ability to explain science in humanistic terms and the interrelationship of scientific advances and history of man.

Dr. Bronowski was a research professor and fellow of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in LaJolla, Calif., where he specialized on what functions and characteristics make man unique among animal species.

The course offers a unique educational opportunity for the entire community. For further information, contact Tom Mullen at 471-2470.

Materials used in the course were developed by Dr. Bronowski, Miami-Dade Community College, Miami, Fla. and The University of California at San Diego.

THE OLD WORLD was not the only area to produce civilizations of culture where arts flourished and advances were made in man's knowledge. The New World had its own high-degree of civilization before the arrival of the Spaniards. Above is a funeral urn from the Zapotecs in Mexico which pre-dates Columbus by centuries. The influences of various cultures are related in "The Ascent of Man," a 13-part televised series starting Jan. 7 on Ch. 2 at 8:30 p.m. Quincy Junior College is using the televised programs as the basis of an off-campus course.

● Editorial Quincy's Machineguns: A Poor TV Show

Well, as it turned out, it sure was worth the trip. They hit the jackpot. It was good enough to make network TV and wound up being shown all across the country.

We received a call from a reader who said her son saw it on TV in Chicago. He was so alarmed he telephoned home to find out "what's going on back there?"

This, mind you, from Chicago, scene of the infamous St. Valentine's Day massacre where the machine gun was born and grew up. Quincy's TV coverage was hot-stuff in Chicago. And elsewhere around the nation.

Another reader received a call from a friend in Virginia who put it quite bluntly: "What the hell is going on in Quincy?"

The image the press conference—with machine guns on display—left with the TV viewer was that Quincy must be a real tough place with bandits and police both roaming the streets with machine guns and shotguns ready to kill one another.

We wonder how shoppers reacted. Will some decide to stay away from Quincy in fear it's too dangerous here? The economy is bad enough now without that.

Quincy has big plans for celebrating its 350th anniversary in 1975 and the nation's bicentennial in 1976. The city hopes to attract many tourists during this two-year period.

Quincy has a proud heritage as a cradle of U.S. liberty. But will out-of-staters who saw that TV coverage remember Quincy as the birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock or the home of the machine gun?

Granted, the police machine guns are semi-automatic and sophisticated. They don't spray bullets like the machine guns of Al Capone's day. But they sure can kill.

Police Chief Francis Finn noted they have the firepower to pierce the steel-belted radial tires on many cars of today. Think what they could do to the human body.

Bandits have come to Quincy with shotguns. But no one has been shot with one in recent years here. Now, they may come with machine guns—machine guns that are not as sophisticated, machine guns that may spray. They'll be looking for an equal fighting chance, too.

Innocent bystanders, regardless of how well trained police officers may be, could be hurt or killed in a shoot-out.

And, what about the route patrolman who doesn't have a machine gun or shotgun? He may be the first on the holdup scene, the first to confront the bandit. Will the gunman be more apt to blast away at him—and more likely to hit him. He could become the real victim of this stepped up weaponry.

We don't think all that TV exposure is going to frighten gunmen away from Quincy. In fact, one showed up with a shotgun only this week. They'll continue to come—only better armed.

But it could keep other people away—shoppers, visitors, businesses wishing to relocate, prospective homeowners and apartment dwellers.

And there's one other thing that bothers us.

During his press conference, the mayor was quoted as saying he would be inclined to "consider closely" people who opposed beefing up the police department's arsenal.

That, if true, is an unfortunate statement. This is still a democracy where there are two sides to every question. The fact he thinks one way, does not automatically make him right and those who think the other way, automatically wrong.

Frankly, we would have to "consider closely" anyone who would make a statement like that.

Mayor Hannon's Nielsen rating certainly went up with this TV spectacular. But Quincy's image as a peaceful, law-abiding city, went down.

The sad part about it is that Mayor Hannon most likely sincerely thought he was doing the right thing. But we think he was wrong.

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS

BY J. J. SMITH

Before downgrading all lawmakers, remember that quite often the voters do elect the right candidate.

With all its drawbacks, the American political system is much better than where there are no politics or politicians at all.

Every boy asks questions, and some cost his folks money. But it's not until he pops THE question to his gal that his queries cost him money.

While making New Year's wishes, make one that the MBTA can improve both its services and profit situation.

Letter Box

Opposes Use Of Machine Guns, Shotguns

The following is a copy of a letter sent to Mayor Walter J. Hannon and forwarded to The Quincy Sun for publication by the writer.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon
City Hall
1305 Hancock St.
Quincy, Mass.

Mr. Hannon,

I am writing in response to your recent announcement of the incorporation of 12 gauge shotguns and automatic weapons into the Quincy Police Dept.

Although I can sympathize with the problems the police face at the present time in controlling the crime rate, I believe that using such highly powered weapons as a control can only enhance the present situation of violence. I find it ironical to use such deadly weapons as a means of creating "a sense of security for the residents."

The sight of a police patrol fully armed with shotguns would create within me a feeling quite on the contrary. The function of the police is to relax tension in a community, not to create it.

Although you have said that "the machine guns will be used only in extreme emergencies," this statement becomes very dependent upon what dictates an 'extreme emergency' and who decides. Whenever such an extreme emergency occurs (whatever that might be), the use of such highly powerful and inaccurate weapons in such a highly reactive situation could be extremely dangerous.

Although the criminal and police may now be on an equal fighting level, what about the people who may be standing in the path of such scattering fire? Although you may "have no sympathy for a person committing a crime," what about an innocent bystander? This acceleration of weaponry to create a 'balance of power' between criminal and police is extremely frightening. Who is to say that the balance will stop here? Considering previous trends, this seems most improbable—are hand-grenades next?

Such fatal weapons as shotguns, machine guns and 'dum dum' bullets, may often become the instantaneous judge and jury. The job of a police force is to apprehend a suspect so he can be tried in a court of law, not by the officer whose hands these weapons are put into. Such complete power and control that the use of these weapons is ultimately trying to exert, leads to a very strong implication of a police state, a situation of which I believe everyone in the community should be wary.

Delahunt To Announce For Mayor Next Spring

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Rep. William Delahunt looks like a definite candidate for mayor next year.

Insiders report he is already organizing his top campaign aides and is planning to make his official announcement in March or April.

Those same insiders say he has been picking up considerable support the past two or three weeks. Those lining up behind him reportedly are "looking for an alternate candidate." Translation: Someone other than incumbent Mayor Walter Hannon and Councilor Joseph LaRaia who is already to launch his campaign.

Delahunt, the insiders report, actually got his campaign off the ground last week taking issue with Hannon over arming Quincy police with machine guns and shotguns.

A Hannon-Delahunt battle could be a re-run of their first clash back in 1969. Delahunt, making his first run for office, was barely edged [42 votes or so] in his bid for the Ward 5 council seat by Hannon who was the incumbent councillor.

INCIDENTALLY, Mayor Hannon should be more careful where he sits during those TV productions in the Council Chamber. During the time he was on camera for the machinegun-shotgun announcement, right behind him, also on camera, was Arthur Tobin's nameplate at the council podium.

TOOTING OWN HORN DEPT: Item here Nov. 27: "There are a number of candidates and would-be candidates for the $23,000 city auditor's post but insiders say one man has the inside track. A familiar name, too: Charles L. Shea." Headline in another paper Dec. 11: Charles Shea Named City Auditor"...Toot! Toot!

SPEAKING OF SHEA, did you know that he, Councillor John Quinn, Treasurer Robert Foy and Warren Watson, director of libraries used to share a car pool while going to Boston College in the 1940's?

OOPS: The Massachusetts Bicentennial Book has a boo-boo in it about Quincy. Says Quincy was named after Joseph Quincy. Quincy, of course, was named for Col. John Quincy, great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams and grandfather of Abigail Smith, wife of President John Adams.

PROUD POP DEPT: Councillor John Quinn's son, Gary, has been elected captain of Boston College High School's football team for next season. A junior, he played both tackle and guard this year, and was one of the team's standouts.

WE'RE GOING TO miss Fr. William Carroll, the popular St. John's curate, transferred last week to St. Charles Church in Woburn. We'll miss his humor and his ability to zero in on a subject to make his point, and keep it interesting. St. John's loss is a mighty big gain for St. Charles in Woburn.

QUINCY'S JOHN PROVOST seemed to always know where to be during the football season as Holy Cross's star defensive back, intercepting passes and running back punts. He appeared on Bob Hope's TV show Sunday as a member of the Associated Press All-American team. And he picked a good spot there, too. Was on camera all the time.

SMILE DEPT: From the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "A person who can smile when things go wrong, has probably just thought of someone he can blame."

● Youth Speaks Out

★ Santa Claus had to disconnect Rudolph's nose. - It was getting too expensive to keep it lit.

★ Our thanks to The Quincy Sun for correcting its mistake about which band won first prize in the Christmas Parade. The Presidents issue you a pardon.

★ By the time it's decided whether to build an MBTA Station in South Quincy, a new method of transportation will probably be invented.

★ Communities in the area whose police forces have shotguns or machine guns had a higher rise in crime than other communities without those weapons.

★ What happens if the crime rate still goes up - bazookas and flame throwers?

★ Boston's making grand plans for the country's 200th anniversary - let's hope Boston lasts for 18 more months.

Davidson Seeks Traffic Controls At Wollaston Ice Cream Shop

Director of Planning and Community Development Geoffrey Davidson will not oppose the building of a Friendly Ice Cream Shop near the intersection of Hancock St. and Elm Ave., Wollaston, if certain traffic control recommendations are implemented.

Davidson had opposed the granting of a building application to Friendly's, calling the proposed building site a "dangerous and overloaded" intersection.

At the request of Mayor Walter J. Hannon, a traffic analysis was prepared. H. W. Moore Associates, Inc. of Boston recommended the following:

- Elimination of on-street parking in the intersection during peak hours.
- Changing of Wollaston Ave.

to a one-way street southbound, away from the intersection.

• Implementation of a new traffic signal timing and sequence schedule, allowing the left-turn traffic from Hancock St. to flow onto Elm Ave. with a minimal disruption to through traffic.

In a letter to City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the Quincy License Board, Davidson said:

"...We must all, as public officials, solve the problems which development may cause. These traffic improvements should relieve a serious problem."

He added, "If these steps are taken, the intersection will work with a better, safer flow of traffic, sufficient, in my opinion, to accommodate a Friendly Ice Cream operation."

The deadline to enter the photography contest to "picture Quincy's heritage" has been extended to Jan. 15, by co-sponsors Quincy Heritage and the Delano Camera and Supply Co. of Wollaston.

The contest was to have ended Saturday but was extended in response to telephone calls received by Jon Delano, owner of the Delano Camera and Supply Co., 675 Hancock St., Wollaston, which is co-sponsoring the contest with Quincy Heritage.

Quincy Heritage is seeking old and new pictures of Quincy's scenes and its people to use in the city's promotional activities for its 350th anniversary next year and the nation's Bicentennial.

There are three contest categories:

- Black and white glossy prints no larger than 8 by 10 inches.
- Color enlargements from slides or negatives no larger than 8 by 10 inches.
- Historic - any print that has not been copyrighted new or old which typifies the historic character of the city.

All photos must be mounted. Top prize in each category is a $100 gift certificate. Second prize in each is a $50 gift certificate and third prize in each a $25 gift certificate. There will also be five $5 gift certificates for five honorable mention awards in each category.

Photos will be displayed at Delano Camera and at the office of Quincy Heritage. For more information call 773-6077 or 773-1380.

Powers Seeks Bus Service For 'By-Passed' Wollaston Students

Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers has requested the MBTA to provide regular and efficient school bus service to Franklin Ave., Wollaston students, who he says have recently been by-passed by the bus driver.

Powers noted the bus has, "for about 10 years," made a scheduled stop at 7:30 a.m. at the intersection of Franklin Ave., and Sewell St.

Last week, however, eight young people waiting to be transported to Central Junior High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School were by-passed by the bus driver and left stranded on Franklin Ave.

According to Powers, residents telephoned the MBTA garage to complain about the situation but received no response.

In a letter to Joseph Kelly, general manager of the MBTA, Powers said:

"I request that the regular school bus service on Franklin Ave. be provided in an efficient manner so that the school children won't be subject to standing in the cold and being late for school."

Students Explore Historical Sites Under Project LINC

Project LINC, Quincy Public Schools' Title III project, is continuing to involve students in the exploration of historical sites, giving support to the city's celebration of its 350th anniversary.

Six Quincy teachers and one principal are researching aspects of Quincy's history in order to develop learning materials for Quincy students. Students will then investigate first-hand by visiting the sites.

Gerald Butler of Lincoln-Hancock Community School is developing information on the history of the granite industry, its importance to the city and reasons for its decline.

Joan Leonard of the Parker School and Laura DiTullio of the Squantum School are investigating the role of women in the 19th century.

Gene Ronayne, assistant principal at Quincy Elementary School, David Hohmann of the Wollaston School, and Marshall Levy of the Squantum School, are researching the potential of the United First Parish Church for re-creation of the 18th and 19th century Quincy life.

Eugene Creedon, principal of the Parker School, spent the summer researching education in the 1870's and 1880's at the time of the appointment of Col. Francis W. Parker as the first superintendent in Quincy.

The first opportunity for LINC students to learn first-hand about Quincy's historic sites occurred in September and October with the Adams Academy Dig. Under the guidance of North Quincy High School teacher Richard Riley and Quincy High School teacher Daniel Lutts, several students assisted in the attempt to find the old well on the grounds of the academy - the birthplace of John Hancock.

Quincy School System Cited By 'Changing Times'

The Quincy School System was cited in the October issue of "Changing Times, The Kiplinger Magazine," for its resourcefulness in recruiting senior citizen volunteers to help launch a new program at no cost to the school.

The staff of the Pollard School wanted to initiate an individualized learning program for its 500 students but didn't have the time.

The teachers decided to enlist the aid of residents of 1000 Southern Artery. The article read:

"A number of school districts have discovered that retired people are an excellent source of help...In Quincy, Mass...a group of volunteers took over clerical chores and began assisting in the media center and in the classroom, leaving the teachers time to put their plan into action. Cost to the school: nothing."

The project became an exchange program and members of the Pollard staff volunteered one night a month to help serve dinners at 1000 Southern Artery. This exchange has been going on several years.

North Trackmen Face Weymouth N.

North Quincy's winter track team opened its season Monday with a non-league meet against East Boston and starts its first Suburban League season Friday at 6:30 p.m. against Weymouth North at Newton North, where all league meets will be run.

Coach Lou Tozzi's hopes for a successful league debut were handed a tremendous blow when his outstanding distance runner, Bert Petracca, was operated on for a torn knee cartilage and will be out for the season.

However, Tozzi, pleased with the steady improvement of the Raiders, feels his team will have a successful season.

"A runner of Petracca's calibre cannot be replaced, but with some hard work from our sprinters and hurdlers to pick up the slack, we feel that a successful season is in order," Tozzi said. "We feel we are continuing to rebuild the program with good results. We began at this time last season with just four experienced people and progressed until we had an 11-4 spring record." North was only 2-5 in its final Greater Boston League winter season but 5-6 overall.

Tozzi feels North will be strong in the distance events despite the loss of Petracca. Heading the distance runners is senior Art Barrett, a hard worker who has done 10:08 in the two mile, and he is joined by his brother, Ken, currently out with an injury; three promising sophomores, Marty and Bobby Levenson and Mike Morin; Ed Yee, cross country co-captain; Ken O'Brien, a much improved runner who is expected to score well, and Tex Vorrozzo, a transfer from Quincy, who may not be eligible this season.

North will also be strong in the middle distances and tops will be Mark Canavan, undefeated last winter and expected to be one of the best 1000-yarders in Eastern Massachusetts. Other middle distance men are Bob Kennedy, John Mackey, one of North's best athletes with a fine attitude and expected to be strong in the 600; junior Joe O'Connor and five promising sophomores, Ian Sheridan, Tom Nee, Dick Kennedy, brother of Bob, Jerry MacKenzie, who looks especially good, and Phil Strungis.

The sprinters are inexperienced and Tozzi sees trouble ahead here. Senior Paul "Doc" Doherty, in Tozzi's words, "typifies the entire program and attitude we are trying to develop. A real team leader, outstanding leader and an outstanding young man." Juniors Jack Hatfield and Brian Doherty are expected to do well and two more good looking sophs, Mike Adams and Matty King, are improving.

North lacks depth in the shot put but Paul Doherty is expected to do 46 feet. Brian Doherty shows promise but lacks experience.

Tozzi expects the high jump to be a weak event but Canavan and Mackey could do well and Steve "Beaver" Bonoli, a sophomore and city junior high champion, is a fine prospect.

There is no experience among the hurdlers with Chris Morton, Dave Lorman and Bonoli the best bets. Morton ran the low hurdles in spring track.

At this writing Tozzi had no idea who would make up his relay team.

"We consider the Suburban League the toughest indoor track league in the state," Tozzi said. "Brookton, Weymouth South and Newton are not only strong E. Massachusetts teams but three of the best in the entire state. Also, Rindge is a perennial power along with Weymouth North and Quincy."

"I am most pleased by the turnout of 18 sophomores and the team is working very hard in practice to develop a positive attitude."

North Meets North (Weymouth) At Quincy Youth Arena

The North Quincy hockey team opens its first Suburban League season Saturday night when it meets Weymouth North in a 6:30 game at the Quincy Youth Arena and Coach Ron Erikson will be depending heavily upon strong defense and goaltending.

"We are not going to be a scoring team but if our defense and goalies can hold the other teams, we will put in a goal or two here and there and may pull out some close wins," Erikson said.

Last year North finished fourth for the second year in a row in its final Greater Boston League season but, despite an 8-9-3 record, the Raiders upset some of the top teams and finished with an impressive win over Medford.

From that team Ron has five starters and three of these are outstanding forwards who would make up probably one of the better lines in the league. However, Erikson is making each a center on his three lines.

"They would be great together but I feel, with 15 minute periods this year, I need three lines and will work around these three on each line," Erikson pointed out.

The three are Co-Capt. Mike McLean, Glen Hanson and Steve Cronin.

McLean, a senior, will center one line with seniors John Mackiewicz and Alan Thomas at the wings. Mackiewicz and Thomas played some with the varsity last season.

Hanson, a junior, will center for Dave Hurley and either Kevin Murphy or Tom McDonough.

Steve Cronin, also a junior, will center a third line and the two wings will be selected from among sophomore Paul Hurley, Dave's brother; senior Joe Pistorino and juniors Bob Carmody, Jim Maibach, Ken Dran and Pat Downey.

Another returning starter, Co-Capt. Paul O'Donnell, is expected to team with Myles O'Malley on defense with Steve Keough and Steve Giglio another defense duo. Other defensemen are Tony Alessi, Mike Smith, John Andrews and Rich Troy. Smith, Andrews and Troy are sophomores and Alessi a junior.

The other veteran is goalie Dave O'Hanley, who started most games a year ago and did a fine job. Behind him is Dick Wilson, who sparked the junior varsity to the GBL co-championship.

"The Suburban League looks strong with Quincy, Waltham and Brockton among the best and we will have our work cut out for us," Erikson said. "But these kids are determined and have shown a lot of improvement since we began practice. We had three outside scrimmages and looked better in each one. I am glad we will be playing our home games at the Quincy Youth Arena and most of our practices have been there."

Bob Troup is again coaching the Raider junior varsity.

City's Skating Rinks Need Cold Spell

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board announces its 21 natural skating rinks will be flooded for public skating as soon as a cold spell of three to four days duration is forecast.

Skating areas at Manet Lake, Houghs Neck, Tree Pond, Faxon Park and Furnace Brook Parkway cannot be flooded, however, until there is at least an eight-inch solid freeze in the ground.

The Department asks the cooperation of the public in not throwing anything into the flooded rinks while the ice is being formed. Another problem results from young children walking through the areas while they are still slushy, which spoils the surface for skating.

City Natural Resources Commissioner Richard J. Koch advises it would be impossible to supervise the 21 natural skating areas. He expressed hope that everyone using the areas will show consideration and cooperation for one another and comply with the Park Department's Courtesy Code.

5 Quincy, North Players On All-Stars

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams are represented by five players on the Suburban League All-Star team selected by the league coaches.

The local teams are well-represented on the offensive team with North's Mark Reale at end and Brian Doherty at running back and Quincy's Doug King at center and Preston Carroll running back.

The only defensive pick was Ted Wiedemann of Quincy as a defensive back.

North Hosts B.C. High

The North Quincy basketball team, which opens its season at 8 p.m. Saturday at home against B.C. High in a non-league game, will make its Suburban League debut

Monday at 8 o'clock at home against Rindge Tech.

North, co-champion of the Greater Boston League last year, won three undisputed GBL championships in addition to last year's co-title. Coach Bob Nolan led six of his past eight teams into the Tech or State Tournaments.

Next Thursday night North will play at Newton North.

Team Doctors Praised

Tending to the needs of the Quincy and North players on Thanksgiving were two young doctors who have been with the teams all season.

The Quincy doctor was Dr. Morteza Farizan, who is at the B.U. Medical school.

Tending to North was Dr. Bob McWhirter, who is at the U.Mass. Medical School in Worcester.

"These two have done a terrific job for us," Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone said. "Not only are they at every game but come to practices to tend to boys who are injured."

Gallagher Takes Over As Quincy Winter Track Coach

Peter Gallagher, coach of the Quincy girls' track team, has taken over as coach of the boys' winter track team and he sees a tough road ahead as the Presidents make their Suburban League debut.

Quincy opens Friday at 6:30 against Cambridge Latin at Newton North, where all league meets will be run.

"Despite a turnout of more than 40, we will be lacking depth," Gallagher, who succeeds Tom Hall, said. "Several of the boys don't come to practice so the turnout is actually misleading.

"I expect to be strongest in the 50-yard dash and 300 and we should also do pretty well in the distance runs. We will be weak in the hurdles. We will have at least one good man in the shot put and high jump but no depth and the relay will be a question mark."

Gallagher expects Kevin O'Brien, a cross-country runner, to do well in the mile.

Ron Vecchione, Stan Park and John Saville should do well in the 600, John Hapenan and Fran Yee are the best bets in the 1000, Harry Williams is a fine prospect in the 300 and Dave McDonald also looks good in this event.

In the two-mile Bob Thorne is the best bet. He was the Presidents' best in cross-country. He will be joined by two of the stars of the girls' cross-country team, Kelly Tobin and Dottie Irvine.

Girls are allowed to run with the boys, but Dottie's points will not count as she is still in junior high. She was the best runner in cross-country.

Alan Vachon and John Ferris are good bets in the 50-yard dash and another good prospect is Bill Dempsey, a transfer.

Bob Varraso is strong in the shot put and Gallagher expects him to hit 45 feet, while Leo Baron is a fine high jumper and may reach six feet.

Harold McManus looks like the best of the hurdlers.

A year ago Quincy was 5-2 in its final Greater Boston League season and 5-3 overall. Gallagher feels he will have his hands full trying to equal this mark.

Although the team lost its first two games to Massasoit and Mt. Wachusett, Coach Donlin and her players, led by Co-Captains Barbara Rhind and Karen Roderick, feel they have the potential for a winning season.

The women look hopefully toward the Mass. Junior and Community College playoffs and the National Jr. College A.A. Tournaments.

However, the coach and co-captains stress that more important than winning or losing is the participation of all interested women in the intercollegiate sports activities.

Home games are played at the Quincy Voc-Tech gym and the public is invited.

Presidents Open Against Rindge

By TOM SULLIVAN

"If we can avoid injuries and the flu, this could be the best team I've had at Quincy," enthused Hockey Coach Bob Sylvia as he prepared the Presidents for their Suburban League debut Saturday against Waltham. Game time is 5 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Next Thursday Quincy will face Rindge Tech at 6 p.m. at Boston Arena.

"I don't believe in playing the team down and if I have a good club I say so," Sylvia said. "We have great depth this season with three good lines. I'm very pleasantly surprised by our third line and a fourth line is also coming along. With 15-minute periods this year, a team needs three good lines and we are well off in this respect."

Sylvia has good experience at forward and on defense and, although the goalies are inexperienced, all are looking good and the veteran coach feels Quincy will be all right there.

Last year's top scorers, Senior Ted Wiedemann and junior Frankie Gies, will center the first two lines.

Sylvia refers to his lines by colors. Wiedemann will center the red line with seniors Pete Raymer and Steve Neville at the wings. Raymer is a veteran and Neville played for the junior varsity last year.

Guest named the outstanding sophomore in the Greater Boston League a year ago, will center the yellow line with juniors Paul Lynch and Mike Ponce, up from the jayvees, at the wings. Senior Rich Lucier is also in the running for one of the wing spots.

Junior Bob Barry, who played some varsity hockey last year, will center the green line with seniors Ed McDonald and Bill Brooks and junior Billy Hamill, all former jayvees, battling for the wing posts.

Two of last year's jayvees, junior Dave Shaw and Anthony Cedrone, and sophomore Dave Previtt, make up the white line.

Three veterans, Rick Avery, Brian Nevins and Leo Kearney, all seniors, head the defense corps with juniors Dennis Bertoni and Nick Cyr, up from the jayvees, giving them a lot of competition.

In goal Sylvia has Mark Fanning, a senior, and junior Peter Hajjar, from the jayvees, and Mike Buchan, a sophomore who played for last year's freshman All show a lot of promise.

A year ago in their final GBL season, the Presidents were in danger of being eliminated from state tournament play when it had a 5-3 record. However, they made a remarkable comeback, won or tied 11 of their last 12 games for a 13-4-3 record and made the tourney after missing out the two previous years. In eight years at Quincy, Sylvia has taken five of his teams to the tournament.

Although ousted by tourney-wise Norwood, 6-3, in its first tourney game, Quincy threw a scare into the heavily favored Bay State League team as it jumped off to an early lead.

"I think this team can play any type of game it has to," Sylvia said. "If the other team plays a roughhouse type game, we can do it, although it isn't our customary style."

Sylvia pointed out that the players decided to take a vote before every game for captain and then elect a captain for the season at the end of the year. "Every senior will be a 'mini-captain' and will carry the responsibilities of a captain," Sylvia said.

Bob paid tribute to his junior varsity coach, Rich Hutchins. "He does a tremendous job and when his players move up to the varsity, they have no trouble adjusting," Sylvia said.

● St. Ann's Hockey

All-Stars Edged, 5-4 Bruins, Dairy In Tie

The St. Ann's Youth Hockey League all-stars dropped a 5-4 decision to Winthrop with Kevin Ryan having two St. Ann goals and Paul Furey and Bob Sullivan one apiece. Furey, Walter Phipps, Ron Hidalgo and Greg Kelly had assists.

scored unassisted for the Bruins and George Woodman scored for Dairy Queen with John Downing and Mike Walsh assisting. Both teams played outstanding hockey.

Bob Maloney one for K. of C. while Chris Clark had an assist. For Blackwood Tom Burke, Bill Cyr and John Cronin had the goals and Tom Nazzaro, Cyr and Cronin assists.

Sullivan, Donahue See Game

Two former Quincy-North coaching rivals, Jack Donahue and Bill Sullivan, watched the Thanksgiving game from the press box.

Bill was custodian of the press box, keeping unauthorized persons out.

TAKE PILLS ALONG

This advice could save your life when you make an emergency (or scheduled) trip to the hospital. You may be taking some medication that counteracts the medicine you'll get at the hospital. Worse, some drugs that have no bad effects taken singly can adversely affect you when taken together. An example of a dangerous combination could be some weight reduction pills and medication for high blood pressure that you might get from an emergency room doctor.

If you arrive at the hospital unconscious, the bottle of pills that your family brings with you may give the physician an important clue as to what is wrong with you.

Before you depart for the hospital, either you or your friends or relatives should scoop up all your pill bottles and put them in a sack. Be sure the doctor who examines you gets them, and above all, don't put them under the mattress and go along taking them in the hospital without letting your physician know.

●Girls Basketball

First Ladies Defeat North, 54-44

The Quincy High girls' basketball team, following three straight losses, captured its first win last week and it was a most pleasing victory for Quincy Coach Barbara Webster.

The First Ladies defeated North Quincy, coached by Miss Webster for the past three years, 54-44, to make their record 1-3. The loss dropped the Raiderettes to 1-2.

Sophomore Lois Malvesti, who starred for Sterling Junior High a year ago, scored 18 points for the second game in a row. Cindy Tozzi had 14 and Kelly Sparks six. For North Ruth Widman scored 12 points, Jean McCarthy nine and Elaine Shea six. Misses McCarthy and Shea played for Miss Webster, while Miss Widman is a newcomer.

In its previous game Quincy had dropped a 44-31 decision to Weymouth North, despite 18 points by Miss Malvesti. Misses Tozzi and Sparks had six apiece.

The North girls, coached this year by Sandra Colletti, had defeated Waltham, 27-22, in their previous game. Cheryl Walsh and Elaine Shea were the top scorers and Nancy Willard was outstanding.

Today [Thursday] Quincy plays at Newton North and North Quincy hosts Weymouth South. The teams won't play again until Jan. 2.

Quincy Debut Monday

The Quincy High basketball team, which opens its first Suburban League season Monday, will give the fans a preview Saturday at 7 p.m. when it meets an Alumni team at the Voc-Tech gym.

"This will be a festive occasion and the game will be preceded by a 'spirit rally', Coach Joe Amoroso said. "Players from the past four or five years will play for the Alumni and Marty Finnegan, our former head coach, will coach the team. This is open to the public and I hope many students, parents and other interested fans, will be there for the rally and game."

Many former players interested in playing are asked to contact Finnegan, Amoroso, Bobby McDermott, Ken Furfuri or Mark Dwyer.

Frustration So Far For ENC

With the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team idle until Jan. 10 when it plays in the Gordon College Tournament, Coach Jim Smith is probably talking to himself and no one can blame him.

Going into the holiday break, ENC has only a 1-4 record but the Crusaders have lost three games by one or two points in the final seconds of play.

"It has been frustrating and I just hope things turn around for us after the holidays," Smith said. "We have been playing fine ball and the boys have really lost some tough ones."

ENC lost its season's opener to Southeastern Mass., 76-75, in the final seconds. After a loss to much taller Western New England, the Crusaders defeated St. Francis of Maine, 75-62, for its only win.

Last week ENC lost two more heartbreakers. It first lost to Curry, 76-74, in the final 10 seconds, after leading by 12 points at the half.

ENC again suffered from lack of height as Curry out-rebounded the Crusaders, 34-22, in the second half.

Gerry Whetstone led the ENC scorers with 20 points, Gordie Wetmore had 15 and Mike Cox 10.

Last Friday ENC lost to Barrington, 83-81, in the last 20 seconds on two foul shots by Howie Jarvis. The Crusaders nearly pulled out a great win after trailing by 16 points at the half.

Steve Parks led the scorers with 20 points, Howie Briggs had 17 and Whetstone 15.

QJC Looks Good

The Quincy Junior College basketball team, sparked by Kevin Gibson, one of the top scorers and rebounders in the Mass. Junior College Conference, is enjoying a good season and Tuesday night sought their 7th win in 11 games when it hosted Bristol.

The Collejons, 6-4 overall and 3-1 in the conference, play at Worcester Tech tonight (Thursday) and then will be off until Jan. 4 when they host Quinsigamond at Vo-Tech gym at 8 o'clock.

Last Friday QJC, trailing by six points in the waning minutes, rallied to top Wentworth Institute, 75-69, in a conference game.

Gibson, having a sensational year, scored 39 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to dominate the game. Tom Carmody had 15 rebounds, eight points and five assists, and guards Bernie Holleran and Tony Mitchell combined for 16 points and 15 assists.

In its previous game QJC walloped Newton Junior College, 82-60, after leading by only two points at the half.

The Collejons broke the game open midway in the second half.

Gibson had 20 points and 15 rebounds, but Holleran was the top scorer with 24 points. Carmody added 10 points.

ENC Girls Wind Up Perfect Season

Two former Quincy High athletes, Donna Brickley and Jean Macchi, were starting players for the Eastern Nazarene College girls volleyball team, which recently completed a perfect [15-0] season and won the intercollegiate tournament championship at Tufts.

The tournament was sponsored by the Metropolitan Boston Intercollegiate Athletic Council with seven teams entered.

In the tournament ENC defeated Boston University, 15-9 and 15-7; MIT, 16-14 and 15-7, and in the finals Boston College, 13-11, and 15-9. The ENC girls this year won 30 straight games and 15 successive matches.

The team was led by Co-captains Barbara Mason, the only senior, and Brenda Henley. The other starters were Misses Brickley and Macchi, Janice Irwin, Gen Beck and Diane Mazzacone. The co-captains were the leading scorers.

More Honors For Provost

John Provost, former Quincy High football standout, continues to receive honors for his brilliant defensive play at Holy Cross.

Last week, as expected, Provost was selected on the Associated Press' first All-American team. He also was picked on the United Press International's second All-American team and the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference [ECAC] first team.

He earlier had made the Walter Camp All-American first team and the UPI All-East team. Provost was also named New England's Major College Player of the Year.

Another player from Quincy, Jack Baiorinos of Penn State, was given a major award as a student-athlete. A former B.C. High star, he is co-captain of the Penn State team which plays in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day. He also was selected on the UPI All-East team.

Patraccia Injury Jolts North's Hopes

Hopes of the North Quincy winter track team for a successful debut into the Suburban League this season were handed a rude jolt this week when the Raiders' ace distance runner, Bart Patraccia, underwent an operation for torn knee cartilages.

Coach Lou Tozzi announced that Patraccia, who set many cross country records this fall and last year was one of the top distance men in the Greater Boston League, will be out for at least 10 weeks, which means the entire season with the possible exception of a few meets following the regular season.

'Would Be Happy To Negotiate'

Two-Thirds Of Hospital Nurses Plan To Resign

Two-thirds of the Quincy City Hospital nursing staff planned to submit their resignations Wednesday afternoon as wage negotiations remained unresolved in a stalemate.

Representatives of the nurses' union were scheduled to present nearly 250 nurses' resignations to Hospital Director Harlan Paine early Wednesday afternoon.

The nurses are giving the hospital four weeks notice of their intended resignations which will be effective Jan. 18.

Atty. Ruth Paven of the Massachusetts Nurses Association said the mass resignation was not to be intended "as a demonstration."

"We feel responsible to the patients at the hospital and intend to give the hospital administration time to wind down admissions and to divert patients to other facilities." We don't intend to leave patients bleeding on the floor," she said.

Atty. Paven called the city's offer of a $1,200 pay increase effective Jan. 1 "totally unacceptable" and said the nurses' union is seeking at least an 8 1/2 percent pay increase retroactive to January of this year.

Starting salary for nurses at Quincy City Hospital is $174 per week with a ceiling salary of $202 per week, said Atty. Paven. The nurses received a 5 1/2 per cent pay increase in January of 1973 and have not received a salary boost since. They have been working without a contract since Dec. 31, 1973.

Atty. Paven said the city's offer was "a slap in the face" to hospital nurses who voted unanimously to reject the offer. She said, too, that some nurses mentioned in their individual letters of resignation the "contemptuous attitude" of the city during wage negotiations.

"The nurses do not feel the city's offer was made in good faith," she said.

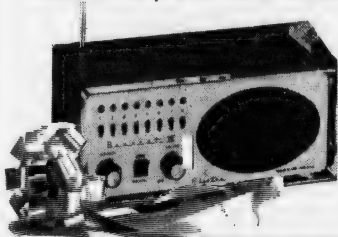

She said, too, the nurses' union would "be happy to negotiate" further with the city.

"We'd be delighted if this matter were settled," she said.

Bagpipe Music Saturday At Quincy Heritage Office

Peter Henderson, pipe major of the Clan MacGregor, will play bagpipe music ranging from the 14th century to more recent tunes associated with Christmas Saturday at the Quincy Heritage office in the Quincy Center MBTA station.

Henderson, a custodian at the Merrymount School, will be dressed in the Henderson tartan which features green, black, blue, yellow and white colors and the sporran, or pouch, worn over the front of the kilt and traditionally used to carry food and money.

Highland bagpipes will be used in the performance. These pipes include one bass drone, two tenor drones, one blow pipe to inflate the bag and the "chanter" or melody pipe. The pipes are made from African blackwood, Indian ivory, Australian sheepskin, Spanish reeds and Scottish wool.

The bagpipe performance will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday and run to 4:30 in conjunction with a Quincy Heritage open house for display of 350th anniversary and Bicentennial commemorative items.

Commemorative items now on sale by Quincy Heritage include the Abigail Adams and General Joseph Palmer hand-made glass bottles, a book entitled "Quincy 350 Years" the John Quincy Adams signet ring and pendant, and colonial nail jewelry.

Judge August C. Taveira and pleaded innocent.

The motions include a bill of particulars for each case, a change of venue, the production of certain grand jury minutes, the presentation of exculpatory evidence and the dismissal of three of the charges.

The dismissal motions include the two indictments of "conflict-of-interests" and "falsely making an instrument".

Calling these motions "strong", Goldings said, "The facts won't bear out these indictments."

KEEP YOUR FOOD SAFE

Clean your kitchen thoroughly and often—disinfecting all equipment that comes apart. A food safety tip from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Goldings said, too, he hopes for "a speedy disposition" of the remaining indictments which include two counts of larceny, two counts of removing a tomb, removing a gravestone and removing memorial structures.

Goldings said he expects the hearing date on the motions to be set within the next 30 days.

The case was probed by Special Investigator J. Blake Thaxter, former assistant district attorney from Cohasset. He was appointed by Dist. Atty. George G. Burke following nomination by the Norfolk County Bar Association.

Businessmen Back Mayor On Shotguns, Machineguns

equal chance against the criminal."

PHIL CHASE, manager of Cumming's: "I think parts of the news coverage has been misconstrued, making it appear as though the officers will be carrying around machine guns in cars most of the time. The machine guns are under lock and key at the station. Only the shotguns are in the cars, which I go for wholeheartedly. It's about time."

JASON FELDMAN, owner of Jason's Luggage and Music Shop: "If it works, it's good, if it doesn't it's bad. Our enforcement officers should be equipped to handle any situation."

JACK KERRIGAN, owner of Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Store: "Speaking as an owner of a store in downtown Quincy, and being on the street seven days a week, I know the professionalism of the Quincy Police force. I feel anything their chief feels will work, I will support. I know they can handle it."

"It's unfortunate the situation has come to this, but I think it's a necessity. I only question the amount and type of publicity it has received. I support the police 100 per cent. Knowing Mayor Hannon, and judging from his policies in the past, I'm sure he feels the move is in the best interests of the city. And I praise him for his strength and courage to make his opinions known."

ROBERT FREEMAN, manager of Hart's Jewelry: "To be perfectly honest, I'm not in a position to comment on it. I'd like to be able to sit down with Chief Finn and his opponents to fully understand the situation. I don't feel qualified to comment."

ROGER PERFETTI, manager of the Quincy office of Norfolk County Trust: "I can only speak for myself and not the bank. It can be good and it can be bad. A machine gun, in anyone's hands, is a most dangerous weapon, regardless of the skill involved. I don't know if guns are going to help, but certainly something must be done to make the streets safer for Joe Taxpayer."

WILLIAM KELLEY, president of Hancock Bank: "Chief Finn knows a lot more about the protection requirements in the city than Bill Kelley does. If he thinks it's a good move, then it has to be done."

CHARLES PETERSON, vice-president of South Shore National Bank: "As a citizen, I think it's the best thing in the world. It's time the police had an even shot with some of these hoodlums around."

STAN KELLEY, manager of the Quincy office of Beneficial Finance: "It's ridiculous. We don't need the guns. It will cause even more problems."

GEORGE STONE, owner of Stone's Jewelry: "You might find that letting people know about the guns might have a psycho-effect on the situation. Maybe we need that."

MARK BERTMAN, owner of Rogers Jewelry: "I happen to think it's a good idea, used in the right way. I'm sure the Quincy Police force will know when, where and how to use such weapons."

CHARLES PEARCE, president of Quincy Savings Bank: "No comment."

One prominent Quincy businessman who wanted to remain anonymous said: "It's a good preventive measure to deter people from pulling hold-ups."

JEROME MORREALE, of Child World Store, robbed of $5,000 last week by three bandits armed with shotguns and a handgun: "In the light of what's happened, I'd hate to have been those policemen coming up against those men with shotguns. If we're going to put policemen on the streets and expect them to do their job well, we should equip them as well as the opposition."

REMO DE NICOLA, co-owner of South Shore Television and Appliance: "I'm not the Mayor, I'm not a member of the Police Department, I'm a merchant. I feel it should be left to the mayor and to the police department to determine what is necessary to keep downtown Quincy clean and free of the undesirable element. They should use whatever means necessary to do so. I'm sure the police department has people competent to use this type of weaponry."

price is determined by a formula including the wholesale price of oil, gross margin profit and allowable non-product costs. Wholesaler's price in turn depends upon a host of factors including the high price of imported oil, the amount of cheaper domestic oil available to him, and his own allocation of oil.

Mrs. DeAngelis noted that New England is the largest foreign oil importer in the nation, burning 21 per cent of the country's heating oil. She added that allocations of 14 to 15 million gallons of home heating oil will trigger a savings of $2.4 million on the estimated $1,275 million home oil heating bill for the New England area.

Additional consumer savings are expected, Mrs. DeAngelis said, with the allocation of 114 million gallons of residual oil burned by utility companies.

Quoting a newly-completed survey by the New England Fuel Institute, Mrs. DeAngelis said consumers in the area are actually conserving oil. Survey figures indicate a drop of 20.8 per cent in home heating oil consumption from November 1973 to November 1974, she said.

Yet this decrease in the volume of his sales only aggravates the dealer's dilemma, said Mrs. DeAngelis, when coupled with his predetermined per gallon profit margin.

She pointed out that all dealers surveyed, "without exception" expressed concern for the consumer's ability to absorb further price increases. She said:

"Many were anxious for the opportunity to explain the problems of pricing to the consumer. One of the dealers is contacting various local organizations to attempt to speak to them about the home heating oil situation."

Yes, Lauren, There Is A Santa Claus

Seven-year-old Lauren Mahan of 114 Faxon Rd., North Quincy, like a little girl many years ago, wants to know if there is a Santa Claus.

She writes:

"Dear Editor:
"I am seven years old and I would like to [k]now if there is a Santa Claus.

"Lauren Mahan
"I live on 114 Faxon Rd., North Quincy."

Well, Lauren, many years ago, another little girl named Virginia O'Hanlon who lived in New York City wrote a similar letter to another newspaper editor.

And, coincidentally, that newspaper was The Sun, too. It was the New York Sun. She wrote the following letter in 1897:

"I am 8 years old.
"Some of my friends say there is no Santa Claus.
"Papa says, 'If you see it in 'The Sun' it's so'.
"Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

An editor by the name of Francis P. Church answered her letter. It is so beautifully written that it soon became a Christmas classic like "The Night Before Christmas".

I don't think anyone can improve on what Mr. Church wrote. So, I am going to let you read his answer which appears below. I am sure you will feel certain there is a Santa Claus.

His reply follows:

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a

Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith, then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not-believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

No-Postage Mail Delivery Discontinued

Officer in Charge James J. Gavin today reminds customers the U.S. Postal Service as of Sunday has discontinued delivering mail on which there is no postage.

Gavin said the new policy was instituted because of the high costs incurred by the Postal Service in its attempt to deliver such mail. Officials estimate that such costs total approximately $18 million annually.

office, instead of being delivered to the address as postage due mail as has been the custom.

Postal officials will attempt to find the sender of unpaid mail and return it for a slight fee, if there is no return address.

A Merry Christmas For Hundreds

Koch Club, Salvation Army, Elks Distribute Food Baskets, Gifts

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The Christmastime spirit of giving is spreading throughout Quincy, reaching hundreds of needy families and children, as service organizations distribute their Christmas baskets with food and toys.

The Koch Club will bring 25-30 Christmas baskets filled with a turkey, canned goods, fruits and vegetables to senior citizens and families in Quincy, marking the 19th year of this Koch Club Christmas project.

For the fourth year, the club will distribute 5,000 refurbished toys for children in Quincy, surrounding towns and South Boston.

One-hundred fifty of the toys are dolls donated by people of all ages. Richard Koch, the city's commissioner of natural resources and president of the Koch Club, said this year's response to the toy drive was the largest yet.

"This was the greatest year ever for mutual response," he said. There is more involvement to assist us."

One-hundred of the dolls donated needed new clothes and scores of people knit and sewed new outfits for the dolls, said Koch. An 83-year-old woman handmade several dresses for some of the dolls in response to the club's "Dress A Doll For Christmas" drive.

The club's toy-giving tradition began three years ago when the Kochs gathered 200 toys for the young victims of a Roxbury fire.

The club has been collecting the toys since the early spring.

Santa Claus paid his 18th annual visit to young shut-ins Saturday and Sunday at the request of the Koch Club. Assisting in planning this event was Richard Morrissey.

The club also held its 27th annual Christmas party Saturday for small children under the age of 10. The party took place at the Fore River Clubhouse. Santa Claus visited the children to hear their Christmas wishes and wants and to distribute candy.

The Salvation Army plans to help 80 needy families this Christmas season. Capt. Geoffrey Banfield said food baskets, as well as gifts of money, will be distributed to the families.

The Sallies' toy shop, stocked with 300 toys, opened Friday. Parents were able to choose Christmas toys for their children.

A total of 697 "Sunshine Bags" filled with toilet articles and candy have been distributed to nine nursing homes in the Quincy area. The Salvation Army entertained the senior citizens with a selection of Christmas carols.

Carolers will serenade throughout Quincy neighborhoods Christmas Eve and Christmas night.

The Salvation Army Band and Choir presented "Carol of Christmas" for the public Sunday at the Baxter St. headquarters in Quincy Point.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks is also planning to distribute 150 food baskets to families in Quincy and neighboring towns.

The South Shore Welfare Department distributes Christmas donations and contributions made by social, civic and fraternal organizations to needy families throughout the area. For example, 60 families in Braintree will enjoy a merrier Christmas thanks to contributions from organizations and individuals in their town.

Thomas Lawton, co-ordinator of the Christmas drives of the South Shore Welfare Department, said he welcomes any donations of money, Christmas gifts or toys earmarked for Quincy families.

Hannon Seeks USS Quincy Bell, Wheel, Plaque

Mayor Walter J. Hannon is seeking to obtain from the U.S. Navy the bell, builder's plaque and quarterdeck wheel of the Cruiser USS Quincy built at the Fore River Shipyard in 1942.

The cruiser has been sold by the Navy to American Ship Dismantlers, Inc. of Portland, Ore. Yet it is possible to loan the bell, builder's plaque and quarterdeck wheel to the city of Quincy for an indefinite period of time, according to information received by Mayor Hannon from the Department of Navy. The Mayor said: "This ship holds special significance for the people of Quincy. It was...named for the old cruiser Quincy which was sunk by the Japanese in the Battle of Savo Island off Guadalcanal.

REMEMBER WHEN?

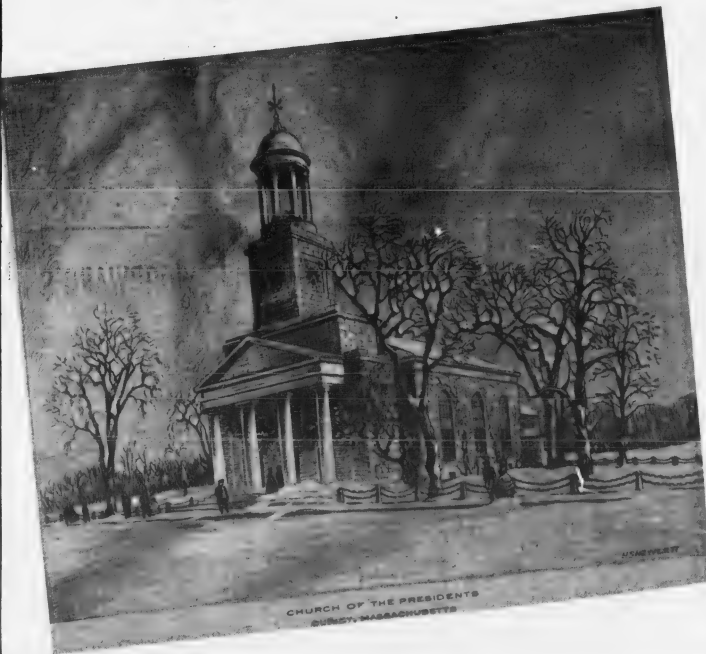

Back in about 1929 - four years after Thomas S. Burgin founded what is now the Burgin, Platner Insurance Agency in Quincy Square, he used this etching and description of the Church of the Presidents as a Christmas remembrance for his limited number of customers.

Now, forty-five years later, the Burgin, Platner Agency enjoys distributing over ELEVEN THOUSAND calendars annually. The year 1975 will mark the FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY of this office - "The Doorway To Protection".

The entire staff of Burgin, Platner extends to their many customers and other good friends best wishes for

Succulent Turkey For Festive Holiday Feasting

The old-fashioned flavor of plump, succulent turkey is delicious enough. But sparked up with sausage stuffing balls, it's really something special.

For traditional holiday feasting, serve a big, broad-breasted turkey. It's nice to know today's turkeys are better than ever. They're carefully bred, fed a scientifically calculated diet, and selected with care for quality control. Pounded for pound, turkey is one of the most nutritional and economical protein foods you can buy.

A modern fresh-frozen turkey is easy as 1-2-3 to prepare: just thaw and rinse, stuff or bake in a covered casserole, set into the oven, and it will tend to its own roasting.

This year, try a new kind of accompaniment to the holiday turkey—sausage stuffing balls. A mixture of sausage, celery, onion, cranberries, eggs, and seasoned stuffing mix is formed into balls, then baked in the oven.

Our suggested menu also includes a colorful vegetable dish: Glazed Carrots and Brussel Sprouts.

Dessert? What could be more in keeping than a fruity, luscious plum pudding topped with fluffy hard sauce? Your holiday feast will be contemporary yet traditional. It's truly the best of both worlds.

A Slippery Death

The most widespread cause of accidental death next to auto accidents is the accidental fall. Last year over 20,000 persons were killed in this manner. And with the added hazard of winter, a good percentage of these fatalities occur from falling on ice. Fortunately, in this area, a little prevention can save a needless tragedy.

Make sure all snow and ice is removed from your walks and stairs. A bag of salt will cut down on the shovelling efforts. Also, when the walk is clean, sprinkle more salt to prevent formation of an icy glare.

Leather-soled shoes are a hazard on winter ice. You get more traction with rubber or studded rubber soles. Wearing rubber-soled shoes is excellent safeguard is "ice creepers" or grippers which are cleat-like attachments that fasten to the bottom of your shoes. Strips of abrasive tape on the soles of shoes also provides some anti-skid gripping power.

Trim The Christmas Tree With Friendship

The Christmas season is the perfect time for parties. Every kind of party that was ever thought of is given during the gala holidays. New parties are "invented" each year. All the get-togethers are fun.

One of the best parties of all is the tree trimming party. Young and old alike accept the party invitation with great anticipation. New ways to trim the tree are tried and the old ways brought back. Whatever the color and style of the finished tree, it will be beautiful because it's been trimmed by friends—with love.

Some hostesses prefer serving a light supper before the crowd gets to work. In that case, she does most of the work in advance and seals the food in plastic containers in the refrigerator. Then with a few last minute touches, the meal is ready. Most hostesses simplify everything and have sweet refreshments ready and waiting. Holiday Fruit Bars, a favorite cookie, are all ready in a Tupperware Pak-N-Stor, divided just in case two kinds of cookies are offered. The bar, made easily ahead of time, might even be given as Christmas gifts to the tree trimming friends.

Since most people develop a sweet tooth at holiday time, a Suzette holds candy, whether homemade or store bought. It's conveniently placed near the Christmas tree ornaments so that the hard workers can take a candy break when necessary. Usually a thirst occurs while tree trimming so the wise hostess has a punch bowl nearby. A fruit punch is refreshing and can be enjoyed later by everyone as they sit around admiring their handiwork. With carols playing on the stereo, a song might be in order and punch is welcomed by the singers.

Trim the tree happily. Trim the tree with friendship.

Holiday Fruit Bars
2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 1/2 cups cut-up mixed candied fruit
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

In small mixer bowl, beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored; gradually beat in sugar. Add melted butter. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and spices; mix with fruits and walnuts. Stir dry ingredients with fruits and nuts into creamed mixture. Spread thick batter into greased 8-inch square pan; bake at 325 degrees about 45 minutes, or until toothpick thrust into center comes out clean. Cool in pan, cut into bars and dust with powdered sugar. Makes 18 bars.

If desired, frost with Confectioners' Icing made with 1 cup sifted powdered sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and enough light cream (about 1 tablespoon) to make spreading consistency. Top with a sprinkle of colored sugar.

Set limits on invitation

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
When someone comes to visit for a few days, how long is a few days?

Hostess-to-be
Dear Hostess-to-be:
It is up to you to set the limits of your invitation. Statements such as, "We would like to have you visit us for two days," or "We will meet your plane Thursday morning and return you to the airport for your Sunday flight home," lets your guest also make plans.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:
Can you suggest some Christmas gifts for members of my two-table bridge club, my children's teachers and neighbors, who have been especially kind to our family this year. I don't have much money.

Dear Melba:
For those bridge players and neighbors I suggest something from your kitchen or garden. A tulip bulb in an old coffee mug or a sprig of mint sprouting in a topless vinegar cruet speak of thoughtfulness. The same goes for the teachers but those gifts should clearly have the stamp of your children's labors. What a fun-filled afternoon you all can have making sugar cookies and icing them with the ready-made frosting that comes with its own fancy tips. Happy holidays!

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Be moderate, self-disciplined and good natured now. Don't be jealous of another's popularity and curb suspicion in romance. Your popularity is high — stay poised and serene. Use money wisely. Don't be extravagant or miserly.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Someone you meet now can be important to your future, romantically. Resist a tendency to "drift" in relationships instead of investing something of yourself. Guard your health — listen to good advice from others.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — High activity period in the past may leave you feeling exhausted now. Energy returns by the weekend — mix business and pleasure. Retain the older business techniques for now. Unexpected repairs to the home are possible.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Friends are beneficial by introducing you to people and giving ideas. Changes are in store for you which enlarge your outlook. Disputes at work should be solved by conciliation. Finish up past projects.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Good time to set up a yearly budget. While money comes in quite easily, it can go out the same way. Bills come due — obligations from the past must be met. Lending money to friends is not favored.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Good time for study and "goal-setting." Let emotions take a back seat while you concentrate on career. A long range plan could start now. Be self-disciplined, but don't become harsh, overly-serious and tense.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Resist lack-a-daisical attitudes and get going with a project requiring work and perseverance. Discontent lies in laziness! Help and cooperation for your highest aims is available. Accept offers and support.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Active support from a friend on a project you are launching brings excellent results. Romantic matters move slowly but this is good. Creative ideas abound — act on them. Be kind but firm with a relative making demands.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE Author given free rein on Hepburn book

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Charles Higham whose new book "Ava," a resume of the adventures of Ava Gardner, is doing so well he has scored an enormous coup.

He's not only obtained Katharine Hepburn's full cooperation for a book he's writing about her, but also her pledge that she won't even read the finished manuscript, much less make changes.

No one who's ever worked with a star on a book can believe it, but Higham says this is the arrangement.

"Miss Hepburn who never talks with writers has given me hours of interviews," he says, "and the phone numbers of all of her friends. Then she's called them and told them to talk with me."

"I've interviewed 110 persons for the book which will be out in April."

"I asked Miss Hepburn whether she'd like to read the finished manuscript, and she said, 'No.'"

"I pointed out that it might contain errors in fact which she'd want corrected before the book was published, but she said she wouldn't care about that, because she's not going to read the book anyway."

"My book is going to present an entirely different picture of the Tracy-Hepburn relationship from the one generally accepted."

"My research shows she was the stronger of the two. I think Tracy appealed to her maternal instincts just as I suspect he appealed to Loretta Young's."

Higham is also working on a book about Marlene Dietrich, but he doubts that it can be published during her lifetime.

As for his book "Ava," it was definitely written without

KATHARINE HEPBURN
...won't read the book the subject's cooperation or consent.

"I haven't heard her reaction," he says, "and I doubt that I will, because I don't think she'll read it."

"However, Roddy McDowall read it and was furious."

"Though when he called me to complain, he'd only read the pages that dealt with himself; so I don't know how he'd feel about the book in its entirety."

Higham says he's avoided libel suits not only because his publishers have lawyers but because he has a legal mind.

Even so, differences between libel laws in various countries cause complications.

"Because of British libel laws, 'Ava' has been severely cut for the English edition," Higham mentions. "As a matter of fact, Ava comes out as a teetotal Salvation Army worker."

"If she drinks at all, it's very little, and her love affairs are friendships."

"If I hadn't thought she'd behaved well in 'Earthquake,' I would have omitted all mention of it."

"For unto us a Child is born..."
Let us remember that it is the celebration of His birth.

Children's Christmas Program At Adams Shore

A Christmas program for the children was held recently in the exhibition hall with many parents, grandparents and friends attending.

The program opened with a play "The Child Who Was Made Of Snow," a story of an unhappy couple who wished that they had a child to make their Christmas happier. A thought came to them to make one of snow and to their delight the child came to life.

Leading parts were played by: Sandra Walsh, Marty Griffin and the child by AnnMarie McCarthy. Carolers were: Elaine Clark, Janet Dennis, Karen Grindle, Paul and Terri Roche, Kathleen Reddish, AnnMarie, Janet, Patricia McCarthy, Robert Lavigne, Liz Morrison, DawnMarie and James Riley.

Thirty children who are members of the story hour groups sang carols and rang bells. Daniel McCluskey was the drummer boy who led the children in a march. Musical instruments were played by Sandra Walsh-Flute, AnnMarie McCarthy-Clarinet, William Robinson-Trumpet and Gregory Mills-Saxophone.

Also presented was another play titled "Toys for Santa." The mailman delivered a large letter from Santa Claus asking the children if they had any toys they could donate as he had run out of them. Each child placed two of their toys that they no longer needed under the tree to make some other child happy and they in turn had a happy feeling for sharing.

The program ended with carols and the appearance of Santa Claus to the surprise of the children. The children took their turns to sit on his lap and tell what they would like for Christmas.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Eckert, children's librarian assisted by William Bloomer, staff member.

Legal Secretaries

Donate To Needy

The Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association held its annual Christmas party at the Canton House, Stoughton recently.

Instead of exchanging gifts however, donations from the members and guests present were received, to be matched by the chapter's treasury and donated to the needy.

Chairwoman for the holiday festivities was Lindsey Cyr of Weymouth, employed by Boston Atty. Frank Mann. Entertainment was by guitarist and singer Nick Latteo of Weymouth. A door prize was drawn.

Also displayed at the Christmas party were Friends Calendars, which the Chapter is selling for the benefit of the more than 1,000 children cared for and serviced by The New England Home for Little Wanderers. The artwork was done by the children at the Child Care Center in Boston ages 7-12.

Anyone interested in purchasing a "Friends Calendar 1975" may contact any member of the Norfolk County Chapter.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS TO ME

Christmas is a special time of the year. It's not what you get, it's what you give to each other that counts the most.

it's a sign of friendship.
Christmas means to me that giving is as much fun as getting.

A CHRISTMAS TREASURE

It was the day before Xmas, the kids could hardly wait, thinking of all the presents. It was 12 o'clock. Then morning came and all the kids jumped out of bed and ran down stairs.
They couldn't believe it with only one present. They walked down stairs and they all opened it. It was a note and it said,
"Take 4 steps to cellar door, go down and look," so they all did it. When they looked down stairs, their presents were all there.

HOW RUDOLPH GOT HIS RED NOSE

Once upon a time there was a reindeer family and one day they had a baby. They named it Rudolph. Friday, August 2, was his birthday and that was in two weeks. They were having a surprise party. He was turning two and he didn't know it was his birthday. He saw his mother making the frosting. It was red.
He said, "Red is my favorite color."

They had the party and Rudolph wanted the piece with the most frosting. He was eating his cake and opening his presents at the same time and wasn't watching; so he stuck his nose in the frosting and it lit up and hardened. So that's how he got his red nose.

Toys For Disadvantaged May Be Left At Armory

National Guard members at Yankee Division armories throughout Eastern Massachusetts are joining in this year with Radio Station WCOP and ABCD [Action for Boston Community Development] to collect Christmas toys for disadvantaged youngsters.

The 26th Yankee Division has made its armories available for the drive to help make Christmas happier for young inner-city children. Some 27 National Guard Armories have been designated by Brig. General Nicholas J. DeTorto to receive toy donations from local residents.

The Quincy Armory at 1000 Hancock St., is open daily through Dec. 21 for the donation of toys for the drive.

"The annual contribution of time and effort by the Yankee Division and WCOP helps make a joyful Christmas for thousands of disadvantaged kids in Boston's poor neighborhoods," Robert M. Coard, ABCD Executive Director said. "This year we are asking local residents to make that little extra effort to add an additional toy to their Christmas shopping list, and drop it off at WCOP or their local Yankee Division National Guard Armory for ABCD to distribute to the kids at Christmas."

Coard said that the drive, now in its sixth season, has grown in size and popularity since its inception in 1969. "Last year, more than 2,000 toys were donated by WCOP listeners - that's a great way to bring some happiness to low-income kids and their families during the Christmas season."

Frank Younie On Mediterranean Duty

Navy Engineman Third Class Frank S. Younie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Younie of 84 Truner St., Houghs Neck, has deployed to the Mediterranean aboard the fleet oiler USS Pawcatuck, for extended operations with units of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

During the cruise, the Pawcatuck will provide a wide range of services to fleet units, including mail, movies, repair parts, consumables and the fuel necessary to maintain combat ready forces at sea.

Between at-sea operations, Younie will have the opportunity to visit several cities along the Mediterranean coast.

The Pawcatuck is scheduled to return to its homeport at Mayport, Fla., next summer.

A 1971 graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical High School, Younie joined the Navy in June 1971.

YOUNG HERO - Robert Flynn, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Flynn of 118 Highland Ave., Wollaston, was cited by Mayor Walter Hannon and the City Council for "exhibiting maturity far beyond his years" in alerting his mother of a fire in a neighbor's playroom. Through his quick thinking and action, two youngsters and a 15-year old babysitter were rescued from the home. Flanking Robert, as he tries out Mayor's chair are, from left, Fir Chief Edward Barry, Mrs. Helen Flynn and Mayor Hannon.

3 Receive $2,000 In Mayor's Scholarships

Mayor Walter J. Hannon announces the recipients of a Mayor's Scholarship for Quincy students in graduate study in the Arts and Sciences.

They are:
Mary Anne DelCupolo, 62 Kemper St., at Georgetown University School of Dentistry, $1,000; Elizabeth MacDonald, 30 Brockton Ave., at Northeastern University, $500, and Margaret Kennally, 33 Babcock St., at Boston College, $500.

A Mayor's Scholarship of $1,000 is given each year to Quincy residents who are entering or presently in full time graduate work in the Arts and Sciences. Recipients named are for 1973-74.

The funding for the scholarship was made available to the Mayor by the Sons of Italy, Quincy Lodge 1295.

It is the intention of the Mayor that this money, which will be donated annually by the Sons of Italy, be used to establish a scholarship for graduate students.

"As a student progresses in pursuit of higher education," Mayor Hannon said, "the costs of schooling becomes more prohibitive and the financial burden much greater."

"It is the generosity of organizations like the Sons of Italy which enable these students to reach definite goals in life and make positive contributions to the community," he added.

Members of the selection committee are Mayor Hannon, City Councillor Dennis Harrington, John Fantuccio of the Sons of Italy, and Richard Haines, Guidance Counselor, Quincy Public Schools.

Enough For Sirica

National Christmas Tree Outdraws Watergate

By PAUL HAROLD
Quincy Sun Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The last act in the Watergate drama is being played out this week in Washington, as the trial against the last five Watergate defendants (Mitchell, Ehrlicman, Haldeman, Mardian and Parkinson) is wrapping up.

In one of the least pretentious buildings in Washington (Federal District Court), the most significant proceeding in recent times has been conducted. The courtroom itself is one of a dozen in the building, and is only about the size of the main court room in Quincy District Court. The case was first heard by Judge John Sirica, and despite technical and space problems, here it has stayed. (He's the boss.)

The only thing that distinguishes Sirica's court from the others along the second floor corridor is the hundred or so people "camped out" in front of the entrance. Some of those waiting to get inside literally did camp out, with sleeping bags and the works. They spent the night before outside the building in order to be first in line when the courthouse doors were opened at 8 a.m.

The number of "campers," however, has dropped from a thousand in the first few days to less than 100 in recent weeks. The trial is no longer drawing the crowds, and tourists last week were more interested in seeing the Congress and the National Christmas Tree than the proceedings in Judge Sirica's court.

While you might have to camp out to get into the morning session, this reporter was able to get into last Wednesday's afternoon session after only waiting in line for an hour. (I was number 29 of the 30 admitted - the other 50 people never got in.)

After securing a pass and signing the register, each spectator was searched and put through a metal detector, similar to those in use at airports.

Most of those attending the afternoon session were lawyers and students.

The other 30 seats in the courtroom were occupied by members of the press and TV corps. Four TV artists furiously scratched out sketches to be readied for the five o'clock news. Meanwhile, the newsmen huddled in groups and tried to figure out among themselves what had happened that day and what the headline story should be on the evening news and the morning editions.

Unlike the quick moving trials on Perry Mason, the proceedings at the Watergate trial were relatively slow moving and exact. The arguments by Richard Ben-Veniste were piercing and the cross-exam of Jill Volner devastating, but hardly the stuff TV dramas are made of. Yet, unlike TV dramas, this trial was for real, and the cast of characters were from the White House, not Elm City.

Wednesday's session involved the cross-examination of the last defendant, Kenneth Parkinson. He served as counsel for CREEP (the Committee to Re-elect the President) and was charged with conspiracy and obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up.

The basis of Parkinson's defense was, that although he was told the true story of the break-in, he discounted it and supported the version of former Attorney General John Mitchell, also a defendant in this case.

Jill Volner, the prosecutor, fired questions at machine gun pace at Parkinson, at times not even giving him chance to answer one question before another was fired.

It was hard to judge the jury's reaction to this performance, if they reacted at all, at this point. But considering the fact that the jury was made up of 10 women (two men), it was good strategy on the part of the government to finish up this stage of the trial with a bright, young woman attorney.

Everyone, in the courtroom knew they were witnessing history in the making, but Judge Sirica indicated that he'd had about enough history. At various times he would urge the lawyers to "hurry it up," "wind it up," and "not to make a mountain out of a molehill."

After almost three months of trial, testimony of 80 witnesses and 12,000 pages of testimony, it was obvious that just about everyone involved had had enough. Everyone was going home for Christmas and everyone was glad. The jury will return after a holiday break (under the supervision of U.S. marshals) to decide the case.

A number of reporters carried the Watergate book ("The President's Men") and had the lawyers and defendants, judge and other newsmen autograph the front as a souvenir of the hundreds of hours they spent together, on the case that will and has, changed the face of American politics.

Grace Saphir Twirling Bonnet For Toss Into Mayor's Rings

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy's 1975 mayoralty field seems to be getting crowded though no one yet has officially announced anything.

Latest confiding to friends that she will run again is Grace Saphir who joined a few people around town in 1973 when she polled 10,416 votes against incumbent Walter Hannon's 15,452.

That despite the fact that: [a] she was making her political debut as a candidate [b] has a name that was not well known [c] had a politically amateurish organization compared to Hannon's [d] had little money to spend.

When it was all over there were a lot of surprised people and one or two political figures kicking themselves for not getting into the race. They figured if she could come up with that many votes they might have won.

Some political observers feel that she got most of the anti-Hannon votes in town. But others think she also got a lot of votes on her own and that a better known candidate could have won it.

One reportedly wishing he had gotten into the race was Councillor Joseph LaRaia who as reported here, is telling people he's definitely going to run in '75.

And as also reported here, Rep. William Delahunt is now organizing his top campaign aides with plans to officially announce his candidacy in the early spring-March or April.

Still a possible candidate is Senator-Council President Arthur Tobin.

Grace must be quite serious about running again. Beginning to show up over the weekend as auto bumper sticker were these five words: "QUINCY NEEDS A LITTLE Grace."

Politically speaking, 1975 is shaping up as a real hot year.

A DEFINITE CONTENDER for the Ward 2 Council seat once incumbent Clifford Marshall, Norfolk County Sheriff-elect, vacates it, is Atty. Thomas Williams. He's ready to campaign right now.

Another likely candidate is School Committeeman Daniel Raymond who now lives in Quincy Point. Raymond is "thinking" about it. But he also has his eye on a council at-large seat as things apparently will open up there.

QUINCY'S MACHINE GUN story made it across the country via TV but the wire services gave it a run around the world. It made the London papers and—get this—even Brazil, South America.

CONGRESSMAN James Burke is now No. 2 man on the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee. He moved up when Al Ullman of Oregon took over as chairman, replacing Wilbur Mills who, you might say, was stripped of his powers. Incidentally, Adams Shore's Paul Harold, back from a recent trip to Washington, sees Ullman and Quincy Atty. Peter Macdonald as strong look-alikes.

IT'S A VERY Merry Christmas for the Heleotis family of West Quincy. You no doubt remember Phil Heleotis who at age 20 suffered a broken neck in July, 1973 in a diving accident in a swimming pool, leaving him paralyzed from the waist down. He is confined to a wheel chair.

A drive spearheaded by Mrs. Eleanor Woodward and County Commissioner George McDonald raised $11,000 to help him in his rehabilitation.

Well, Mrs. Heleotis pens the following:

"Your paper and everyone else was so good to us, we thought they would be pleased to know that Philip has been accepted to start college on Jan. 13 at the University of Mass., Boston Harbor Campus.

"At this time he will also be going to live at a Boston University dormitory in the Boston Center for Independent Living. This is a brand new concept being started by Mass. Rehabilitation to help the handicapped achieve independence. Philip is one of the first to be selected to go there. It's nice to know he doesn't have to sit at home with no goals...We thought people might like to know about this with Christmas coming. We still have a lot to be thankful for and look forward to. Things always get better and this is a great thrill for all us. Thank you for everything."

OLD FRIEND Fr. Jerome Doyle, formerly of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, writes to say he likes his new assignment at St. Monica's Rectory in Methuen and wants to wish everyone a Merry Christmas.

Fr. Doyle, who wrote a few theater reviews for The Sun and has a way with words closes: "Farewell to ye all again, I say, till we meet at the corner of Boylston and Tremont on the last day. Keep warm and nourished."

Merry Christmas.

HUTCHINSON OIL CO. of QUINCY, INC.

261 Quincy Ave., Quincy, 472-5930

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. This first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going, each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a Manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round about them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

Harold Supports Democrats Strong Action

Editor, Quincy Sun:

As a member of the Massachusetts delegation to the recent Democratic Mid-term Convention, I supported the replacement of the mandatory quotas with a strong "affirmative action" provision, because I felt that the party needed a degree of flexibility if it is to appeal to a national electorate.

Basically, the "affirmative action" provision will require the party to encourage the participation of groups traditionally under-represented in the party leadership - young people, women and minorities. The burden will be on the state party to prove it sought to include these groups, in delegate selection, but will not set quotas for these groups.

In the aftermath of the 1968 convention I had originally supported mandatory quotas because the party was becoming the private domain of professional politicians and was not responsive to the people. However, like many well-intended reforms, the quota system went too far - it was unfair and divisive, it shunted aside too many of those who had devoted their lives to the party, and it proved disastrous in the 1972 election.

I'm confident that the "affirmative action" provision will be a compromise which will include those who have been left out of power and not exclude those who have worked hard in politics. At the same time, it should not be viewed as a retreat from the party's 1968 commitment to full participation, but rather re-instatement of that principle in a workable and more realistic rule.

The success of the two-party system depends on the ability of both parties to compete in the middle ground of American political thought. This compromise will be good not only for the Democratic party but for the American political system as well.

Paul D. Harold

A 'Thank You' From Norfolk-Newton Lung Assn.

Editor, Quincy Sun:

In behalf of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, the Christmas Seal Agency, I would like to thank you for your generous coverage of our Christmas Seal float in the Quincy Parade on Dec. 1.

Our thanks, also, to the many local merchants who donated materials to make our float a grand prize winner.

However, a special and most important kudo must go to Mr. Theodore Ek and his Environmental Design class at Braintree High School, who designed and built the float. Their ingenuity and enthusiasm helped to make our entry a truly beautiful and thought-out work of art. Without their help, it couldn't have been done.

Dr. Marjorie A. C. Young
President, Norfolk County-Newton Lung Assn.

John Quincy Adams Ring, Pendant Reproductions

Reproductions of the John Quincy Adams Signet Ring for men and a pendant for women are now available through the sponsorship of Quincy Heritage and the United First Parish Church.

The ring is inscribed with a picture of a cock and the word "Watch". President John Quincy Adams had the ring designed in London.

In the Bible, Jesus used the cock as a monitor to call to duty the disciple who had denied him, to pray as well as to watch. The ring therefore reflects John Quincy Adams' utter devotion to duty.

The ring in fact inspired Adams to write a sonnet which he sent to his son George. The final lines of the sonnet read: "Oh, while from morn to morn I hear thy strain, Let the shrill summons call me not in vain With fervor from on high to Watch and Pray."

Both the ring and pendant bear the Quincy Heritage logo, authenticating them as official commemorative items. Both are available in sterling silver and in gold.

Produced by BGW Associates of North Attleboro, sample rings and pendants are now on display at Quincy Heritage. Arrival of sized rings and women's pendants takes about one week.

A 50 per cent deposit is required for the rings at the time of ordering and sizing.

Profits from sales will be used for a project mutually agreed upon by both Quincy Heritage and United First Parish Church. The project will benefit the city of Quincy.

Over 500 Wollaston Residents Sign Obscenity Petitions

More than 1,000 Wollaston residents have signed an obscenity petition triggered by a recent police raid on Adult Bookstore, 953 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Councillor Warren Powers initiated and drafted the petition which is designed to indicate community standards for the Jan. 17 trial of bookstore owner Robert H. Claffin of Manomet. He was charged Nov. 27 with possession and dissemination of obscene matter, including magazines, films and sexual devices and pleaded innocent.

The petitions, circulating in the Wollaston area for the past two weeks, state what the signers consider as "repulsive and unacceptable" sexual material and behavior.

Co-sponsoring the drive is the St. Ann's Parish Council, led by Msgr. James Scally.

The obscenity petition applies to printed material, visual material, live performances and sound recordings and is not limited to books, pamphlets, magazines, movies, plays and dancing, said Powers.

The new obscenity law, drafted and passed this year by the state legislature, defines obscenity as "patently offensive, taking into consideration the contemporary standards of the community." Powers hopes the petition drive will establish those contemporary standards for the Quincy community.

Emphasizing the need for a cross-section of petition signers, Powers said additional petitions will be printed and circulated to other sections of the city.

"We want to join in a co-operative effort with all other parishes and concerned citizens in Quincy to get petitions circulated and to give the court an indication of the community standard on obscenity in Quincy," Powers said.

St. Ann's School Students Make Gifts For Nursing Home Patients

Christmas is a time for sharing.

Carrying out that spirit of Christmas, fourth through eighth graders at St. Ann's School, Wollaston, visited six nursing homes and the Quincy City Hospital during the week of Dec. 16-20.

Fourth, fifth and sixth graders worked with their teachers, making Christmas gifts and decorations to be brought to the patients. Then, part of the fourth grade class visited the Children's Ward of the hospital bringing their gifts and sharing themselves with the youngsters hospitalized during the Christmas season.

Part of the sixth grade class made gifts and decorations to bring to the Elmwood Nursing Home, while other sixth graders delivered the gifts and performed a selection of Christmas carols for the patients.

Seventh and eighth graders at the school made personal visits to Merrymount Manor Nursing Home, John Adams Nursing Home, Oceanside Nursing Home and Presidential Nursing Home. Students were prepared for the visit and were asked to share not only their gifts and decorations but themselves with the older citizens.

Co-ordinating the entire service project was Sr. Kathleen Hagerty, religious education co-ordinator at the School. Sister hopes to continue the program of sharing as the year progresses.

Clara Yeomans Resigns As Conservation Commission Voting Member

Clara Yeomans, Executive Secretary of the Quincy Conservation Commission, has submitted her resignation as a voting member of the Commission to Mayor Hannon.

She will, however, retain her position as Executive Secretary. In a letter to Hannon, Mrs.

Yeomans said she was resigning, effective immediately, to establish a clearer line of responsibility between the position of Executive Secretary and voting member.

The decision to separate the positions was reached after discussions by the Mayor and City Council, and has the approval of the Conservation Commission.

Mrs. Yeomans has served as Executive Secretary and voting member since 1965 when the Commission was first established.

Mayor Hannon will announce shortly his selection to the position of voting member.

One Year Career Program At Quincy Junior

A new program designed to emphasize and supplement previously acquired skills is now being instituted at Quincy Junior College.

To meet the needs for direct access to the career world the college is offering a series of one year programs in the fields of executive secretary, medical secretary, and pre-nursing.

Virginia Waller, Chairman of the Secretarial Program, said the executive secretary program offers to those who already possess secretarial skills a unique opportunity to increase their proficiency in management and office machines through a concentrated series of courses including: secretarial procedures, executive dictation and transcription, office machines and records management, and business communications.

The medical secretary studies are designed for those who desire secretarial positions in the medical profession by familiarizing one with medical procedures and terminology. Those specialized series of courses include: anatomy, and physiology, typing, medical terminology, office machines and records management, secretarial procedures, and medical transcription. A certificate will be awarded on the completion of either of these two secretarial programs.

The pre-nursing program is designed for adults and recent graduates with a limited background and no experience. Studies include composition and speech, anatomy and physiology, nursing chemistry, mathematics, child psychology, and sociology.

Gordon MacPhee Assigned To Quincy Heritage

City Director of Tourism Gordon MacPhee has been assigned by Mayor Walter J. Hannan to Quincy Heritage, the organization planning the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the nation and the 350th anniversary of the founding of Mt. Wollaston.

Mayor Hannan called the move "a first step" towards the co-ordination of public relations in all city departments. "We want to keep the public informed of all city services and programs," said the Mayor.

MacPhee's task will still be to attract the tourist dollar to Quincy through promotional campaigns with travel magazines and agencies throughout the country.

"Just 12 people a day visiting Quincy result in an additional $100,000 being spent in Quincy businesses," said Mayor Hannan.
"As Quincy Heritage already has as its major function the promotion of the city to bring more tourist dollars here, the expansion of their role to include all city departments is a natural outgrowth of what they are doing," he added.

Delahunt Bill Would Reduce Unwanted Pregnancies, Abortions

Rep. William Delahunt is co-sponsoring a bill designed to reduce the frequency of unwanted pregnancies and abortions.

The bill provides for the distribution of a family planning information packet to marriage license applicants.

The packet would include the addresses of family planning facilities and agencies, information on contraception and a manual on responsible parenthood relating to personal, medical and social concerns.

Delahunt believes the passage of the bill will help reduce the number of abortions currently performed in the state. He said he feels a substantial proportion of those abortions is due to young married couples' ignorance of safe, effective methods of birth control.

Delahunt and the other sponsors of the bill say they realize information alone will not eliminate unwanted pregnancies.

Yet they feel if only one unwanted pregnancy is avoided, the legislation will be worthwhile.

The bill's sponsors noted that unwanted pregnancies can trigger social and individual problems such as abortion, adoption, family discord and delinquency, all of which may require expensive government services.

The Mass. Department of Public Health currently distributes lists of family planning clinics and agencies to libraries, local chapters of the League of Women Voters and local offices of the Department of Public Health. The sponsors feel their bill is needed to reach directly couples who would otherwise be missed.

Quincy, North Track Teams In Impressive Bows

The Quincy and North Quincy winter track teams made successful bows into the Suburban League Friday as the Presidents, under new coach Peter Gallagher, romped over Cambridge Latin, 56-30, and North Quincy annihilated Weymouth North, 64-22, at Newton North where all league meets are run.

There were several bright spots in Quincy's win, one being Dave Rafferty's mile win in the good time of 5:05.6. Quincy swept the event, another big surprise, with Kevin O'Brien second and Pat Vallier third.

John Happanen won the 1000 in 2:45.1 with Stan Park second, Leo Baron won the high jump with Dennis McCarthy, jumping for the first time, third; Harry Williams won the 300 in 37.8 seconds, the brightest spot in the President's picture.

Bob Thorne won the two-mile in 10:57.4, a fine performance, with McCarthy second; Ed Coletta won the hurdles, an unexpected feat as this was supposed to be by far the weakest event, and Steve Franklin was third; Alan Vahon won the 50-yard dash in six seconds but pulled a muscle, and Ed Campbell was third; Bob Varrasso was second and Russ Hodgkins was third, and John Ross and freshman John Saville were 2-3 in the 600.

Although Quincy's relay team was disqualified, Gallagher was delighted with the performances of Williams, O'Brien, Park and Happanen.

"Cambridge Latin is a weak team but I think we will do better than I had expected," Gallagher said. "Some of the boys surprised me with fine performances."

Gallagher is assisted by Joe Catalano, a former Quincy trackman who runs for Boston State and is a student teacher at Atlantic-North.

Lou Tozzi's North team had opened earlier in the week with a 56-30 win over East Boston in a non-league meet.

Paul Doherty was a triple winner winning the 300 and shot put and running on the winning relay team. Brian Doherty tied a school record with a winning time of 5.8 seconds in the dash. Underclassmen scored 33 of the Raider's points.

Other North winners were John Mackey, 600; Mark Canavan, 1000; Ken O'Brien, mile; Mary Levenson, two-mile, and the relay team of Paul Doherty, Jerry McKenzie, Mackey and Jack Hatfield.

Mackey, Canavan and Paul Doherty were elected tri-captains before the meet.

Friday Quincy faces Brookline and North meets Newton North at 10 a.m.

Quincy's Hopes Ride On 4 Returnees

By TOM SULLIVAN

Joe Amoroso is starting his second year as Quincy's varsity basketball coach and his hopes are high after missing the state tournament by just one game last season.

The Presidents, following a thrilling last minute 95-93 win over a strong Alumni team last Friday, opened their first Suburban League season Monday at Cambridge Latin and Thursday will make their home bow against Waltham. Saturday night Quincy will be home to Weymouth North.

Last year the Presidents, with no returning varsity players and made up of Amoroso's junior varsity players of the previous season, finished with an overall 11-7 record (12-6 would have qualified them for the tournament) and an 8-6 Greater Boston League record.

This year Joe is building his team around his co-captains and only returning starters, 6-5 Bill Dacey and 5-9 Don Connors.

The only other varsity returnees are 6-3 John Riggs and 5-8 DomVenturelli, who were brought up from the junior varsity at mid-season.

Amoroso has a blend of height, speed, good shooting and youth and he is pleased with his team's progress following their scrimmages with Dorchester, Duffee and Jamaica Plain.

"I have only five seniors on the 12-man squad and one sophomore is certain to start," Amoroso said. "Another is fighting for a starting position. There are three sophomores and four juniors."

The Quincy coach has just about settled on four starters, Connors and Dacey at guard, 6-5 sophomore Jack Uhlar at center and Riggs at guard. Fighting for the fifth starting berth are 6-4 Bill Breen, 6-1 sophomore Mike Lamie and 6-1 Mike MacKenzie.

Rounding out the squad are Venturelli, 5-9 Steve Connolly, 6-3 Bob Dacey, 6-2 Chuck McDermott and 6-foot Lyle Morrison.

"Lamie, a fine looking sophomore, is a good example of the spirit and determination of these boys," Amoroso explained. "Last year he played at Point Junior High and was not an especially outstanding player. But he worked during the summer with Paul Beston, one of the many men responsible for the success of our basketball program here, and Beston told me Lamie was out on the court for 10 hours a day. When he reported I couldn't believe the progress he had made and he is now fighting for a starting job. He showed it can be done and he deserves a lot of credit."

"I feel we have an ideal program here and the boys play all-year around," Joe said. "They played together in spring, summer and fall leagues. First of all, I must mention my junior varsity coach, Mike Sanuki, who does a fine job. Beston directs a pre-primary program during the spring and summer, coaches a team in the spring and summer leagues and gives boys a lot of individual attention on the playgrounds.

"Others who have played key roles in our success are Paul Fitzpatrick, coach at the Mass. School of Pharmacy; John Lavery, a former Quincy athlete who now teaches at the Furnace Brook School and is my head scout; Doug MacFarland, another former Quincy athlete who teaches physical education in the Quincy system and is another of my scouts; Bob Uhlar, a former Quincy High and Junior College player, who coaches in the spring and summer leagues, and Rich DeCristofaro, another former Quincy player who now teaches at the Pollard Elementary School. All these people have given our program a genuine boost and they are very dedicated."

Pancake, Whizzer, Etc .

North's First Wrestling Team Opens Season

Pancake, whizzer, cradle, switch.

How do these terms apply to schoolboy sports?

They are wrestling holds and are terms used by Coach Arthur Fallon of North Quincy's first wrestling team, which opened its Suburban League season today (Tuesday) and goes to Brockton on Jan. 7.

Other holds used by Fallon and other wrestling coaches are Kelley, grapevine, chicken wing, guillotine, cross face and fireman's carry.

These are colorful terms and Fallon hopes his grapplers will use them with some success as they face a tremendous challenge in the strong Suburban League, in which most schools have had wrestling for many years.

"The high school program, varsity and junior varsity, is a continuation of the junior high program which has been going for three years," Fallon said.

"Wrestling offers an opportunity for those boys who feel they are too small for a contact sport or are at a disadvantage because of their weight. Eight of the 12 weight divisions are under 150 pounds."

The new North coach explained that most of the Suburban League teams are vastly experienced and Brockton, North's Jan. 7 opponent, last year was runnerup in the state tournament.

"Our squad is young with five seniors, 11 juniors and 11 sophomores," he pointed out. "Our most experienced wrestlers are eight sophomores who wrestled for Atlantic or Central Junior High last year."

Several football players are on the squad and the wrestlers and their classes are as follows:

98 pounds—Brian Donaghue and Dan McGuigan; 105 pounds—Arthur Dorgan and Eddie Coutts; 112—John Minukas; 119—Brian Croke and Nathan Belofsky; 126—Leo

Tobin and Dan Hurley; 132—Joe Gori, Mike Braun and Steve

The Quincy basketball team hosts Waltham in a Suburban League game and North goes to Newton North Thursday night. Saturday night Quincy is home to Weymouth North and North Quincy goes to Waltham and next Monday the Presidents and Raiders clash at the North gym.

The Quincy hockey team will play Weymouth South at 5 p.m. and North will meet Brookline at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Quincy Youth Arena. On Thursday, Jan. 2, Quincy will play Weymouth North at 1 p.m. and North

The Quincy track team meets Brookline and North Quincy takes on Newton North Friday at 10 a.m. at Newton North.

Next Tuesday it will be Quincy vs. Weymouth South and North vs. Rindge Tech at 10 a.m. at the same site.

Quincy's wrestling team goes to Randolph for a non-league meet next Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Junior High Wrestling Season Underway Jan. 14

The Quincy Junior High wrestling season gets underway on Jan. 14 and Sterling, with a number of returning medal winners from last year's city champions, again looms as a genuine threat.

These medal winners include

Donald Heath, Danny Madden, George Buch and Lenny Picot.

Both Broad Meadows and Point have sizeable groups of experienced ninth graders. Those at BM are led by Frank Dragone, silver medalist in last year's city meet.

Perennially strong

Atlantic-North, second best team in the city last year, and well-coached Central round out what appears to be a well-balanced field priming to compete for this year's city title.

The coaches are Steve Joyce at Sterling, Gerry Mulvey at Point, Robert Schiess at Central, John Bogan at Broad Meadows and Brooks Maloof at Atlantic-North.

In the Jan. 14 opener Atlantic-North will be at Central and Sterling at Point.

In the second period Messina had his third goal, Morella his second and Sean Jago one. Hayes, Jago and Morella had assists.

In the final period Messina made it four goals for the day and Hayes and John Fowles assisted.

Quincy, with a new coach in John Perkins, will play Weymouth South Thursday at 1:30 p.m. and Brockton on Jan. 2 at 9 a.m.

● St. Ann's Hockey

Crestview defeated Bike 'n Blade, 5-3, in the Bantam division of St. Ann's Youth Hockey League last week at Shea Rink.

Brian Schmitt and Eric Bergstrom had two goals apiece for Crestview and Paul Howe the other goal. Bergstrom, Kev O'Connell and Howe had assists. For Bike 'n Blade Jim Doherty, Steve Olson and Ed Novack had the goals and Greg Trenholm, Roger Belanger, Steve Olson and Mark Barry assists.

Blackwood Pharmacy defeated Plaza Olds, 6-1. Jack O'Leary and Steve Cronin each scored twice and George Bourikas and Billy Cyr once apiece. Dom Falcetta, Tom Burke, Tom Nazzaro, Joe Carr and Cronin had assists. Dennis Djerf scored for Plaza with an assist for Karl Olson.

Chuck Wagon and North Quincy K. of C. played to a 2-2 tie. Mark Millane and Wayne Smith had the Chuck Wagon goals, both unassisted. Chris Clark and Brian Meehan scored for K. of C. with Bob Maloney and Bud Houlihan assisting.

In Pee Wee games Keohane's and Dunkin Donuts North Quincy tied, 1-1. John Keller scored for Keohane's with assists for Joe Cosgrove and Pete Clark. Paul Picarello scored for Donuts unassisted.

The Flyers edged the Bruins, 3-1, with Paul O'Sullivan scoring two unassisted goals and Steve Webb also scoring unassisted. Jay Hidalgo was in goal. Kyle Morton scored for the Bruins and Steve Plate assisted.

● Girl's Hockey

Team Quincy, Red Barons Win

Mary Ellen had two goals and an assist. Other Team Quincy goals were scored by Mary Ann McCarthy and Mary Beth Duff with assists for Marie McAuliffe and Joanne Troy. Sue Rugg, Peggy Burchill and Terry Flynn scored for Tiffany with Mary Wiedemann having two assists and Flynn, Nancy Ball and Joanne Ruane one apiece.

The Red Barons remained in first place with a 6-3 win over Vissa.

Eileen Marr had two Baron goals and Lisa Norling, Leslie Bishop, Michele Schaefer and Joanne Lally one each. Marie McAuliffe and Tricia Sullivan each had two assists and Norling, Whittemore, Marr and Schaefer one apiece. Maureen Santry scored twice and Linda Fitzgerald once for Vissa. Santry, Fitzgerald and Shawn O'Leary had assists.

Thursday night Team Quincy will face Vissa at 6:30 and Tiffany will meet Red Barons at 7:30 at the Youth Arena.

Hayes New Coach

QJC Ice Squad Small But Hopes High

Ken Hayes, who coached the Quincy junior high-freshman hockey team the past few years, has taken over as Quincy Junior College coach and, despite a small squad of only 13 players, has high hopes for a successful season.

QJC opened on a bright note with an easy 8-2 win over Bristol Community College but found Rhode Island Junior College, last year's junior college champion, too much and bowed, 9-3.

Thursday at 9:45 p.m. the Collegejans will play Suffolk University at Boston College, then will be idle until Jan. 9 when they play at Massasoit.

"We have no depth at all and this will hurt us," Hayes, a former North Quincy High goalie, said. "The 13 boys we have are really dedicated and work very hard, but we could use another line and another defenseman. The other clubs have much more depth and are able to wear us down."

"We scrimmaged Quincy High and skated with them for a period but with their depth and speed they wore us down. Every one of our players gives 100 percent at all times and are doing a good job."

Jim Cooney from Abp. Williams is the playmaker on the first line with Lou Maggio from Williams and Jerry McElenny from North Quincy. The number one defense pair are Joe Rossner, a heavy hitter from Weymouth North, and Mike Lake, also from Weymouth North.

In goal Doug Kemp from Quincy has played well.

The second line has Phil Smith from Braintree centering for two great digging wings, Sean Ring from Weymouth North and Ed Guppy from North Quincy. The number three defenseman is Steve Arnold from Quincy.

Other forwards are Bob Mitchell from North Quincy and Phil McCue from Weymouth South. The backup goalie is John Toomey from Weymouth South.

In the 8-2 win over Bristol Cooney had three goals and two assists. Smith also had the hat trick and McElenny had the other two goals. McElenny and Cooney had two assists apiece and Guppy and Arnold one each. Kemp was outstanding in goal. Rossner was out for the second and third periods with an injury and Hayes had to go with two defensemen. He had to do some juggling and the players responded well.

Against Rhode Island's powerhouse McElenny had two goals and Smith one. Cooney had two assists and Maggio, Ring and Guppy one each.

"They were just too much for us and their five goals in the first period were too much to overcome," Hayes said. "This got us off our game plan and I had to shift personnel around to get an attack going. Both goalies played well and Kemp made some great saves."

—TOM SULLIVAN

Sheets Urges Hearings On Flood Map

Councillor James A. Sheets, chairman of the subcommittee on flood plain zoning, has recommended the holding of public hearings in every city ward to discuss flood map changes affecting city residents.

Richard Meade of the department of Planning and Community Development, said flood maps prepared by the Army Corps of Engineers for the Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD] include areas which have not been plagued by flooding problems in the past.

He said the city would therefore submit a series of recommendations, requesting these areas be removed from a "special hazard zone" if elevations and other data warrant the change.

This change in the flood map zoning might impose an additional expense on a property owner to purchase flood plain insurance.

The Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 has greatly expanded the available limits of coverage for flood insurance, but has imposed two new requirements on both property owners and individual communities, said Meade.

Quincy property owners must purchase flood insurance to be eligible for new or additional federal or federally-related financial assistance for any buildings located in areas identified by HUD as having special flood hazards. Also, every community must enter the flood insurance program by July 1, 1975.

Quincy has proposed a flood ordinance which stipulates that land subject to periodic or seasonal flooding shall not be used for any purpose or in any way as to endanger the health or safety of the community. The ordinance also assures adequate floodwater storage⁷ areas to protect residences against the hazards of flooding.

Tax Refund Checks Await 13 Residents

Thirteen Quincy residents have not claimed their federal tax refund checks mailed in 1974 and returned to the Internal Revenue Service marked "undeliverable".

Those residents are:
Irene Beaudoin, Kenneth M. Boisvert, Eric Devey, John H. and Susan A. Harlan, John H. King, Edward R. Mullen, Sharon

Weeks, Leonard Widener, David Hagan, deceased; Eva I. Savage, deceased; Joseph Simpson, Willie S. and Aylvia D. Neal, and Joyce E. Randall.

John E. Foristall, IRS district director for Boston, said:

"It is not necessary to consult or engage the services of a 'locating' or 'searching' service or anyone else to obtain information with respect to a check. Simply contact the nearest office of the IRS and establish your identity and right to receive the check."

He noted, too, there are a number of unclaimed refunds for prior tax years. Persons believing they are due such refunds should contact the IRS giving full information necessary to establish their claim.

City Budget Sessions To Start Thursday

Budget sessions for the smaller city departments will begin the day after Christmas.

A total of 16 department heads are scheduled for 15-20 minute meetings with Mayor Walter J. Hannon and William Grindlay, Thursday to discuss budget proposals for fiscal year 1975-1976.

These departments are: City Clerk, Elections and Registration, Workman's Compensation, Licensing Board, Vital Statistics, Personnel, Civil Service, Purchasing, Wire Inspection, Weights and Measures, Plumbing Inspection, Assessors, Planning, Programming and Development, Law Department, Council on Aging and Civil Defense.

These meetings will take a full day to complete.

Two department heads are scheduled to meet with Hannon and Grindlay Friday: the Health Department and Veterans' Services.

Both meetings will take place in the morning.

The remaining city departments will be scheduled for budget hearings beginning in January. Grindlay said all department budget hearings will be completed by the end of January.

Budget requests must be submitted to the City Council by Feb. 28, Grindlay noted. No estimates are available at this time.

Cost Cuts, Police Protection, Unemployment Hannon Mid-Term Address Highlights

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will disclose an economic program designed to cut supply and equipment costs of city government during his Jan. 6 mid-term address.

The public is invited to attend the mid-term ceremonies which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

The Mayor will also outline two programs in the area of police protection, one designed to bring police closer to the citizens, the other formulated to increase citizen participation in Police Department programs.

Increasing unemployment in Quincy will be another of the Mayor's topics. He plans to outline steps which the city itself is taking to ease the stir of unemployment, emphasizing an expansion of efforts during the early months of 1975.

Hannon will also speak on the community's responsibility to youth in the area of education and he will highlight the city's educational goals.

The complex decision-making process of a mayor will be unraveled for the audience as well. Hannon will mention, too, the many services offered to Quincy citizens through departments like the Quincy Youth Commission and the Consumer Assistance Center.

Controversy, Unemployment, Shipyard Strike, 5 New Councillors, Cemetery Probe In Spotlight

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The year 1974 seemed to be filled with more than its share of debates and probes, battles and controversy.

The year, in fact, began with controversy when 10 nameless and faceless Quincy citizens, led by North Quincy Atty. Frank W. Cormack, threatened a conflict-of-interest suit against Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, questioning the legality of his receiving $3,000 for service on the Council while drawing a $16,000 yearly salary as head of the government department at Quincy Junior College.

Declining to take his oath of office "under a pall of legal harassment," Sheets himself took the issue to court, received a favorable decision and took his oath of office Feb. 11 - a full five-week delay.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon began his second term of office in January, after turning back the challenge of Mrs. Grace Saphir, a 57-year-old nurse and housewife, by a 3-2 margin.

In his inaugural address, Hannon pledged an attack on the unemployment problem in Quincy, committed his administration to projects similar to Kemper Insurance and the State Street South complex to add to the tax base and employ local people, advocated development of downtown Quincy, promised pursuit of federal funding for neighborhood improvement projects, and appealed to Quincy citizens to play a greater role in the improvement of their city.

A total of five new city councillors began their terms this year, marking the biggest political turnover in Quincy's history. New names were Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers and Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington. Ward 2 Councillor Clifford Marshall was the sole survivor of the six ward representatives on the old Council.

Arthur H. Tobin was re-elected as Council president. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy visited The Quincy Sun early in January and predicted an increase in shipbuilding contracts at Quincy's General Dynamics shipyard to meet the problems of the energy crisis.

He said the demand for natural gas, coal and other sources of energy would require added ships to transport the materials. He added, too, that expansion of shipyard activities would soften the impact of economic recession in the South Shore area.

The first month of the year was marred Jan. 19 by the mauling of five-year-old Tammy Stuart by one or two dogs in the Snug Harbor housing project. The disfiguring attack triggered a long-simmering dispute on the dangers of dogs in housing projects the resurrected Quincy's long-forgotten and ignored leash law.

Thousands of dollars were donated by sympathetic citizens to medical funds established to help finance Tammy's strapping operations. She faces plastic surgery in two years - surgery which will have to continue until she is 19.

The investigation of the Quincy Cemetery Department, begun in December 1973, continued into the new year with Council President Arthur H. Tobin and "Dean" Councillor John J. Quinn chairing an Oversight Committee. The probe began at the insistence of Councillor Joseph LaRaia following the resignation November, 1973 of former Cemetery Supt. Anthony Famigletti.

Famigletti's lawyer filed a $200,000 slander suit May 6 in Norfolk Superior Court, charging LaRaia with "slander with malice".

In October Special Investigator J. Blake Thaxter, assigned to the post by Dist. Atty. George G. Burke, completed his probe of the case and presented evidence before a Norfolk County grand jury. Famigletti was secretly indicted and pleaded innocent Oct. 22 to nine counts charges stemming from the alleged irregularities within the Cemetery Department.

Famigletti's lawyer filed 48 motions in response to the charges and said he may seek re-instatement and retroactive back pay for his client, back to when Famigletti was forced to resign his post last November.

A public hearing on the MAYOR WALTER HANNON delivered his second-term inaugural address Jan. 2, pledging to fight unemployment and calling for more tax revenue bearing projects such as State Street South and Kemper Insurance.

proposed 10-story height limit took place Feb. 25. Proponents of the move said it was necessary for safety and environmental reasons while opponents contended planned unit development provided "effective control" against high-rise construction. Planned unit development requires builders to obtain permission of the Planning Department and the City Council before construction.

During November three moderators were chosen to oversee a debate on the height limit issue - a debate between City Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Quincy citizens Association President Pasquale DiStefano.

Yet the proposed debate turned into a debate in itself when Tobin protested the ground rules and format of the debate.

The Quincy Sun conducted a random telephone survey Feb. 24, three days after the House Judiciary Committee released an advisory report rejecting the argument that a President is subject to impeachment only for indictable criminal offenses. The survey showed 31.4 percent favoring resignation, while, coincidentally, 31.4 per cent favored the completion of his

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Should pen pal be a guest?

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I have had a pen pal for four years. He has written once a week during that time. He is 22 and has just graduated from a university. We know each other well. In the last four years we have discussed, on paper, just about everything. At Christmas we sent small gifts and I have a picture of him. He does not live in this country.

Last week he wrote that he had been accepted at a university about 60 miles from my home. I want to invite him to stay with our family for a week. My mother is up in arms. She says that no 20-year-old daughter of hers is going to invite a 22-year-old man to stay in her home. What on earth could it harm if my friend stayed in the guest room? It would only be courteous to show him some American hospitality?

Pam

Dear Pam:

Since you really do not know this young man, all of you may be more comfortable if you secure hotel accommodations near your home. Then you can take him sight-seeing and invite him to your home for dinner. Once your parents learn a little more about him, they may feel more relaxed about the situation.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Why are parents such a problem? My mother and father think that they are really with it but nothing could be further from the truth. The biggest hurdle has been my dating. I am 17 and have never been allowed to go out with a boy. Can you believe this in 1974? I have always been reliable and had good grades. However, I am about to become sneaky if my parents don't let up. Any suggestions?

17 and Mad

Dear 17:

At 17 you are old enough to date, but I doubt that my word will have any effect on your mother and father. Do you have an aunt or someone close to your parents who could speak for you? Give this a try and let me know if it works.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Six months ago I entered a hospital. I had a nervous breakdown. At this point in my life, I felt I was worth nothing. Through the aid and counsel of a psychiatrist and with the support of my family, I am fully recovered. Still, one problem lingers. Most of my friends know where I was. A few of them have proven to be thoughtless clods. One wanted a detailed account of my illness. Another keeps insisting that if I am not careful, I will be back in the hospital.

How can people be so cold and cruel? Don't they realize that my recovery took a long time and that it continues to be painful when the past is dredged up? I know I should consider the source, but how can I stop this inquisition once and for all?

RLD

Dear RLD:

Why explain anything to these "friends"? Their curiosity and criticism is out of line. The next time one of these ladies decides to lecture, stop her immediately. Tell her this: "I am fine so please change the subject to something more interesting."

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Enjoy a relaxed, contented feeling, but don't miss out on job opportunities leading to advancement. Measure your words carefully — indiscreet remarks can "back-fire." Stay cool and curb temper, impatience.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Family or community pressure to be actively involved in projects that bore you should be accepted philosophically. All relationships are accented. Avoid hostile attitudes. Don't "make mountains out of mole hills."

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Keep your problems to yourself and don't try to solve some one else's either. Take the initiative to mend a "breaking" relationship. Career may bog down temporarily. Curb tendency toward extravagant buying.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Stay "on course" in living your own life. Curb impulse and temper, but don't compromise your true beliefs. Be aware of deception around you but not resentful or vindictive. Possibility of receiving an honor.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Career moves well, but you may feel an undercurrent of resentment about money. Curb any display of temperament, impulse or defiance. Attend to duty and routine — accept your responsibilities. Self-discipline is key.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Additional responsibility at work appears likely. This is fulfilling as well as pleasure and happiness through children and/or romance. A quiet, productive week when you will appreciate loved ones. Don't get moody.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — There could be a drain on money now. Resist temptation to purchase luxury items — follow the conservative line financially. Keep attention on the road while driving. Read the fine print before signing legal documents.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Home decoration or purchase is accented now: Possibility of a business trip or communication announcing success on a past literary project. Intuition is high — tap your subconscious. Past efforts "pay off" now.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Optimism increases, "hunches" are valuable, energy is high. Use care in transit by keeping your attention on the road. A friend helps you "brain storm" and bring ideas down to earth. Evaluate investments.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — "Work" is your theme this week. Good time to study some skill leading to "licensing." You are beginning an important life phase. Praise for your efforts will come to you. Not a period for playing.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Possibility of disappointment in romance due to different essential philosophies of life between you and another. Guard your savings — resist temptation to "do" for another, or indulge in extravagant gestures.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Try to ignore criticism from conservative, older relatives regarding your love life. Maintain your independence. Keep working on creative projects. Be honest and sincere and professional honors could come.

While the company was touring the country, Burghoff was spotted by television producer Gene Reynolds, who gave him a screen test. In turn, the test was seen by director Robert Altman, who was casting for "M-A-S-H."

Girdles And Safety

Would you believe that a lady's undergarments could constitute a driving safety hazard? This information comes from Britain which is often the source of much off-beat information. However, the problem would pertain to ladies anywhere in the world where garters and girdles are in vogue.

According to a survey conducted by British Leyland, a motor car manufacturer, the girdle is a great menace to driving because "it quickly becomes uncomfortable and results in squirming by the wearer behind the wheel."

The same survey added that garters were also dangerous because their pull tended to lift a woman's feet from the pedals and to overcome this she often term, 25.7 percent advocating impeachment and conviction and 11.4 per cent undecided.

"pushes against the pull of her garters and winds up going faster than she intends." The surveyors concluded that pantyhose were much safer.

A Sun survey taken six months later, following Nixon's resignation, showed 60.6 per cent of those polled in favor of prosecution of the former president. The tally was 20-13.

Billy DeWolfe, Quincy's "ambassador of good will" died March 5 and the city paid tribute to the famed dancer, comedian and actor in a simple service March 11 at the Wollaston Baptist Church. Rev. Blaine Taylor of Wesley Methodist Church, Worcester, eulogized the 67-year-old DeWolfe as a man who "gave joy and happiness and brought so much into the lives of so many."

The month was made sadder still with the death of Edward [Red] Lewis at the age of 68. Lewis was former city manager and executive secretary to two former mayors - James R. McIntyre and Amelio Della Chiesa.

McIntyre eulogized Lewis as a "conscientious...extremely affable man...truly interested in the total welfare of the city." The entire city mourned his death.

Everett Besse, past president of 1000 Southern Artery, died June 24 at the age of 48. Besse was a tax consultant for the Boston law firm of Ropes and Gray.

Charles Johnston, former labor leader at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard, died Aug. 11 at the age of 46. Johnston was a past president of Local 90, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America AFL-CIO. He was also past president of the Norfolk Labor Council and the director of the Office of Emergency Organization.

The unemployment rate in Quincy hit 10.57 per cent during the months of January and February, adding special urgency to March's Job Fair sponsored by the South Shore Council for Full Employment. According to figures compiled by the Office of Manpower Affairs, the unemployment rate in Quincy increased 4 per cent during three consecutive six-month periods.

Paul Ricca of the Office of Manpower Affairs estimated the unemployment rate exceeded 11 per cent at the fourth Job Fair held in November and attended by more than 3,000 Quincy-South Shore area job seekers.

March also marked the beginning of a 123-day strike of 1,800 production workers of Local 5 of the Shipbuilding Workers Union at General Dynamics. The strike began March 16 at midnight and ended July 18 in one of the longest, most costly work stoppages in the shipyard's history. The financial loss to General Dynamics, union members, and South Shore communities was estimated as "in the millions of dollars."

Negotiations were deadlocked over the company's request for "productions improvements" calling for the revision of work practices which resulted in idle time or standby time.

The three-year contract gave the workers of Local 5 a $1.48 per hour across-the-board pay raise over three years as well as other insurance, retirement, disability and vacation benefits.

One of the most debated issues in 1974 was the proposed building of a new North Quincy High School at the old Squantum Naval Air Station. Two public hearings were held during the year, one on April 22, drawing a crowd of 400, the other on Nov. 21, attracting a standing-room-only crowd of over 1,000 concerned opponents and proponents of the proposed school.

While both sides seem to agree that the present facility is outmoded, falling short of contemporary standards for high schools, they divide on the solution to the problem. Some favor the building of a new school while others point to renovations and additions as adequate solutions to North Quincy High School's problems.

One battle in 1974 was a carry-over from 1973 - the building of a proposed South Quincy MBTA Station. The question was at last put on the November ballots in the First Norfolk District following a court battle led by Robert Cerasoli, then-candidate for state representative in Norfolk County.

Cerasoli charged that the re-wording of the public policy question by the attorney general's office was "confusing and unclear."

Although he won a court hearing on a short order notice, he lost the final battle to have the First Norfolk District ballots reprinted.

Cerasoli then waged an education campaign informing residents of the change in wording and citizens voiced their opposition to the station at the polls in November.

Another controversy erupted in May when the City Council opposed Mayor Walter J. Hannon's plan to combine the collection of garbage in trash. Hannon said the move would save Quincy $280,000, yet the City Council passed a resolve opposing the combined collection, calling it a health hazard and a nuisance to residents of Wards 4 and 5 living near the dump site.

The Mayor, ignoring the city council resolve, ordered the implementation of the combined collection effective July 1. Legal action taken by the City Council proved ineffectual and the new collection operation began July 1.

The Adams Academy window-blocking furor erupted in September and ended a month later in a compromise.

The windows remained filled with cinder blocks to increase the interior wall space needed by the Quincy Historical Society to renovate the building as a museum-library-office facility. But a glass window facade will be erected to give the appearance of windows and to preserve the historic character of the building.

1974 was an election year, and politicians flocked to the Quincy Sun office.

Mrs. Robert Quinn, wife of then-Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn, visited The Quincy Sun office in January, campaigning unofficially for her husband's candidacy for governor.

There was a temporary lull in political visits until August, one month before the state primaries. Political hopefuls then streamed into The Sun office, eager to explain their priorities and positions to the voters.

Visiting the office in August were attorney general candidates Barry Hannon, Charles Cabot, Francis X. Bellotti, Edward O'Brien, William Cowin and George Sacco.

Also visiting that month was Mark Furcolo, Democratic candidate for state treasurer, challenging Robert Crane, never before opposed by a fellow Democrat.

Then-candidate for governor and now governor-elect Michael Dukakis also arrived in August. His running mate, Thomas P. O'Neill III visited in October while Kitty Dukakis - her leg in a cumbersome cast - visited The Sun a few short weeks before the final election.

Bellotti Keeps Word

Atty. Gen.-elect Francis X. Bellotti has put his actions where his campaign talks were — he's fulfilling his commitments.

We applaud the incoming attorney general for his decision to chop his office staff by a third and to require all of his assistants to be fulltime employees of the Commonwealth.

During the campaign, Bellotti's detractors charged that he would use the attorney general's office as a huge political boondoggle — that he would retain his $200,000-a-year private law practice and would reward political associates with lucrative part-time assistants positions.

Frank Bellotti's actions to date give the lie to such charges, and he has blazed a trail which others in state government would do well to follow.

Governor-elect Michael S. Dukakis, of course, also has pledged similar economies in the operation of state government — including cutting in half the size of the governor's staff. From all the evidence, the new chief executive is fully committed to the goal of eliminating wasteful manpower from state government.

In a state fed up with the traditional "politics as usual," which too often was our legacy following state elections, the Dukakis-Bellotti economy moves are most welcome.

Both men seem genuinely concerned that governmental services need not be curtailed by cutbacks or planned reductions in manpower. Let us hope that their respective goals of a more efficient government can, indeed, be achieved by increased productivity from smaller staffs.

This is the kind of action the voters had in mind in November when each man was elected to office. It's refreshing to see action, and not lame excuses as was the case so often in the past.

City Public Relations Seminar To Be Held Jan. 8

A Public Relations Seminar conducted by the city's office of communications will be held Wednesday, Jan. 8 at the Media Center at Atlantic Junior High School.

Marshall To Complete Ward 2 Term, Not Seek Re-election

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Potential candidates for Sheriff-elect Clifford Marshall's Ward 2 City Council seat will have to cool their heels for most of 1975.

Marshall confides that he plans to complete the remaining year on his term and then bow out.

"I definitely will not be a candidate for re-election to the Ward 2 seat," he says.

He says he intends to complete his term to "spare taxpayers the cost of a special election."

As for moving to Dedham where the county provides a home for its sheriff and his family, he's undecided when that will take place. "But I'm not going to move until after I complete my term as councillor," he says.

Marshall will be sworn in as Norfolk County's first elected Democrat sheriff Jan. 1 at noon in the Norfolk County Superior Courthouse at Dedham. He will take the oath from Secretary of State John Davoren. A reception will follow at Amaru's in Dedham.

Marshall who just turned 37 may also be the youngest sheriff in the county's history.

He is completing his sixth year as a state representative — a post he gave up to run for sheriff. In 1975, he will wind-up his 10th year in the City Council.

Marshall and his attractive wife, Louise, form a unique political team. Both are Democratic state committee members — the only such husband-wife combination in Massachusetts.

They are parents of four future possible Bobby Orrs: Chuckie, 12; Mike, 11; Paul, 8 and Chris, 6, all members of the Quincy Youth Hockey program.

Even when the family moves to Dedham, the youngsters may be able to remain in the Quincy hockey program. They definitely will remain in school here—attending St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point.

Incidentally, Marshall will keep two of Sheriff Charles Hedges' key men: Deputy Master Robert Campbell of Norfolk and Quincy's Luigi Bolea.

MEANWHILE, Sheriff Hedges who held the badge for 14 years, has moved to Quincy as a resident. He and his wife, Dr. Ella Hedges, turned out of the Dedham home Marshall will eventually occupy, and into an apartment at 123 Elm St.

Hedges some years back was a Senator and City Councillor.

Any chance of him becoming a Quincy political candidate again? "No," he smiles. "I doubt I will ever run again. But I will keep active as an observer."

He and his wife plan to get in some travelling.

A FEW COLUMNS back, we speculated that Mike Peatridge looked like a candidate for a City Council at-large seat next year. That was when he distributed free lineup programs at the Quincy-North football game.

But apparently, that is not the case. Insiders say we were almost right. He's going to run for the City Council all right—but for the Ward 5 seat.

That's the seat occupied by Warren Powers. He and Peatridge staged a pretty good race for the seat in 1973.

FRED BERGFORS, Jr. of the Quincy Oil Co. and active in civic circles, is recuperating at home after a little surgery at the Deaconess Hospital. Should be back at his desk soon.

NICE GESTURE DEPT.: Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly was host to some 200 senior citizens at a Holiday Tea Sunday at Oceanview, Germantown. Seniors throughout the ward were invited.

TYPO TERROR DEPT.: In the Twin City (Wisc.) News-Record: The queen and her court will be drowned during half-time of the homecoming game.

$1,220 Pay Hike, Other Benefits

Happy New Year For Quincy Nurses As Settlement Reached

The New Year began happily for Quincy City Hospital nurses as mediators negotiated a mutually agreeable settlement solving the wage dispute between the nurses and city hall.

Two-thirds of the nursing staff - a total of 246 nurses - submitted their resignations Dec. 18 after filing formal charges against the city, protesting its failure to negotiate in good faith with the hospital's nurses' union. The resignations would have been effective Jan. 18.

An agreement was reached Thursday after a day-long session at City Hall where Lawrence Holden, chairman of the state Board of Conciliation and Mediation, helped to bring the stalemate talks to a successful conclusion.

Under the terms of the agreement, each nurse will receive an increase of $1220, or approximately 11 per cent, with a 7-9 per cent cost of living increase July 1.

Present starting salary for nurses at the hospital is $174 per week with a ceiling salary of $202 per week, according to Atty. Ruth Paven of the Massachusetts Nurses Association (MNA).

Full-time nurses will receive a uniform allowance of $100 and part-time nurses, an allowance of $50, effective Jan. 1.

The contract also allows for a second uniform allowance payment in July at half the January amounts.

The nurses' holiday differential was upped from 50 cents per hour to one dollar per hour.

Other contract benefits include a five-week vacation after 25 years of service, two additional sick days per year and a longevity program.

Atty. Paven, who helped to represent the nurses at the meeting, credited Holden for his role in the settlement:

"It was through his good offices and his assistant that the settlement came about," she said.

Also representing the nurses at the meeting were Atty. Arthur Flamm and Jeanne Leslie, bargaining unit chairman at the hospital.

Speaking of the agreement, Atty. Paven said:

"It was a re-shaping. We tried to meet the city's needs once they were willing to consider ours."

She emphasized the settlement was "an amicable one...not imposed on either side."

The city had offered the nurses a flat $1,220 pay raise effective Jan. 1 but the nurses unanimously rejected that offer as "totally unacceptable." The union was seeking at least an 8½ per cent pay increase retroactive to January of this year. That percentage increase was recommended by a factfinder mutually agreed upon by the nurses and the city.

Atty. Paven said the new 30-month contract does not include retroactive pay.

The nurses had been working without a contract since Dec. 31, 1973.

The contract stipulates that the resignations submitted by the nurses will be rescinded "without prejudice."

Asst. Hospital Director Richard Newcomb said the hospital administration was "pleased to have the matter settled." He said, too, the hospital had prepared a contingency plan to cope with the threatened resignations. "Thank God we didn't have to use it," he said.

Atty. Paven said the nurses greeted the news of the settlement "with a certain amount of cheering."

"We all said 'Happy New Year' to each other and went home," she said.

Police Receive $1,400 Pay Hike, School Enrollment Dips against city officials.

The Commission contended that Houghs Neck Marsh was a "dying" natural resource which had to be flooded to be saved.

But Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred Mahoney labelled the marsh "raw sewage" and attributed the contamination to houses not connected to the city sewerage system. He contended the flooding of the marsh would create a serious health hazard to the people of Quincy and refused to allow the proposed flooding. Both parties later agreed to conduct tests of tidal flow and tidal action in the marsh area for one year.

Eighteen-year-old Janice Lamparelli was crowned Miss Quincy Bay Race Week 1974 at the July 19 outdoor pageant attended by more than 4,000 persons. Janice, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamparelli of 20 Robertson St., West Quincy, reigned during Quincy Bay Race Week.

Quincy patrolmen received a $1,400 pay hike effective Jan. 1, boosting their yearly salary to $12,975. The 30-month contract, negotiated in August, covers Quincy's 180 patrolmen and allows for a cost of living adjustment on July 1, 1975.

Quincy's 265 firefighters and 61 ranking officers are seeking a 10-14 per cent pay raise, retroactive to July 1, 1974.

Quincy Firefighters Local 792 refused a city offer made in October, providing a $1,040 raise. They termed the offer "totally unacceptable". The settlement is still being negotiated.

A longtime Quincy business came to an end in August when Forrest I. Neal Jr. announced the closing of Old Colony Laundries, Inc. The 78-year-old company was plagued by union pressures, drop in work incentive, and spiralling operation and supply costs.

The 1974-1975 school year in Quincy began Sept. 4 with student enrollment dipping below the 1,600 mark for the first time since 1965. But Supt. of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon called the downward trend "not a tremendously significant one."

Several new construction projects began in 1974. Construction is now underway for the $4.4 million state-aided Clay St. Senior Citizens complex hailed as an economic boon to the city.

Corcoran, Mullins, Jennison, Inc., began building a 12-story luxury condominium at 77 Adams Place in June with a projected completion date of September 1975. The $6.5 million facility is part of the city's downtown renewal program.

Construction on the mini-park located near the intersection of Cliveden and Hancock Sts. began in September. A section of Hancock St. was first narrowed and then converted into a mini-park, beautified with trees, benches and lights. The $91,000 project marked the newest phase of improvement in the downtown Quincy area.

Planned Unit Development [PUD] proposed for the former Quarry St. dump area drew mixed reaction at a November public hearing.

Kanavos Enterprises, developer of the multi-million dollar, high-rise, 1986-unit complex, outlined many economic benefits of the program, while others listed traffic and safety problems they said would be created by the complex.

A total of eight Quincy churches and clubs celebrated milestone anniversaries in 1974. Fiftieth anniversaries were observed by Quincy Lodge 1295, Sons of Italy [March], Quincy Kiwanis Club [May], and Merrymount Association [May].

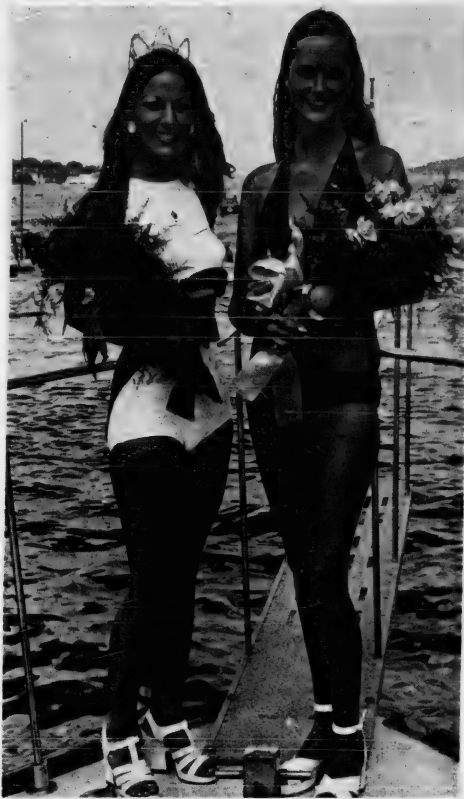

Central Junior High School celebrated its 80th anniversary in November, while St. John's Church, Quincy and Wollaston Methodist Church both held centennial celebrations. St. John's Church in June and Wollaston Methodist Church in November.

Salem Lutheran Church, now Faith Lutheran Church, celebrated its 85th anniversary in January.

And Quincy helped Kentucky to celebrate an anniversary in May.

Ernest Montilio of Montilio's Pastry Shops, Quincy, made a 3,000-pound cake marking the 100th anniversary of the Kentucky Derby. He made the colossal creation in two, 1,500-pound sections.

By year's end, Quincy's crime rate had escalated 40 per cent

A NICE CHANGE of pace for the year was the annual Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant held in downtown Quincy in July. Janice Lamparelli, 18, (left) of West Quincy was the winner and Janet McConarty, 16, of Merrymount first runner-up.

and Mayor Walter J. Hannon responded to the rise by equipping certain officers in Quincy's Police Force with semi-automatic machine guns and shotguns.

A survey conducted by The Quincy Sun showed the majority of Quincy businessmen backing the Mayor's decision.

But the Civil Liberties Union immediately decried the move, calling it "outrageous".

Hannon defended his decision, saying police officers would have an equal chance when confronting criminals armed with equal fire power.

The year ended on a happy, conciliatory note when mediators negotiated a 30-month contract with representatives of Quincy City Hospital nurses union and city officials, thus averting the threatened resignation of 246 registered nurses.

The nurses received a $1,220 pay hike and other benefits effective Jan. 1.

Test Results Subject For S.S. Guidance Assn.

"Test Results: What Can We Do With Them?" will be the topic at a meeting of the South Shore Guidance Association Jan. 8, at 3 p.m. in the Media Center of Atlantic Junior High School, Quincy.

Speaker will be Miss Louise B. Forsyth, coordinator of testing for the Quincy Public Schools, who will describe the Quincy programs used for in-service education for school staff and in presentations of test information to parents and community groups to help insure better understanding and use of tests.

The test information program of the Quincy Public Schools and its Test Resource Center have attracted interest from other school systems resulting in the invitation for Miss Forsyth to speak to the SSGA which includes counselors working at elementary, junior high, and high schools throughout southeastern Massachusetts.

Miss Forsyth has also been invited to make a presentation on the same topic at the national convention of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in New York City in March.

Hosting the meeting will be Stephen J. Del Russo, head counselor at Atlantic Junior High School.

QCA Opposes Mini-Mall, Closing Of Hancock St.

The Quincy Citizens Association has expressed its disfavor with the new mini-mall in downtown Quincy and its opposition to any plans calling for the permanent closing of Hancock St.

In a recent letter to the City Council, the QCA said it was "unequivocally opposed" to any contemplated permanent closing of Hancock St., between Granite and School Sts. to establish a so-called maxi-mall. The association also expressed its opposition to the making of this section of Hancock St. or any part of it one way.

The QCA noted this remodeling of Quincy Center was part of the recommendations of the Hilgenhurst Report, a report that was never formally accepted by the Council.

The QCA called upon the Council to air the report at one more public hearing before it is further implemented or accepted.

Music departments in the junior and senior high schools in Quincy, Milton, Weymouth, and Braintree are now accepting applications for a $500 scholarship to be given by the Wollaston Glee Club to a student planning a musical career.

Interested students should apply directly to the music departments at their schools, according to Cliff Rogers, chairman of the Wollaston Glee Club Scholarship Committee.

Students selected by the music directors at the schools will compete in a talent contest to be held March 9.

The scholarship award is made possible in part by a donation of the Hancock Bank to the Wollaston Glee Club as a Quincy Heritage project.

● Track Quincy, North Lose But Impress

Although the Quincy and North Quincy track teams lost Suburban League meets last Friday, both forced their opponents to the final event, the relay, before bowing.

North's performance was especially impressive as Newton North is rated one of the league's top teams but had to win the relay to pull out a 48-38 decision.

Quincy lost a 44-42 squeaker to Brookline, which also won the relay to clinch the decision.

The losses were the first for both teams. North had won two previous meets and Quincy had won its opener.

"I was very pleased with our showing as I think Newton is one of the strongest teams in the state and a good bet to win the league championship," North Coach Lou Tozzi said. "We have had a number of injuries and when we are back at full strength, I think we will do all right."

Mark Canavan, out for four weeks, won the 1000 in the excellent time of 2:33 and Ken O'Brien was third.

Brian Doherty, running the 300 for the first time won in 36 seconds, fastest time in the league this year.

Art Barrett, who had been out with an injury, won the 2-mile in 10:15.7, not far off the school record, and Mike Morin was third.

Paul Doherty won the dash with Jack Hatfield third, and Doherty also was third in the shot put.

Other North scorers were Arnie Vorosso, a transfer from Quincy, second in the mile; Jerry MacKenzie second and John Mackey third in the 600, Mackey second and Mike Adams third in the high jump and Chris Morton third in the hurdles.

In North's previous meet, a 54-32 league win over Weymouth North, Brian Doherty won the dash in 5.8 seconds, Paul Doherty won the 300 in 37.8 seconds, MacKenzie won the 600 in 1:22.4, O'Brien won the mile and Morton won the hurdles.

Today (Tuesday) Quincy meets Weymouth South and North faces Rindge Tech at 10 a.m. at Newton North. Friday it will be Quincy vs. Waltham and North vs. Weymouth South at 3:30 p.m. at the same site.

Fallon Encouraged Despite 2 Setbacks

Although North Quincy High's first wrestling team since the 1930's and early 40's lost its first two matches by big scores, Coach Art Fallon was encouraged by the performances of several of his grapplers.

"We were pretty badly beaten twice but both schools, Newton North and Plymouth-Carver, have had wrestling for several years and their experience was too much for us," Fallon said. "This will be our big handicap all year long as most of the Suburban League schools have had wrestling for some time."

"The only boys we have with any experience are some fine looking sophomores, who wrestled in the junior high program, which has been operating for three years."

North will face Brockton, runnerup for the state title a year ago, next Tuesday at Brockton.

In their opening meet, the Raiders lost to Newton North, 52-12, in a Suburban League meet.

The only North winners were Mike Nee, a standout tackle in football, in the 185-pound class, and Harry Knudson in the heavyweight class. Both pinned their opponents.

Fallon also hailed the performances of brothers Brian and Mark Donaghy, Dan McGuigan and John Minukas, who made excellent showings despite losing.

North then lost to Plymouth-Carver, 47-17, in a non-league meet as Nee and Knudson won their second in a row, again on pins.

Marty Mulvey won by a decision in the 145-pound class and Brian Donaghy gained a draw in his match.

Dairy Whips Donuts In St. Ann's Action

In St. Ann's Youth Hockey Dairy Queen edged Dunkin Donuts of North Quincy, 3-2, in Pee Wee action.

Walter Phipps scored all three Dairy Queen goals with Danny Rowley and Steve Hogan assisting. Gary Stokes scored both Donut goals with Kevin Ryan and Tom Barron assisting.

Stones' Jewelry and the Bruins played to a 1-1 tie with Bob Sullivan scoring an unassisted goal for Stone's and Greg Therrien scoring unassisted for the Bruins. Both goalies, Ricky Stenpkoski of Stone's and Mark Kintogas of Bruins, were outstanding.

Hockey Game On WCRB

Schoolboy hockey broadcast over WCRB Radio (1330 AM) will feature the Quincy High-Weymouth North game Thursday at 12:45 p.m. from the Randolph Rink.

At the conclusion of the broadcast the three stars will be announced and presented medals.

The second game will be the Quincy-Brookline game on Jan. 7 at 1:45 p.m. from the Boston College rink.

The Gamblers the same night defeated the Middleboro Brewers in a game at Middleboro.

Earlier in the week the O'Briens bombed Middleboro, 117-86, with Dalton scoring 31 points, Bowen 22 and Bob McNamara 18. Fred Cabral sparked off the boards.

The Gamblers rolled over the Alphas, 107-73, with Mike Greenlaw and Billy Evans having 23 points each, John Hassan 15, Rick Sprague 14 and Dennis Doble and Greg Cees 11 each.

●Basketball North, Quincy Off To Good Starts

North Quincy's basketball team, with only two lettermen on the squad, is off and running in its first Suburban League season with three wins in a row (two in the league) and now looks like a likely title contender.

Quincy, with the promise of a fine year, has looked good in its first two league games, winning and losing two-point decisions.

Thursday night North will be home to Brookline, one of the league favorites with 6-9 Mark Young in the lineup, and Quincy will play at Weymouth South. Saturday North will host another favorite, Brockton, and Quincy will be at Brookline and next Tuesday it will be Rindge Tech at Quincy and North at Cambridge Latin.

Bob Nolan's North team, sparked by a strong defense, made Newton North its third victim in a row last Friday, 58-49.

Tim Clifford had 14 points, Paul Kelleher 13 and Steve Martinelli 12. Nolan had praise for the defensive performances but lamented the many turnovers. The raiders had 18 in this game, less than in the first two, but still too many.

Eddie Miller's North junior varsity pulled out a come-from-behind 53-51 win, to make its record 2-1. The only loss was a two-pointer to Rindge. Keith Lindberg's two foul shots with one second left won it.

Earlier last week North defeated Rindge, 58-49, with Pee Wee A's Blank Braintree

The Pee Wee A team blanked Braintree, 4-0, to make its league record 12-1-0 and overall mark 12-2-0.

Jimmy Campbell was in goal.

another super defensive show and, as Nolan put it, "continued hustle and aggressiveness."

Martinielli had 14 points, Rich Mahoney 13, Clifford 11 and Cooper Jordan 10.

The Raiders had opened with a 64-61 win over B. C. High in a non-league game as they survived a big B. C. rally in the final period. North had a 50-37 edge after three periods.

Joe Amoroso's Quincy team dropped a last second 61-59 decision to Waltham last Friday in what the Quincy coach called "as fine a ball game as I've seen."

Quincy lost a 55-50 lead in the final period and, with the score 59-59, both teams turned the ball over as they tried to set up one last shot. Waltham finally scored at the buzzer on a shot by Rick Mansur.

"I can't find fault with anything we did out there," Amoroso said. "We did everything we had to win and had our shot at the end."

Two Quincy standouts, Jack Uhlir and John Riggs, fouled out late in the game, depriving the Presidents of a lot of height and two good scorers.

Amoroso praised every player on the team for their efforts.

Earlier in the week Quincy barely survived a late rally by Cambridge Latin and pulled out a 57-55 decision.

Riggs had 16 points, Uhlir 12, and Dacey 12 for the Presidents.

Freddie Palmer had two goals and Robbie McHugh and Bobby Beniers one each. Robbie Zanardelli had three assists and Palmer and John Furey one apiece.

●Hockey Sylvia, Erikson Predictions Come True

The pre-season predictions of Hockey Coaches Bob Sylvia of Quincy High and Ron Erikson of North Quincy are proving true, judging the results of their first two games.

Sylvia admitted his team would "be the strongest I've had at Quincy if we can escape injuries and the flu," while Erikson said the Raiders would be strong on defense but questionable on offense.

The early results show the accuracy of these statements. Quincy pounded Waltham, 9-3, and Rindge Tech, 7-3, in its first games in the Suburban League, while North was nipped by Weymouth North, 2-1, and lost to Waltham, 3-1.

Thursday Quincy will play Weymouth North at 1 o'clock and North will meet Weymouth South at 3 at the Randolph rink. Saturday at the Quincy Youth Arena Quincy will face Cambridge Latin at 7 and North will take on Newton North at 5.

In last Thursday's 7-3 win over Rindge, Ted Wiedemann had two goals and other Quincy scorers were Rich Lucier, Ed MacDonald, Frank Guest, Steve Neville and Bill Hamill. Quincy outshot Rindge, 27-6.

"I'm extremely pleased with our scoring but we have to work a bit to improve the defense," Sylvia said. "That's not a knock on our goalies or defensemen as we have two fine goalies in Mark Fanning and Peter Hajjar, but we have to start back checking."

North's 3-1 loss to Waltham was disappointing as the Raiders outshot the winners, 12-4, in the second period. The only North goal was by Dave Hurley with Glenn Hanson assisting.

In the opening games both teams appeared to be nervous playing at their new home rink, the Youth Arena. Waltham hopped away to a quick 3-1 lead over Quincy but the Presidents then exploded for eight unanswered goals.

Guest, last year's Greater Boston League sophomore of the year, had the hat trick and two assists, Wiedemann a goal and three assists, Paul Lynch two goals, McDonald two and Bob Barry one. Brian Nevins and Rick Avery had three assists each, Barry and Pete Raymer two apiece and Mike Conti one.

Sylvia hailed his line of Barry, Hamill and McDonald and had good words for goalie Fanning.

North turned in another strong defensive performance but, as Erikson had said, had a hard time scoring.

The Raiders took the lead on Mike McLean's goal of 12:04 of the first period but Weymouth tied it at 12:31 and won it with a goal at 8:43 of the second period.

Erikson praised his three centers, McLean, Steve Cronin and Hanson, defenseman Paul O'Donnell and goalie Dave O'Hanley.

● Girl's Hockey

Red Barons, Team Quincy Win

The Red Barons continued to roll along undefeated in the Girls' Division of Quincy Youth Hockey when they defeated Tiffany, 5-2, last week for their sixth win in a row.

Kathy Flynn scored twice for the Barons and her sister Terry scored an unassisted goal and assisted on another for Tiffany. Eileen Marr, Lisa Norling, and Marie McAuliffe finished the Barons' scoring. Paula Constat had two assists and Kristen O'Gara, Sherry Craig, Michele Schaefer and Maria one apiece. Sue Rugg had the other Tiffany goal and Jeanne Kelly had an assist.

Team Quincy moved into a second place tie by nipping

Vissa, 2-1.

Mary Beth Duff and Mary Ann McCarthy scored for Team Quincy and Mary Ellen Riordan and Beth Colman had assists. Jeanne McManus scored for Vissa unassisted.

Thursday Team Quincy challenges the Barons at 6:30 and Tiffany meets Vissa at 7:30 at the Youth Arena.

Mini-Mall Near Completion

More 'People Space' Planned

The downtown tree-lined mini-mall on Hancock St. is nearing completion.

Its purpose is to provide shaded resting areas and safe, unobstructed walking space for pedestrians.

Construction of the first and largest phase of the mini-mall has been completed.

Minor work needed to complete the project will be done in the future only during early morning hours.

Public Works Commr. James J. Ricciuti said:

"Protective grates which will surround the trees, and lights to be put beneath each tree will be installed when these items are shipped to us in May. They will be installed at no inconvenience to anyone as work will be done away from pedestrian and automobile traffic."

The atmosphere for shoppers that is created by the mini-mall is the result of plans by the City and the business community to further broaden its tax base.

The environment of the downtown area will be improved with the addition of more "people space," and with the addition of trees and plants.

Reports from business people say shoppers are using the benches even in the cold weather.

Safety for pedestrians is another important aspect of the mini-mall. The cobblestone crosswalks were designed to make drivers more responsive to pedestrians by slowing down.

"This feature could be crucial to elderly people and parents shopping with their children. A shopping area which becomes safer, less congested and attractive is our goal," said Harvey L. Towm, Director of the Central Business District.

Business people in the area have had favorable responses to the mini-mall as an economically sound approach for the City to take.

Tourists who come to Quincy to explore its historic sites are expected to be drawn to its attractive shopping area.

"All of this means that more money will be spent within the City. If this happens, sales will go up and there will be more jobs available in the City," said Jack Kerrigan, Executive Director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"A healthy downtown shopping area generates high rentals. This, in turn, produces tax revenues which enable the City to provide needed services."

Dedication services for the new mini-mall are being planned for the spring of this year.

Poster, Slogan Winners To Be Announced At Heritage Dinner

The 48 winners of the Quincy Heritage poster and slogan contests will be announced at a special "Salute to Quincy's Heritage Dinner" at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 15 at the Carlton House, North Quincy.

The contest, co-sponsored by the Quincy Savings Bank and The Quincy Sun, drew over 1,000 entries. Of that number, 900 entries were for the slogan contest and the remaining were posters.

Winning entries were selected at a marathon judging session held at the Quincy Savings Bank's main branch on Hancock St.

The winners will share $1,500 with $300 the top prize for the winning slogan and another $300 for the selected poster.

Names of all of the winners and honorable mention selections will be included in a special supplement to The Quincy Sun to be published Jan. 16 to coincide with the "Salute to Quincy's Heritage Dinner". The winning poster will serve as the front-page of that special section which will feature an overview of the programs Quincy Heritage will operate over the next two years.

The winning slogan has already been designed into a bumper sticker by the S. Gunnar Myrbeck Co., of Quincy. Some 5,000 of the bumper stickers will be made up by the Bankette Co., of Quincy and distributed throughout the city.

Channel 7 TV personality Paul Benzaquin, formerly of Quincy, will be the guest speaker at the "Salute to Quincy's Heritage Dinner".

Also featured at the dinner will be:

• The premier of "Quincy Played Its Part", an original film produced by students in the Quincy Public Schools and teacher Walter McCarthy.

• Bagpipe playing by Peter Henderson.

Ticket information for the dinner is available by calling 773-1380, Ext. 372.
